FIXING OF PRICES IN LUMBER CODE IS HELD ILLEGAL

Nothing in Recovery Act to Show Congress Had Such Intent, Federal Judge Anderson Says.

BARS PROSECUTION BY U. S. OFFICIALS

Temporary Injunction Granted at Request of 16 Southern Hardwood Firms.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Judge Harry B. Anderson today ruled that price fixing features of the National Lumber Code are illegal.

Judge Anderson held that "any price fixing is the antithesis of competition, fair or otherwise—and there is nothing in the National Recovery Act to show that such was the intention Congress." The term "fair competition," Judge Anderson said in his opinion, "negatives any such construction."

"There is no mention in the National Recovery Act, itself, of price fixing or price protection," he said, adding, however, that the act did authorize the various industries to compile codes of fair competition. "From time to time, as witness the Lever Act, legislative bodies have fixed maximum price with doubtful success," Judge Anderson said. "No legislative body has ever fixed a minimum price to my knowledge. To hold that Congress in the National Recovery Act has fixed a minimum price by implication is to carry judicial construction too far."

Injunction Is Temporary.

The Judge granted a temporary injunction restraining William McClanahan, United States Attorney for the Western District of Tennessee, from causing the arrest, indictment or prosecution of any lumberman for violating the price-fixing or price-protection clause of the lumber code applicable to the hardwood industry in West Tennessee.

At the same time, Judge Anderson dismissed the application for a companion injunction against the Hardwood Manufacturers' Institute, code administrative agency for the Southern hardwood and Appalachian regions, on the ground that that agency is powerless to institute criminal actions.

The injunction was granted in behalf of 16 Southern hardwood lumber firms opposed to "fixed prices." The 16 say they speak for approximately 600 lumbermen.

Price Fixing Was Retained.

The decision came the day after the Lumber Code Authority, at Chicago, decided to retain minimum price provisions of the industry's code and to "see that they are enforced."

Although today's injunction was a temporary one, attorneys for both sides agreed that there was no dispute as to facts. The Government's appeal will be taken to the Sixth United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati when and if the injunction is made permanent at a hearing not yet set.

The objectors were represented by their counsel as in complete sympathy with the NRA, with production control provisions of the code and with wage and hour features.

NRA Board to Report on Taking Over Johnson's Job.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—President Roosevelt's new recovery board today raised industry, labor and the consumer to a position of new importance in directing future Blue Eagle policies.

It reorganized NRA's advisory council, on which each rank of the triple partnership is represented, and gave it a fuller review of policy problems than ever held before, in some cases allowing the council to pass its decisions directly to executive officials without reference to the boards themselves.

In all major matters of policy and controversy, the council will make recommendations to the governing board in an advisory capacity. Where divided, the minority also will present its views.

The board will hold its first conference with President Roosevelt Monday. The board will report to the President the results of a week's discussions on ways and means of taking over Hugh S. Johnson's job. From Roosevelt it may receive advice on guiding NRA through the issues of price and production control—subjects which have been thrown open to revision by the President.

SENDS HER LAWYER

THE MARCHIONESS OF MILFORD HAVEN

MRS. VANDERBILT DEMANDS PUBLIC HEARING OF SUIT

To Protest Against Judge's Decision to Close Doors in Fight Over Custody of Child Heiress.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—A demand that Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's reputation be defended in public, since it was publicly attacked, will be made Monday when the court fight over the custody of her 10-year-old child, Gloria, is resumed. Natnan Burkan, lawyer for Mrs. Vanderbilt, said he would protest to Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew against his decision to bar the public and press from further hearings in the case.

Burkan said he would argue that it is unfair to complete the hearings behind closed doors when the charge that she is unfit to rear her child has received wide publicity. The charge, made by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's aunt, who now has her in charge, was supported by former servants of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Justice Carew cleared the courtroom last Tuesday after a French maid had testified to an incident involving the Marchioness of Milford Haven, whose husband is a cousin of King George. Since then the trial has been postponed.

Lady Furness Sails.

The former Lady Furness, twin sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt, sailed from England for New York today to "stop all this nonsense and all these lies if I can."

Harry Hays Morgan Jr., brother of the twins, also sailed on the Empress of Britain.

Prince Gottfied zu Hohenlohe, who name was linked with Mrs. Vanderbilt's in the testimony of another servant, and who said he was formerly engaged to her, announced in Berlin that he and his wife would sail Tuesday to aid in her defense.

Lady Milford Haven, in London, said she was sending a lawyer to New York to represent her and that she would decide later whether to come herself.

Three Sisters to Be United.

The arrival of Lady Furness will unite three sisters who were known for their beauty, and two of whom married men of wealth and prominence. They were daughters of the late Harry Hays Morgan, who was American Consul-General at Buenos Aires. Thelma Morgan married James Vial Converse, New York millionaire, and her sister, Gloria, married Reginald Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt died suddenly, leaving so many debts that his widow found herself dependent on allowances made by the Court from the estate of their child, Gloria. An affidavit to this effect was filed in Surrogate's Court yesterday.

In the meantime, Thelma Morgan Converse and her husband were divorced and she married Lord Furness. This marriage, too, ended in divorce several years ago.

The third sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, has been accompanying Mrs. Vanderbilt to court.

Ranged against the three sisters and their brother in the battle over Gloria Vanderbilt's custody is their mother, Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, who has allied herself with Mrs. Whitney and will testify against her daughter when the case is resumed next week.

Dr. Stuart Craig, physician who was called to attend the child, will be the first witness Monday.

DEAN NOT HURT BADLY; HOPES HE CAN PITCH TODAY

Doctor Sends Him to Hotel to Rest After X-Ray Photographs of Head Show No Lasting Injury.

HIT BY BALL WHEN RUNNING FOR DAVIS

'I Just Jumped Too High,' He Says—Detroit Shortstop Explains He Expected Him to Slide.

Dizzy Dean, pitching star of the Cardinals, suffered no serious injury when a ball thrown by Bill Rogell, Detroit shortstop, struck him on the head in the fourth inning of yesterday's world series game. This was the announcement of Dr. Robert Hyland, team physician, after he had examined two X-ray photographs of Dean's head, made at St. John's Hospital.

Whether Dizzy, definitely slated by Manager Frisch to pitch today, would be in condition to do so, Dr. Hyland said he could not say until this morning. He insisted that Dizzy should have a night of absolute rest and quiet, and on the assurance of this, consented to let Dean leave the hospital, where he went for X-ray pictures about 5 p. m., and go to the Forest Park Hotel.

No Injury Indicated.

Dr. Hyland said he found no indication of a skull fracture, or of any lasting injury, from the sharp impact of the ball on the right side of the head, in the templar region. The ball rose high in the air after striking Dean as he ran for second.

Dizzy went down, seeing, as he declared later, "a million stars, moons, dogs and cats." He was carried into the clubhouse by Mique Gonzales, Dr. Weaver, the Cardinal trainer, Virgil Davis, for whom Dizzy had been running, and other Cardinals. Dr. Hyland packed Dean's head in ice and kept him lying quietly on a cot until he and Mrs. Dean rode to the hospital.

"Feel fine, thanks," Dizzy replied to questioners as he hurried into the hospital office. After a half-hour in the X-ray room he breezed out, a lively patient, replying to questions as to his pitching today with "I sure hope so."

How It Happened.

Dizzy and Rogell, who expressed his regret at having been the means of the mishap, were in agreement as to how it happened. Rogell said he made the usual throw to first for a double play, and that if Dean had been sliding, the customary means of approaching second under such circumstances, the ball would not have touched him. "I just jumped too high for that one," was Dean's way of putting it.

BOY LOSES FOOT HOPPING HODIAMONT STREET CAR

William Feld, 11, of 814 Hamilton Ave., Also Suffers Fracture of the Skull.

William Feld, 11 years old, 814 Hamilton avenue, fell yesterday when he tried to hop on a Hodiamont street car west of Belt avenue, and suffered a crushed right foot and fractured skull. His foot was amputated at the ankle at St. Luke's Hospital.

The boy tried to board the car by running alongside it at the closed center door, holding on the handles, and attempting to get a foothold on a narrow ledge at the bottom of the door.

Fred Emendorfer, 8960 Tudor avenue, St. Louis County, operator of the one-man car, told police he did not see the boy until passengers told him of the accident.

MONEY PLENTIFUL IN PARIS

Ministry Announces Lower Interest on Short-Term Bonds.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Money is so plentiful in France that the Ministry of Finance today announced the interest on short-term Treasury bonds would be lowered Monday. The ministry said that the response to the present unlimited 4½ per cent refunding loan issue was so generous that it was confident it could borrow enough at lower rates.

One-month bonds will be one-half per cent instead of the present one per cent; two-months will be one per cent instead of 1½ per cent; three-months, 1½ per cent instead of 2; three-months to one year will be 2¾ instead of 2¾ per cent. These are the lowest rates since February, 1933. Treasury bond interest previously was lowered in June.

DESPITE RAIN, PRESIDENT GOES CRUISING ON POTOMAC

If Weather Permits, He Will Put Off In Smaller Boat To Do Some Fishing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Under heavily overcast skies, President Roosevelt and a small party of guests cruised down the Potomac River and into Chesapeake Bay tonight aboard the yacht Sequoia, on what started out as a fishing trip.

His desk cleared of business, the President drove through the rain to Quantico, Va., to board the yacht. He plans to return to Washington tomorrow evening, expecting to fish in the meantime provided the rain lets up enough to permit his taking off in a small boat.

As soon as the President took his seat in the stern of the Diesel-engined Sequoia it pulled out into the rain swept river, trailed by the navy patrol boat Cuyahoga.

In the small party were Henry Stewart Hooker, of New York, member of Mr. Roosevelt's former law firm; Marguerite Lehand and Grace Tully, the President's personal secretaries, Col. Edward M Watson, military aide, and Mrs Watson, and Capt. Walter Brown, naval aide.

800 REDS TRY TO BREAK UP NEW YORK GERMAN MEETING

Police Prevent Group Singing "Internationale" from Entering Madison Square Garden.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Eight hundred men and women singing the "Internationale" tried tonight to enter Madison Square Garden where the united German societies were hearing an address by Dr. Hans Borchers, the German consul-general, but police herded them away from the building.

The demonstrators bore "Young Peoples' Socialist League" placards, assembled near Times Square, and marched two abreast uptown toward the Garden.

Mounted policemen, reinforced by patrolmen on foot and others on motorcycles, blocked their advance at 48th street and sent them east to Broadway.

The Garden, which holds 22,000 spectators, was well filled for the "German Day" meeting.

CATALONIA SECEDES; THEN PRESIDENT SURRENDERS TO SPAIN; MARTIAL LAW ORDER

GRAND JURY IN NEW JERSEY TO HEAR LINDBERGH

Authorities Seeking Hauptmann's Indictment for Kidnaping and Murder to Call Him Tomorrow.

NEIGHBOR OF FLYER IDENTIFIES PRISONER

Says He Is Man Seen Lurking in Underbrush on Hopewell Estate Few Days Before Abduction.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 6.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh will appear Monday before the Hunterdon County grand jury which State authorities will ask to indict Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the kidnaping and murder of the flyer's infant son.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf said that those in charge of the State's case had changed their minds. They previously said that Lindbergh would not be brought before the grand jury. The flyer will head a list of 23 witnesses summoned by Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, who will present the case.

Prisoner Identified.

In New York Hauptmann was identified today by a former neighbor of Col. Lindbergh as a man he had seen emerging from underbrush on the Lindbergh estate near Hopewell, N. J., less than two weeks before the kidnaping.

The testimony, given by Millard Whited of Lambertville, N. J., is the first linking Hauptmann to the scene of the abduction. Whited picked the German carpenter from a lineup of [illegible]0 men at the Bronx County courthouse.

He told Capt. J. J. Lamb of the New Jersey state police that he was certain Hauptmann was the man he had observed lurking in the bushes on two occasions. He will be called to testify before the grand jury.

Capt. Lamb brought back to New Jersey a panel from Hauptmann's home, on which telephone numbers pertaining to the case had been written.

Located Two Days Ago.

Whited, who formerly lived on a small farm near the Lindbergh estate, first told his story of seeing a stranger to State Police on the night of the kidnaping, March 1, 1932.

When Hauptmann was arrested, the farmer was sought immediately. He was visiting in Pennsylvania and was not located until two days ago.

Among witnesses summoned for the grand jury are Albert S. and Albert D. Osborn, New York handwriting experts, who declare that the handwriting in the ransom notes is identical with Hauptmann's.

Another to testify will be Arthur Koehler, wood expert of the U. S forestry service, who traced the lumber in the ladder used in the kidnaping to the Bronx lumber yard where Hauptmann was employed as an odd-job man.

Two Department of Justice agents, Thomas Sisky and William Seery, Inspector Frank Wilson of the Treasury Department, and Detectives Chester Cronin, Murphy and Petrocinno of the New York Police Department will give the grand jury other evidence developed in their investigations.

Others Who Will Testify.

Dr. Charles Mitchell, Mercer County physician, another witness, is the doctor who performed the autopsy on the Lindbergh baby's body and reported that the child had died from a fractured skull.

Miss Cecil Barr, New York theater ticket seller, probably will tell the grand jury how Hauptmann allegedly passed one of the ransom bills to her last November, and how she has since identified him. Ben Lupica, a Princeton student who saw a man in a car near the Lindbergh estate shortly before the kidnaping, also will be examined.

Wilentz said he expected to complete presentation of evidence in one day. He declined to say whether indictments would be sought for murder or kidnaping, or both. He said that would depend on the

HEAD OF CLEVELAND BANK GETS 6 YEARS

J. A. House Convicted of False Entries Involving Employes' Pension Fund.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 6.—Federal Judge Samuel H. West today "reluctantly" sentenced James Arthur House, once the highest paid bank president in Cleveland, to serve six years in a Federal penitentiary and fined him $10,400.

House, for 16 years president of the Guardian Trust Co., which closed for liquidation in March, 1933, was convicted on 26 counts of misapplication of funds and false entries in connection with the purchase of bank stock from an employes' pension fund.

"Notwithstanding your excellent reputation," said Judge West, after denying a motion for a new trial, "the Government has charged you with a serious violation of the banking laws.

"You have had a fair trial and you have been well defended. Everything was said in your behalf that could be said; nevertheless, a verdict was returned against you.

"By reason of the verdict, I must very reluctantly pass the sentence which the law provides."

He was released under $10,000 bond pending an appeal, which his attorney, William H. Boyd, said may be carried to the United States Supreme Court.

STABBED WITH ICE-PICK IN DISPUTE AT DOG TRACK

Homer Kelleher, Wellston Kennel Club Watchman, in Serious Condition.

Homer Kelleher, 31 years old, a watchman at the closed Wellston Kennell Club, 9900 St. Charles Rock road, was stabbed below the heart with an icepick last night during an argument with another man on the kennel club grounds. He was taken to St. Louis County Hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

Kelleher, who lives on the club grounds, was found by Deputy Constables who were on duty at a walkathon just east of the club. They said Kelleher told them he had had an argument with an agent for the club, who had ordered him off the grounds.

ICKES SUSPENDS AID OF ISLAND GOVERNOR

But Paul C. Yates, Called Disloyal, Says at St. Thomas He Has Resigned.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes said today that Paul C. Yates had been suspended as executive assistant to Gov. Paul M. Pearson of the Virgin Islands, and ordered to report to Washington where he will be presented with "written charges of disloyalty, insubordination and gross inefficiency."

"I could no longer ignore grave charges against Mr. Yates that have come to me from several sources and over a considerable period of time," Ickes said.

Yates cabled the Associated Press from St. Louis that he had advised Ickes that "your radiogram today seeking to summon me before your drumhead court-martial arrived too late—my resignation was [illegible] by mail." He said he had "notified" Ickes Aug. 15 that unless action was taken to remedy the "intolerable misgovernment" prevailing under Gov. Pear-Pearson, "I would under no circumstances continue" as an official.

Yates referred to an investigation by special representatives of Ickes of alleged misuse of PWA funds. As a result of that "whitewash," Yates added, Eli Baer of Baltimore was removed a Government attorney, leaving only Yates and Federal Judge T. Webber Wilson as "Democrats and Liberals sent here under the Roosevelt administration."

ARMY PROPOSES TO WEED OUT 'SWIVEL CHAIR' AIR PILOTS

All Aviation Officers With 15 or More Years of Service to Take Flying Tests.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — The army proposes to weed out its "swivel chair" airplane pilots by making all air corps officers with 15 or more years' service take tests to determine their flying ability.

The tests are being shaped around recommendations of the special board headed by Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War. All Generals, Colonels, Majors and a majority of the Captains in the air corps will be examined. All found disqualified for further flying will be assigned to ground duty, transferred to other branches of the service or retired.

There are three Generals, nine Colonels, 31 Lieutenant Colonels, 81 Majors and 362 Captains in the air corps. Elimination of those found unfit for further flying will make way for the promotion of many younger men of junior rank.

REST OF NATION IS LOYAL, PREMIER SAYS

Government Closes All Frontiers—Street Fighting in Madrid—Loyalists and Rebels Clash in Provinces.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

MADRID, Oct. 7 (Sunday)—Revolutionists in Catalonia suffered a severe set-back today when President Luis Companys, who had proclaimed the region to be an independent state, suddenly decided to surrender to Spanish authorities.

The nation-wide rebellion, which already had resulted in 200 to 300 deaths, centered last night in the state of Catalonia, where hundreds rallied to President Companys when he announced that the district was setting itself up as an independent nation.

The notice of surrender came from Companys himself in an announcement made over the radio.

More than 1,000 persons have been wounded in the fighting.

Martial law was declared throughout Spain when the proclamation of a Catalonian Republic became known.

The government of Premier Alejandro Lerroux, which came into power three days ago, is trying to put down the revolt in which Communists, Socialists and Syndicalists, who declared a general strike Thursday midnight, have joined against the Conservative ministry.

Lerroux said he would establish all precepts of the Spanish constitution under martial law and apply them to Catalonia, without fear or favor, despite the secession.

The Madrid Government ordered the frontiers of the nation closed. No one was being permitted to leave without a special permit.

Companys appeared on a balcony of the Barcelona town hall and solemnly announced: "Catalonia is breaking off relations with the rest of Spain. I demand complete discipline from everyone. Long live liberty."

Madrid Upsets Plans.

Companys demanded of Gen. Domingo Batet, commander of the Spanish garrison at Barcelona, that he swear allegiance to the new government. Batet asked for an hour to think over the matter. But in less than an hour Gen. Batet received orders from Madrid to declare martial law. As his soldiers began to post placards proclaiming martial law they were fired on by armed civilians stationed on roofs.

A hot fight ensued in which the Government troops swept aside the unorganized opposition. Right up to the Government buildings the troops of Gen. Batet pressed, and for a time surrounded the Government palace, in which Companys and other officials momentarily were prisoners.

From the Government palace Companys and Minister of Interior Dencas used the radio to send out appeals for aid.

Then, from Dencas, came a radio announcement that volunteers guarding the Government palace had repulsed the troops. But the appeal of the besieged prisoners had gone out and it was reported that the forces favoring Catalonian independence were preparing to advance on the city.

In a communication to the Central Government Gen. Batet said: "We have complete mastery of

MUSSOLINI MAKES A JOKE OF FRENCH GOOD WILL FLIGHT

Says Relations Between Two Countries Are Improved, Then He Winks and Milan Crowd Roars.

AVIATION MISSION ON THE PLATFORM

He Asserts "Certain Currents in Germany Give Impression They Want to Wipe Us From Map."

By the Associated Press.

MILAN, Oct. 6.—More than 100,000 Square roared with laughter today when Premier Mussolini told them: "The relations between Italy and France are notably improved." A wink of Mussolini's eye as he finished the phrase set off the laughter, which he let continue some minutes, then declared: "Your attitude shows that you are a very intelligent people!" Authorities estimated 500,000 persons listened to the address. Loud speakers were placed in the principal piazzas so those unable to jam into the square could hear the speech.

A French aviation mission, consisting of 30 men, who flew from Paris to Rome and Milan on a good will mission, was on the speakers' platform. The French aviators in their full dress uniforms, heard the crowd's enormous laughter at Mussolini's reference to relations with France.

"No Indifferent Point."

Mussolini, in the uniform of a corporal of the Fascist militia, continued:

"The atmosphere is better, but good relations must be between people and you cannot rely merely on diplomacy. Nevertheless, we soon hope to reach an accord which will be very fruitful and enable the two countries to co-operate in the European field."

Mussolini declared: "Italy must be either friends or enemies with the nations of Europe. There is no indifferent point.

"There are no great possibilities for bettering our situation with our neighbor to the East." (Meaning Jugo-Slavia.)

Mussolini said the polemics carried on by the Jugo-Slavian press had wounded Italy to its heart and the crowd gave him a tremendous cheer. He refuted the attacks which the Jugo-Slavian press had made on the valor of the Italian army.

Defense of Austria.

On the subject of Austria, he said:

"We have defended and we will defend the independence of the Austrian republic. This independence has been consecrated by the blood of the late Chancellor Dolfuss. A little man with a great heart."

Italy, he said, has no ulterior intentions regarding Austria.

"Those who say Italy is aggressive and wants a protectorate over Austria," said Mussolini, "either know nothing of what they are talking about or lie knowingly."

He referred to Germany only in passing because he limited his speech, as he said, only to European countries touching on Italy. However, he declared the development of Europe without Germany was inconceivable.

"Although it is not conceivable that European history can develop without Germany," he said, "nevertheless there are certain currents which give us the impression that Germany wants to wipe us from history."

Arms Conference Buried.

Mussolini derided the disarmament conference, saying that relations among European nations had become better now that the disarmament conference had failed.

He declared: "The tenacious citizen Henderson (Arthur Henderson, president of the Disarmament Conference) will not succeed in any manner in resurrecting the cadaver of the disarmament conference which is profoundly buried under a weight of cannon and warships."

Referring to his internal policy, Mussolini repeated what he said in Bari with reference to a higher social justice. By this, he said, he meant labor would be guaranteed work, equitable wages, livable houses and the possibility of bettering its situation. He said the workmen have come ever closer to the Fascist revolution.

"Controlled by the Government," he said, "science must solve the problem of the redistribution of wealth. It is most paradoxical and cruel to find misery in the midst of wealth."

A New Civilization.

"Those who regard the past rather than the future speak about the crisis. This is not a crisis in the traditional sense of the word but rather a passing from one page of civilization to the next.

"There are two solutions: The first is to collect and control all the wealth of the nations; but this is not the solution we are studying because we do not want to multiply by 10 the already enormous number of State employes.

"The other solution is that which is being employed—that is, the corporative Fascism of producers—but by producers I do not mean only the industrialists but also the workers.

The visit to Milan coincides with the thirteenth anniversary of Mussolini's decision and preparations to march on Rome.

Bronx Prosecutor Says Extortion Case Is Nearly Completed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Bronx extortion case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, accused of receiving the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom, has been virtually completed, District Attorney Samuel J. Foley announced today as New Jersey authorities assembled evidence on kidnaping and murder charges for presentation to a grand jury Monday.

"I am convinced that the Bronx case against Hauptmann will result in a conviction," said Foley. He added that he would be ready for trial Thursday, when the case is scheduled to be called.

Foley would not say, however, whether the case would be adjourned to permit the German carpenter's extradition to New Jersey. He previously indicated he would agree to such action.

Hauptmann was brought from his cell in the Bronx County Jail to a private room in the courthouse during the morning for a visit with his wife. Four guards were present for the 15-minute meeting. Mrs. Hauptmann arrived at the courthouse in a drizzling rain.

District Attorney Foley said he was ready to absolve the late Isidore Fisch from complicity in the extortion case. Hauptmann has asserted Fisch gave him the ransom money discovered in his garage. Asked whether he believed the evidence accumulated so far would convince the public that the Lindbergh case had been solved, Foley said:

"I will not comment on the murder and kidnaping angle. That is a matter entirely with the New Jersey authorities. But I can say this—that my case against Hauptmann on the extortion charge is complete in every respect, and when the evidence is heard, the public will have no doubt as to who the culprit was."

SLAYER OF TWO KILLED BY CALIFORNIA POSSE

State Policeman and Chico Garage Man Shot Down at Scene of Wreck.

By the Associated Press.

CHICO, Cal., Oct. 6.—William R. McDaniel, 30 years old, a State highway policeman, and Kenneth Davis, 32, a garage employe, were shot to death today during their search for an intoxicated driver of an automobile. Their alleged slayer, a former convict, was killed later by a posse.

The posse cornered Nick Turchinetz, 45, a Chico jeweler, on a ranch three miles from his residence and shot him when he replied with rifle fire to calls that he surrender. Turchinetz previously had fired at his wife, telling her, "I thought you were a cop."

Davis had been called to tow in a disabled automobile. Officer McDaniel accompanied him and the two men apparently were waylaid when they arrived at the wreck.

Officers said tracks near trees at the scene showed the slayer apparently had stalked his victims from an orchard. Footprints led from tree to tree and Chief of Police Charles Tovee found rifle shells where the jeweler had started firing.

McDaniel fired two shots and fell dead. Davis made a futile attempt to escape by hiding under the automobile.

Turchinetz, Chief Tovee said, then returned to his home and fired at his wife. Mrs. Jane Turchinetz said her husband was wounded in the thigh and possibly the side. He put on a sweater and fled with a rifle, saying he had "to beat it because the cops are looking for me," fled from his home.

BUENOS AIRES IS DECORATED FOR EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS

Archbishop Glennon to Arrive Wednesday With American Delegation.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6.—All Buenos Aires was decorated with Eucharistic Congress emblems today as this city of 2,500,000 persons, prepared for the thirty-second international congress opening Wednesday. One million persons are expected to participate.

The blue banners of the Eucharistic Congress waved in all the streets and a majority of homes, apartments, and stores bore the blue and white congress plaque.

The congress, the first in South America, will bring together five cardinals and more than 120 bishops and archbishops from more than 30 countries, with hundreds of priests and friars, and thousands of lay pilgrims. The Buenos Aires setting, however, will make it predominantly Latin American. On Wednesday the United States delegation of 29 clergymen and 335 laymen will arrive. The party includes Archbishop John J. Glennon of St. Louis.

BAIL MANDATORY FOR ROSEGRANT PENDING APPEAL

Attorney for Convicted Kelley Kidnaper to Seek Client's Release on Bond This Week.

Release of Anglo Rosegrant, convicted kidnaper, on bail pending an appeal from his 20-year sentence will be sought this week by his counsel, Thomas J. Rowe Jr. Rosegrant was found guilty by a jury last Thursday of participating in the abduction of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley.

Under the law, bail is mandatory while the defendant's appeal is being considered. Judge Nolte will fix the amount of bail, but counsel for Rosegrant has the right of appeal if it considers the amount too high.

Rowe's first step will be to file a motion for a new trial. In the event of an adverse ruling he said he would take the case to the Missouri Supreme Court. It is not unusual for more than a year to elapse between the filing of an appeal and final decision.

Trial Cost $1670.

The cost to the State and St. Louis County to prepare for and conduct the trial of Rosegrant was $1670. Had there been an acquittal the State would also have had to bear the expense of fees for defense witnesses.

The principal item of expense was the jury. Impanelment cost the State $687 and cost during the trial was $510, a total of $1187. The cost to subpena the 70 veniremen was $52. Mileage allowances totaled $35. Ten veniremen drew pay, at $3 a day for one day, 20 for two days, 10 for three days, 30 for four days and the 12, who heard the case, for 11 days. The jurors and their custodians ate $228 worth of food, and used $30 worth of linen and towels.

Cost of Guarding Fiedler.

Fees and mileage allowances to 18 State's witnesses amounted to $97.40, with subpena charges $23. Cost of furnishing a guard in the courtroom during the trial was $66, while the cost of guarding Adolph Fiedler, one of the chief State's witnesses, was $108.

The county's bill to the State for the board of the defendant, at 75 cents a day, has reached $150. The fee of the Prosecuting Attorney for his work in the case was $12.50. Fee due the Circuit Clerk for handling the various papers was $14.40.

Rowe has stated he received a substantial fee, paid in cash, as defense counsel.

Clay C. Rogers of Kansas City, also of defense counsel, participated "through courtesy," Rowe said. His law firm has been active in behalf of Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, defendant and sister of Supreme Court Judge Ernest M. Tipton.

which Hugh S. Johnson fixed a minimum retail price of 13 cents for one or 25 cents for two packages of the four popular cigarette brands, expires. The board, of which a cigarette manufacturer, Clay Williams, is chairman, must determine whether to continue this price level.

Information at NRA today forecast the board will grant a temporary extension of the cigarette price order pending an investigation to see how the minimum levels have operated. They were established to prevent stores specializing in other commodities from selling cigarettes at cost or lower as a customer bait.

Retail Motor Code Called Part of "Usurpation of State's Rights."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 6.—An indicated belief that the NRA retail motor code is only a link in the "national usurpation of state rights" was expressed today by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught.

Without giving an opinion in the argument of demurrers to the indictment of Jack Kinnebrew and O. G. Leadbetter, motor car dealers, Judge Vaught criticised Government attorneys for their contention that the retail sale of new cars and the trade-in of old ones is a transaction of interstate commerce.

"If this is true," the jurist said, "then Congress has the right to regulate the sale price of the suit of clothes you have on; the right to say what price I shall pay or a merchant shall charge for the shotgun shells I buy; and everything is interstate commerce, subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal Government."

Catalonia Secedes; Spain Under Martial Law

the situation, although as yet we have been unable to take the Government palace. We have ceased bombardment of the palace and are now awaiting dawn, when we will continue."

This message from the General was the first intimation in Madrid that a bombardment of the Government buildings had taken place.

Gen. Batet added that after the night's brush with armed citizens the city streets had become quiet.

The palace, after being in the hands of revolutionists through the night, was taken by Government troops shortly before dawn (Sunday), it was announced by the Government. Gen. Batet reported the building and the headquarters of the Ministry of the Interior were taken easily, and that numerous prisoners had been captured. Officials had left.

The Catalonian independence movement gained impetus when the Town Council of Barcelona announced its allegiance to the Catalonian Republic.

Moroccan Troops Recalled.

Madrid, thoroughly alarmed by an insurrection of major proportions in Catalonia, immediately issued orders for the recall of Spanish troops in Morocco. The soldiers in Africa were ordered to embark at once at Ceuta and to proceed to Barcelona. Such reinforcement of the garrison at Barcelona was regarded imperative because it was reported some of the troops now garrisoned in Catalonia, particularly those in Lerida, had aligned themselves with the independence movement.

In his appeal for aid Companys had asked his supporters to arm themselves with any weapons available—clubs, knives or bombs.

The arrest of President Companys, Manuel Azana, former Premier and former Minister of War at Madrid who is identified with the Catalonian independence movement, and "other rebels" was ordered by Gen. Francisco Franco, who under the decree of martial law is in charge of military operations in Spain.

Gen. Franco issued orders for the dispatch of airplane squadrons equipped with machine guns and bombing and reconnaissance planes to depart for Catalonia at daybreak.

Warships from all the bases on the Mediterranean Sea, including Valencia and Cartagena, were ordered to the vicinity of Barcelona. The bombardment of Barcelona from the sea, if necessary, was ordered.

As Gen. Franco's plans for suppression of the rebellion progressed instructions were to all available garrison to converge on the revolting State.

Railway Seized.

Officials of the Catalonian railroad who came to Madrid from Barcelona by airplane told the Government the belligerent separatists had taken complete possession of all railroad stations, ousting the regular employes.

The Government summarily dismissed Pedro Rico from the office of Mayor of Madrid. He had been head of the municipal government since the beginning of the new republic. No explanations were made. It is known that Rico was a follower of Martinez Barrios, who has repudiated the Government of Premier Lerroux. Rico was succeeded as head of the city government by Lieutenant-Colonel Pareja.

A commander of a detachment of troops patrolling in Madrid fired on a sergeant and 15 soldiers who were attempting to desert to the rebels. Two soldiers were killed and their companions surrendered.

Battle of Broadcasters.

Each hour the Ministry of Education here issued radio broadcasts of developments, giving frequent assurances that the central Government had the situation in control.

Meanwhile a Catalonian station was sounding a call to arms "to defend liberty." In one of the Catalonian broadcasts it was announced troops had attacked the headquarters of the commercial industrial employes in Barcelona shattering windows with hand grenades. The Catalonian announcer also asserted that Catalonians guarding the Government Palace were exchanging shots with soldiers on side streets.

Leads Rebels in Spain

DIEGO MARTINEZ BARRIOS

The Government replied with a radio announcement that the chief of staff of the Portuguese army at Lisbon had made an offer of military support to the Government.

The next radio report from the Government stated that Gen. Batet had started to bombard the Catalonian radio station to put an end to the dissemination of "false news."

At 11 p. m., following the proclamation of martial law troops began moving into Madrid, concentrating at strategic points, from nearby barracks. They had full war equipment, and wore steel helmets. Six regiments were placed in charge of the Extremist district.

Meanwhile Madrid was virtually isolated from the provinces, with communications severed, the only open channels being used for official messages. The Extremists began a series of isolated bombings.

Lerroux's Statement.

Immediately following the announcement from Barcelona, Premier Lerroux by radio announced to the people of Spain that the revolution had reached its height with the proclamation of a Catalonian republic, but that the rest of the provinces of Spain had announced their loyalty to the Government.

"We deplore this attitude with our entire hearts but we hold no vengeance," the Premier said of the Catalonian secession. "The Government has found it necessary to declare martial law throughout Spain and the law will be applied in full force. The army in Asturias already has taken charge of the situation there and in Madrid the movement is dominated."

While he was speaking disturbers attempted to set fire to a motion picture theater in the heart of Madrid, but were repulsed.

About midnight it was reported rebellious forces had been routed at Oviedo. Gen. Edward Lopez Ochoa boarded an airplane for Ovieda to take charge.

Fighting in the capital continued. The rebels once more attacked the Ministry of the Interior, guards replying with machine-gun fire.

Cabinet in Continuous Session.

The Ministry remained in continuous session to consider measures for enforcing martial law throughout the country. It was announced that Premier Lerroux would ask Congress for increased power to deal with the situation.

As Ochoa left to take over command at Oviedo from Gen. Jose Bosch, who apparently had been unable to handle the situation, Gen. Manuel Goded offered his services to the Government.

The Premier announced that President Niceto Alcala Zamora had signed a decree confiscating all automobiles, motorcycles, bicycles and trucks for the use of troops. The use of vehicles except under special permit was prohibited.

Attempted Assassination.

Extremists attempted to assassinate the Minister of Agriculture, Jiminez Fernandez, when his automobile passed through Alcala street, near the Bank of Spain. He escaped, and guards patrolling the bank district charged the attackers, who fled.

(London dispatches quoted a British news agency as saying fighting was progressing in dozens of smaller towns in the interior. At San Sebastian all available hospital accommodation was filled, even the disused wards of the military hospital. Many were reported suffering from dreadful wounds inflicted by dumdum bullets. These dispatches said it was known the Socialists had installed a wireless station somewhere in Central Spain, through which orders were being distributed throughout the country, but Government forces were unable to locate the station.)

Telephone Office Attacked.

Forces at the Central Telephone Exchange engaged in a half hour fight with invaders, finally driving them back. The office of Capt. Logan Rock, a Kentuckian, chief of the Spanish Telephone Co., was riddled with bullets during the attack. Rock was in another part of the building at the time and was not hurt.

Gen. Virgilio Cabanellas, in charge of Castile Province, issued a proclamation that all rebels should present themselves in two hours or "suffer the consequences." He prohibited groups of any kind from gathering in the streets and announced any infraction of military rules would be handled by a summary court-martial. All persons carrying arms were to be court-martialed immediately.

Fighting in Madrid.

Soon after nightfall fighting broke out in Madrid, starting near the home of the Premier in an exclusive residential section. The government sent machine gun detachments.

Red Cross wagons were busy carrying victims to hospitals. Blasts of rifle and pistol fire, punctuated by the heavier roll of machine guns swift down O'Donnel street which the home of Lerroux is situated. The street was cleared by the fire of the Federal forces.

Another group of rebels suddenly swarmed across the Plaza Cideles just in front of the Associated Press office. The extremists opened fire with machine guns. Civil Guards charged and broke the Extremist lines in front of the Ministry of War, the Ministry of Communications and the Bank of Spain, and the rebels retreated. The retreat turned into a rout down the Avenue Castellana, the Avenue Alcala and the Prado as the Civil Guards brought their own machine guns into action.

Then heavy firing broke out at the Puerta Del Sol where the Ministry of the Interior is situated. Forces poured into the plaza there from five streets. After the outbreak there was ended the city became more quiet, although sporadic firing was heard in many districts, especially the labor centers. In one district the revolutionaries captured 20 Civil Guards and held them as hostages.

Hostile Recruits.

Throughout Catalonia the militia was reinforced by thousands of volunteers. Most of these volunteers were recruited from the militia of the Separatists, who are enemies of the central Government and whose leader is Miguel Badia, who recently resigned under fire from Madrid as Commissioner of Catalonian Public Order.

In Valencia, 47 leaders of the Young Socialist and Communist organizations were arrested during a clandestine revolutionary meeting.

For several hours, the red flag of Communism flew over the town hall at Alcudia, Valencia, but 50 of the extremist leaders were arrested when Civil Guards retook the city.

In a fight with Extremists in Burgos, a lieutenant colonel of Civil Guards was killed.

A Civil Guard corporal and a Socialist were killed when Extremists renewed firing in Mallen, from which they had been dislodged yesterday by an army detachment after cutting the international telephone cable.

Clashes occurred between troops and Extremists in many villages of Asturias and Biscay.

Authorities at the village of Villarrobledo reported that two Extremists were killed and several wounded when Civil Guards recaptured the town after rebels had proclaimed a Communist government, burned the town hall and the church, and cut light, power and communication lines.

Madrid Reservoir Bombed.

Madrid was seriously crippled today when rebels bombed the reservoir outlet of one of Madrid's main water sources, Colmenar Viejo. It was estimated that it would take two days to make the necessary repairs. Meanwhile, the army was ordered to carry water in trucks to affected parts of the city.

A detachment of soldiers took over the large machine shops in Atocha, one of Madrid's two central railway stations, where strikers attempted sabotage.

The street car and subway companies announced that all their workers who had gone on strike had been automatically discharged.

The area around Malaga was the scene of intense fighting. In the nearby town of Taba, eight men were wounded when workers attacked the Civil Guard barracks.

Following a reconnaisance patrol by airplane and aerial bombings as a protection to approaching troops, Government forces mopped up Mieres, Sama, and other mining towns in Asturias.

The firearms manufacturing center of Eibar as the scene of another minor encounter today in which one Socialist was killed and 12 persons were wounded.

Ex-Premier's Arrest Sought.

Official sources in Zaragoza said a warrant had been issued for the arrest of former Premier Barrios as the leader of the rebels in Aragon.

Manuel Cordero, former chief of the Socialist minority in Parliament and former president of the Socialist Workers' Union, was arrested at Malaga.

About 700 Extremists were reported to have surrendered to Government forces in Asturias, where the authorities were engaged in mopping-up campaign.

Three Socialists were killed when soldiers of the National Army recaptured the village of Colmena Viejo from them.

Hitler Amnesty Applies to Jews.

CROWD'S SHOUTS TURN TO SILENCE WHEN CARDINALS TOSS AWAY GAME

After Fourth Most of Applause Goes to "Hank" Greenberg — Only Few Jeers at Misplays of Frisch's Team.

INJURY TO DEAN IMPRESSES THRONG

Not Until Announcer Assures Them That Dizzy Is Not Seriously Hurt Does Tension Among Spectators Relax.

By E. ROY ALEXANDER,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

A huge crowd that jammed into Sportsman's Park yesterday for the fourth game of the World Series, hoping to cheer on Frankie Frisch's Cardinals, found less and less to shout about as the game proceeded, and ended the day by expending its vocal efforts in celebration of the performance of the Detroit Tigers' towering but lissom first baseman, "Hank" Greenberg.

Sports experts, who view the national game with critical eyes, pencil and statistics in hand, found much to criticise in the Cardinals' performance. So probably, did the fans, but with the exception of a few scattered jeers when "Pepper" Martin made his third error of the day, the faithful kept their comment to themselves and their immediate neighbors.

From the moment the game began, the crowd obviously wanted to use its lungs in an extraordinary way for its own team. Where Friday there was polite applause at each play, the Saturday crowd was ready and willing to open the diapason of its approval at even the slightest exhibition of workmanlike baseball on the part of the Cardinals.

Chances for Cheering Few.

After the fourth inning, when the Cardinals began to play baseball like it was an entirely new pastime, the excuse for cheering for the home team died away.

In the sudden and unexpected drama enacted in the fourth inning, when the great "Dizzy" Dean was hit on the head while gallantly volunteering for extra duty, the crowd's reactions were a striking reflection of the action on the field. It shouted with a great roar when Martin grounded to Gehringer, and ended with a groaning moan as Rogell took the ball from the Tiger second baseman, attempting to throw it to first base and hit Dean, and swiftly subsided into dead silence as the Cardinals' chief hope of winning the championship staggered over second base and collapsed in the dust.

As Cardinals and Tigers rushed to the crumpled pitcher, with Rogell standing beside him, punching his fist into his glove at realization of the possible enormity of the accident, the crowd was silent. When "Dizzy" was picked up by his brother, Paul, the faithful Mique Gonzales and others, and carried into the dugout, the stands murmured with speculation as to the effect the incident might have on the Cardinal chances.

Crowd Relaxes at News.

Later, when an amazing combination of scorable errors and bonehead baseball had long since silenced the fans, the announcer came running on the field with the news that "Dizzy is apparently all right," and the stands relaxed. From then on there was not much to cheer in the performance of the Cardinals, much to admire in the work of big "Hank" Greenberg, who had managed by the time the game ended to make four hits in five times at bat including two scoring two-baggers, and had made a beautiful pickup of Medwick's liner in the seventh.

At the opening of the game, all signs pointed to an occasion where whole-hearted shouting would be the order of the day. The players themselves seemed at more than usual tension and began by wrangling frequently with Umpire Reardon, behind the plate, who was liberally hooted by the fans, along with Manager Cochrane of the Tigers, who did most of the complaining.

Some Hooting Early.

The crowd found a chance to hoot again when Shortstop Rogell lost Frankie Frisch's grounder in the sun—neatest trick of the week—in the third inning, shouted lustily in the fourth when Orsatti piled into Rogell, like "Pop" Lumpkin, the great blocking halfback of Georgia Tech, and sent him spinning away from the ball.

It was in that inning that the Cardinals tied the score. It was in that inning, too, that "Dizzy" Dean, running for the slow-footed Virgil Davis, was hit in the head with Rogell's throw, which bounded so high that Greenberg, trotting back of first base, fielded it like a high fly from the bat.

Before Dean had been hit the Cardinals were shaky in the field. Afterward they collapsed. In the seventh, the fans set up a mighty cheer as Orsatti started after the same Greenberg's fly, gasped as he went in, instead of back, and growled in disappointment when he finally started back, too late to do more than get his gloved hand on the ball. The official scorer gave the Tigers' first baseman a double on that play, but the stands watched Orsatti and his teammates in stony disapproval as they trotted to the dugout at the close of the inning.

2000 in Line Early.

For the fourth game of the series, approximately 2000 fans had stood in the lines through yesterday's early morning hours, and had entertained themselves, once admitted to the park, by cheering for fun, playing cards, working cross-word puzzles and singing. The pavilion, in which several hundred seats lay empty in Friday's game also filled early yesterday, and even holders of reserved grandstand and box seats were at the park much more promptly than for the first game.

Among those present were: Governors Park of Missouri, Horner of Illinois and Futrell of Arkansas; Will Rogers, the humorist, George Raft and Joe E. Brown, movie actors—who were kept busy for a half hour before the game autographing score cards—Mayor Dickman, Burleigh Grimes, former Cardinal pitcher and hero of the 1931 World Series and Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, czar of baseball.

Everybody, it appeared, was set for a notable occasion. The over-eagerness of "Pepper" Martin and his teammates contributed nothing. All in all, it wasn't a very satisfying day.

Selling Places in Line.

Before last midnight nearly 200 persons already were standing in two lines along Sullivan avenue, from Grand boulevard to Spring avenue, nearly all of them expecting to sell their places before opening time this morning for 75 cents or a $1.

Police, however, began to break up what appeared to be a profitable waiting game, when they told those in the line, mostly youths, that they would be allowed only as much space as one person should occupy.

"Do you think that's right?" Police Lieutenant Kelting asked those holding long benches. "People are here from all over the country to see the game, and you want as much space as five persons." He told a gray-haired man, who was looking for a space close to the gate to sit down on another man's bench and warned the bench owner not to try to charge anything.

A woman who had erected a long bench of boards and boxes at the head of one line was told to take it down or the police would. About 20 waiters at the head of each line had been there since the gates were closed yesterday, figuring on selling more than one place. Those sleeping on cots were not disturbed, but police told them they would have to fold up their beds and shorten the line early this morning.

One youth who had agreed with an out-of-town visitor to hold space in the line for five, dropped out when the police told him he would have to move up, and took a place at the end of the line. He had collected $1 in advance.

Besides the waiting line, many persons were sleeping in automobiles parked on streets near the park, apparently waiting until early morning to take their places in the bleacher lines. Among these cars, were many from other states.

MOVE TO REAPPRAISE ESTATE OF T. W. GARLAND OVERRULED

State Officials Lose in Efforts to Obtain Greater Inheritance Tax Assessment.

The petition of Attorney-General McKittrick and State Treasurer Nacy asking for reappraisal of the estate of Thomas W. Garland, head of a women's clothing store bearing his name, was overruled yesterday by Probate Judge Holtcamp. The reappraisal was sought for the purpose of obtaining a greater inheritance tax assessment.

In the report of the appraiser the net valuation of the estate was placed at $80,920, levying an inheritance tax of $707.65. The report set the actual value of Garland's stock in Thomas W. Garland, Inc., at $41,000, while the inventory, previously filed, carried it at its par value of $100 a share or a total of $401,391.

State officials said the stock should be assessed at higher value than the amount fixed by the appraiser, although not claiming that as much as $100 a share should be charged. Thomas B. Harlan, representing the estate, objected to reappraisal.

MAN, 71, KILLED BY AUTO ON HIS WAY TO CHURCH

Robert Buchanan Struck by Car of Thomas Pierce Jr. at Washington Boulevard and Sarah Street.

Robert Buchanan, 71-year-old cabinet maker, 4164 Maryland avenue, was killed when struck by an automobile last night as he attempted to cross Washington boulevard at Sarah street, while on his way to church.

The car was driven by Thomas Marshall, chauffeur for Thomas Pierce Jr., 21 Vandeventer place, who was a passenger. They told police Buchanan stepped from the south curb directly into the path of their eastbound automobile. The automatic signal was in their favor at the time, they said.

The body was identified at the Morgue by Buchanan's daughter, Mrs. Mary Smith.

Youth on Motorcycle Hits Woman; Both Injured.

Mrs. Anna Brendle, 52 years old, 4560 Page boulevard, suffered skull and other injuries last night when hit by a motorcycle ridden by Morris Nodiff, 19, 1207 Bayard avenue, in the 4500 block of Page boulevard. Both were given first-aid treatment at Missouri Baptist Hospital. Nodiff, whose jaws were fractured was later removed to City Hospital.

EX-OFFICIAL SOUGHT IN CHINA FOR THEFT OF NATIONAL ART

Former Curator of Museum Fled When Disappearance of Treasures Was Discovered.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 6.—Chinese authorities who discovered the theft of national art treasures valued at more than $20,000,000 from the Peiping Polac Museum, today started a search for the thieves.

The stolen objects included many irreplaceable relics of former Chinese imperial households—priceless objects of gold and jade. An investigation just concluded by a commission appointed by the Nanking courts disclosed that hundreds of pieces are missing from the collection, others being replaced by clever imitations fashioned by skilled artisans of Peiping.

Among the persons sought is Yih Pei-Chi, former director of the Palace Museum, once Minister of Agriculture and Mining and head of several universities. He disappeared when the scandal broke, but Chinese newspapers recently reported he was living in the Japanese concession at Tientsin.

Succumbs at 75 in California; Spent 24 Years in St. Louis.

Charles R. Peddle, purchasing agent for the Pennsylvania Railroad here for 24 years until his retirement in 1928, died of infirmities of age yesterday at his home in Santa Monica, Cal. He was 75 years old.

Mr. Peddle, who came here from Indianapolis, had been connected with the Pennsylvania for 52 years. He is survived by his second wife, Mrs. Eliza Chambers Peddle; a son, James B. Peddle, and a daughter, Mrs. Robert Abeles, both of St. Louis. The funeral will be held Tuesday at Santa Monica.

INDICTED CALIFORNIA JUDGE GIVES BOND IN BRIBERY PLOT

Justice Gavin W. Craig Accused of Conspiracy to Obstruct Mail Fraud Case.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 6.—Gavin W. Craig, Associate Justice of the State District Court of Appeals, surrendered today on an indictment charging conspiracy to bribe public officials and obstruct justice in the Italo Petroleum Corporation mail fraud case. He said he would at once take a leave of absence from the bench.

Justice Craig, who was indicted with two other persons yesterday, was released on $5000 bond pending a hearing. The others indicted are Mrs. Helen Werner, Los Angeles politician, and Joseph Weinblatt, oil man. They and Justice Craig are accused of conspiring to raise $50,000 and use it to "fix" former United States Attorney-General William D. Mitchell and former United States Attorney Samuel W. McNabb here.

Assistant United States District Attorney William Fleet Palmer said the Government had no evidence that any approach was ever made to either Mitchell or McNabb.

OBJECTION TO PARTITION SALE OF TWO LOTS IN CEMETERY

Attorney for Three Heirs of Frank Ames Files Petition in St. Louis County Case.

Objection to partition sale of two lots in Oak Grove Cemetery, St. Louis County, belonging to the estate of Frank Ames, 947 Laurel avenue, shoe merchant, who died in 1931, was made yesterday before Circuit Judge Ryan by Albert Chandler, attorney for three heirs. Suit asking for the sale of the lots, along with other estate realty in this city valued at $21,000, was filed by two sisters-in-law of Ames, named among beneficiaries under his will.

Chandler said cemetery property cannot be legally sold in such proceedings and that the way to sell it is by agreement of all heirs. According to his view, as expressed to the court, when the head of a family buys a lot in a cemetery it is for the purpose of "securing a final resting place and last round-up for himself and family." Accordingly, he asked that his demurrer to the petition be sustained.

Harold S. Cook, attorney for plaintiffs, explained that Ames purchased the Oak Grove lots for speculative purposes. "There are no graves in either lot and Mr. Ames is buried in Bellefontaine Cemetery," Cook said. However, the court was relieved of the necessity of ruling on the demurrer when Cook asked leave to file an amended petition in which, he said, request for sale of the two lots will not be included.

ST. CLAIR COUNTY RELIEF TO UNDERGO INVESTIGATION

Fact-Finding Committee Hears Reports Hundreds of Undeserving Are on Rolls.

The Illinois State Relief Commission has made an appropriation for an investigation of relief conditions in St. Clair County, Duncan Smith, chairman of the county Fact-Finding Committee on Relief, was notified yesterday by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the State Commission.

The action of the State Commission was taken after the Fact-Finding Committee, appointed last June had heard statements of investigators and others that hundreds of undeserving persons were on the relief rolls, complaints were ignored, and that merchants cheated relief clients. The county committee requested investigation of the statements.

"The greatest concern of the Fact-Finding Committee is the reduction of the relief load in St. Clair County," Smith said. He pointed out that the public was thoroughly aroused over the spending of huge sums for relief and was entitled to the most efficient administration obtainable.

Curative Qualities of Healing Salve, Soap and Liniment Are Questioned in Federal Libel.

The therapeutic properties of Dr. Sayman's Wonder Soap, Healing Salve and Liniment were challenged by the United States Food and Drug Administration yesterday when a libel was filed in Federal Court, alleging that they are misbranded.

T. M. Sayman Products Co., 2117 Franklin avenue, which markets these and more than 100 other preparations nationally, recommends the liniment for ailments ranging from aching teeth through painters' colic to ulcers and whooping cough, and the soap and salve for such things as chapped hands, blackheads, ivy poisoning and salt rheum. The remedies are equally effective, according to the company's literature, whether used on horses and other animals, or human beings.

These claims, the Government alleges, are "false and fraudulent." The Food and Drug Administration, acting through District Attorney Blanton, asks that the company be required to alter its labels and advertising circulars to conform with the truth and the pure food and drug laws. Violation of these laws is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $200 for the first offense.

Answer Is Indicated.

The company may file its answer, demanding a hearing, and in that event the issues would be thrashed out in Federal Court.

That this will ensue was indicated in the indignant comment of T. M. Sayman, 81-year-old founder of the business, which he established by hawking his products on street corners and which prospered to such extent that he was able, a few years ago, to donate the 2400-acre Roaring River Park to the State, and quite recently to buy the Town Club Building for about $300,000 and announce plans to rehabilitate that business women's organization.

"The Food and Drug Administration is a group of doctors who are down on all proprietary medicines," Sayman said. "You tell them that my goods are sold without a line of newspaper advertising in almost every drug house in the United States. We back up everything we sell with a money-back guarantee.

"I started selling my products on street corners. I have sold them in every one of the 48 states of the United States. We make 166 preparations, soaps, medicines and toilet goods. I am going on 81 years of age, and I can outwork any man in any kind of work, including wood-chopping and concrete pouring, they want to name.

"Never Been Arrested."

"I have never been arrested or misrepresented anything yet. Everything I buy I pay cash for. I would not be where I am now had I been deceiving people. We make the best blood medicine here that ever has been manufactured."

He told, then, of two recent cures he had effected on neighbors, whom he named, and added:

"I used to perform those feats in front of the public all over the United States.

"Why, I can put my hands flat on the floor and stand with my legs stiff. Can you do that? Of course, not."

With the libel the Government filed analyses of the three products by staff chemists of the Food and Drug Administration, and statements on the therapeutic value as indicated by analysis.

The salve is described in the reports of the chemists as a yellow-brown paste, consisting essentially of boric acid, zinc ointment and camphor in a petrolatum base.

The liniment, the chemist report, is composed of alcohol, water, chloroform, camphor, oil of sassafras, capsicum, ammonium compounds, turpentine and plant extractives. Sodium salt of a vegetable oil, water and a minute amount of perfume compose the soap, the chemists report.

Statement Filed With Libel.

Henry E. Moskey, veterinarian of the Food and Drug Administration, in his statement filed with the libel, deals with the products when used on animals. The soap and salve, used alone or together, are not effective for the purposes recommended, and the liniment is not effective for the purposes for which it is recommended, including colic in horses, Moskey says.

Dr. Paul W. Spickard, medical officer of the Food and Drug Administration, deals with the products when used on human beings. Reciting the conditions for which they are said to be effective, Dr. Spickard says these claims are false, and adds that his opinion is identical with that of "the consensus of present-day reliable medical opinion."

FOOTBALL STAND COLLAPSES

Six Spectators Hurt at Furman-Georgia Game.

By the Associated Press.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Oct. 6.—Collapse of a stand on Manly Field during the Furman-Georgia football game today plunged nearly 600 spectators to the ground. Six of them were taken to hospitals.

J. D. Robertson of Greenville suffered a leg injury and possibly internal injuries. The five others were only slightly hurt. The highest seats were more than 20 feet above the ground. It was said the collapse was due to the sinking of timber supports in the rain-soaked ground.

WORLD SERIES CROWD CELEBRATES NOISILY

Movies, Cafes, Hotels Packed —Night Auto Traffic Equals That at Noon.

Out-of-town visitors here for the World Series games and the Washington-Illinois football game celebrated loud and long in downtown St. Louis last night.

Traffic, which normally moves rapidly on a Saturday night, was as heavy as at midday and there were few policemen to direct it. During the dinner hour and immediately afterward, Olive street and Washington avenue were filled with a long slow-moving line of automobiles. Parking lots and garages did a greatly increased business.

An American Legion drum and bugle corps paraded through the downtown streets and out to Kingshighway boulevard, stopping at principal hotels for the benefit of visitors. It wanted to play for Dizzy Dean at the Forest Park Hotel but were asked not to disturb the pitcher.

Hotel dining rooms, bars and cafes were filled to capacity and many were turning away customers at the peak hour, about 8 o'clock.

In one dining room a group of Texans forgot all about the ball game they had come to see and cheered because Texas University had beaten Notre Dame at football.

ALABAMA GOVERNOR ASSURES THE GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK

Says Rights of Lawyers Held in Connection With Scottsboro Case Will Be Protected.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 6.—The Governor of Alabama today assured the Governor of New York that the legal rights of two men charged with attempting to bribe a key witness in the Scottsboro case would be protected and that they were in no personal danger.

Gov. Lehman of New York asked Gov. Miller by telegram to investigate alleged "forcible" removal of Daniel Swift and Sol Kone, New York lawyers, from Nashville, Tenn., Thursday to Huntsville, Ala., to answer the bribing charges.

In his reply, Gov. Miller said the two men were legally extradited from Tennessee where they were arrested at the requst of Alabama authorities.

Mrs. Victoria Price has said she was offered $1000 to sign an affidavit repudiating her testimony in seven trials in the case in which she accused nine Negroes of attacking her and Ruby Bates on a freight train March 25, 1931.

Cutter Towing Disabled Ship.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Oct. 6.—The Coast Guard cutter Carrabassett sent a wireless message to its base here today that it had in tow the SS. Western Sword, which dropped a propellor about 28 miles north of Jupiter Light. The Carrabassett left from Port Everglades in response to a call for aid.

JUDGE COMMENDS VERDICT IN LAKE MURDER OF GIRL

He Tells Jury Death Sentence for Robert A. Edwards, 21 Years Old, Meets With His Approval

FATHER OF YOUTH SEEKING APPEAL

Boy on Way to Court Had Expressed Hope He Would Escape the Electric Chair.

By the Associated Press.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 6.—Convicted of murdering his neighborhood girl because he had a new sweetheart, Robert Allen Edwards, youthful mine surveyor, tonight prepared to appeal from a verdict that recommended he be put to death in the electric chair.

The 21-year-old youth, who called himself a "lady's man," sat with bowed head when a Luzerne County jury brought in its finding, ". . . . Guilty of murder in the first degree . . . and recommend the death penalty."

Edwards rubbed his face nervously as the words were read.

At the home he may never see again, his mother collapsed on hearing of the verdict.

Judge William A. Valentine, expressing approval of the outcome, said he would pronounce sentence later. Edwards was taken back to his cell. He trembled as they led him from the courtroom, out into the drizzling rain. It was raining the night he and Freda McKechnie, his neighborhood sweetheart, went for their last swim.

Going to Hear Verdict.

"This is the ride I have been waiting for," he said when they took him to the courthouse. "I am hoping—for anything but the death penalty."

He was smiling then, but when he entered the courtroom he suddenly scowled and turned pale. The jurors, who had retired with the case last night, filed in. A slip of paper was handed to the Court Clerk, who read from it, slowly.

Then Judge Valentine said: "I commend you for your verdict. It meets with my approval. You have performed your duty."

Defense to Appeal.

Defense counsel, who had pictured Edwards as a youth of "amateurish mentality" who had been "indiscreet," notified the Court an appeal would be taken. Prosecutor Thomas M. Lewis, who had denounced Edwards as "the cruelest, coldest defendant this courtroom has ever heard," called it a "very proper" verdict.

The jury found Edwards guilty of taking Miss McKechnie to Harvey's Lake the night of July 31 and killing her with a blackjack as they swam together.

The body was found floating in the water. The young woman was an expectant mother.

Edwards was arrested and accused of killing her so he could marry Margaret L. Crain, the East Aurora, N. Y., girl he had met at college.

Edwards' father, Daniel, a mine "boss," who had said he would "stick by my boy to the end," was at home when the jury reported. He left shortly afterward to confer with his son and defense counsel about the appeal.

Attorney Phillips announced after an extended conference with Edwards in his cell that "the fight will go on." When Phillips left Edwards was smiling for the first time since tne jury reported.

The dead girl's father, George McKechnie, received the news on the front porch of his home.

"All I have to say is that I am mighty sorry for Dan Edwards and his wife and little boy," he said. "But Robert Edwards took Freda's life and justice must be done."

Medical experts disagreed as to the exact cause of Freda's death. One said she died of shock after being struck over the head, another said she was killed by "a blow that would fell an ox." The prosecution contended Edwards hoped to make it appear that she had drowned.

Testifying in his own defense, the youth said she died after falling in a boat—and that he hit her with the blackjack in a panic-stricken moment.

After the trial, J. Harold Flannery, assistant prosecutor, spoke of "the other girl" in the case.

"I do not blame Miss Craine," he said, "she was deceived and misled by this man as we all were until he was unmasked."

PATTERSON CHARGES DECEIT

Missouri Senator Denounces Roosevelt Administration.

By the Associated Press.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Oct. 6.—Senator Roscoe C. Patterson, Republican nominee for re-election, charged in an address here today that the Roosevelt administration "is now engaged in a campaign of deception and misrepresentation, unparalleled in American history, hoping to deceive the American people into giving it another lease of power."

"I again warn the American people to awaken to the danger confronting them and to beware of this administration," he said. "It has not been honest with them in the past; it is not honest with them now, and its representations and claims cannot be accepted at their face value."

Henri Farre, Artist, Dies.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Henri Farre, 63-year-old French artist, whose service as an aviator in the World War won for him the title of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, died in his studio today. He was 63. At one time official painter for the French army, navy and air corps, Farre won a gold medal in the French 1934 salon for his painting "The Group of My Sons." His four sons were killed in the war.

HUEY LONG'S BROTHERS NEARLY COME TO BLOWS

They Are Supporting Opposing Candidates for Louisiana Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press.

ALEXANDRIA, La., Oct. 6.—Earl and Julius Long, brothers of Senator Huey P. Long threatened to punch each other today.

The Senator is supporting Lieut. Gov. John B. Fournet for the Supreme Court against Judge Thomas Porter. Julius Long is campaigning for Porter and Earl Long backing Fournet.

Julius Long charged in an address that Earl Long had "sold out" to the Senator. His brother, who was in the crowd, lunged forward. "Beat the devil out of him!" his friends shouted. "Let him come on," Julius Long yelled, clenching his fists. They were prevented, however, from coming together.

The Third District Supreme Court campaign today grew more intense as speakers made last minute appeals before next Tuesday's second election, which was forced by Senator Long. The seat to be filled is that of Long's candidate, Justice Winston Overton, who died just before the September primary. Judge Porter, Long opponent of Overton, was declared the party nominee by the Baton Rouge District Court, but the Supreme Court suspended the lower court's judgment.

POLICE QUESTION SEVEN IN DEATH OF GAMBLER

Jimmy Hayes Reported Involved in Dispute in Detroit Over Killing of St. Louis Gangster.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 6.—Seven men, employes of a night club which Jimmy Hayes is thought to have visited the night before he was killed are being questioned by police. Hayes, operator of gambling resorts in Toledo and Cleveland, was found early Thursday morning in an alley, shot to death.

At the night club, officers said, Hayes was involved in a dispute over the death of Milford Jones St. Louis gangster, killed nearly two years ago in the Stork Club here. Police said that Hayes was a friend of Jones.

TWO NEGROES ATTACK WOMAN

Kentucky Posse Hunts Them; She Is Found Unconscious.

By the Associated Press.

PINEVILLE, Ky., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Maggie Dunn, a 30-year-old widow, was beaten into unconsciousness and attacked by two Negroes near here today. Posses of several hundred men with bloodhounds tonight were searching Bell, Knox and Harlan counties for the assailants.

Mrs. Dunn was taken to a hospital here after her son, Aron,, 10, called neighbors. She had gone with Aaron to the edge of a wood near her home at Four-Mile to pick wild grapes. The Negroes overtook the woman and knocked her down with a rock. The boy fled to a neighbor's home. Circuit Judge Gilbert and Commonwealth's Attorney Smith said that if taken alive the Negroes would be sent to Harlan for safe keeping.

Finds Lighted Bomb Under Auto.

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 6.—Police Inspector J. F. C. B. Vance found a bomb beneath his motor car today. He extinguished the lighted fuse. The package was taken to a vacant lot and the fuse relighted. The terrific explosion was said to indicate a carefully-prepared nitro-glycerine bomb. Vance received a bomb through the mail early this year.

FOUR CAUGHT IN HALF HOUR AFTER BREAK AT INDIANAPOLIS

Police Shoot as They Chase Escaped Prisoners Through Downtown Streets.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 6.—Four prisoners escaped from jail tonight but were recaptured within half an hour. One was Theodore Hulbert, army deserter who has been identified as having assisted Melvin Blanton, an army prisoner, in a sensational escape last summer from Governor's Island, the army post off lower Manhattan.

Others in the escape were Ernest (Red) Giberson, accused of implication in the murder of Police Sergt. Lester Jones during a hold-up; Roy Love, 19, held on a charge of "auto banditry," and August Cummings, held for "auto banditry" and robbery.

Several shots were fired by police as they pursued the prisoners through downtown streets. The four had sawed a bar from a cell block and lowered themselves to the ground with a rope.

YALE ANTI-FASCIST PROTEST

University Criticised for Receiving Visiting Italian Students.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—A visit to Yale University of more than 100 students representing 26 Italian universities today was criticised in a statement from the New Haven branch of the American League against War and Fascism, which condemns Yale's open acceptance of the delegation.

An unidentified man, who shouted "down with Mussolini" as four bus loads of students drove past, was beaten. The league statement said: "We feel the public is entitled to know that the Italian students not only attacked men who used their prerogative of free speech, but that two women, who also condemned fascism in their presence, were beaten by these representatives of Italian culture."

RELIEF CAMPAIGN FOR $3,250,000 FOR 89 AGENCIES

E. G. Steger, Director, Gives Out List of Organizations That Are Seeking Support.

The list of 89 welfare agencies which will participate in the third annual United Relief Campaign, Nov. 14 to 28, was made public last night by E. G. Steger, director of United Relief. A tentative goal of $3,250,000 has been set for the campaign.

This year the list is virtually the same as last, when 91 agencies of the Community Fund, Catholic Charities and Jewish Federation joined in the appeal. It is possible that two or three agencies may yet be added to this year's list.

A joint board of review, of which Sidney Maestre is chairman, recommends agencies for inclusion in the list and the final decision rests with directors of United Relief, Inc., of which Charles Nagel is president. Members of the board of review, in addition to Maestre, are: J. Harry Rehme, John E. Riley, Edwin H. Wagner and John J. Nangle, representing Catholic Charities; Aaron S. Rauh, Charles M. Rice, Ernest W. Stix and David P. Wohl, representing the Jewish Federation, and Robert C. Day, David D. Metcalfe and Hugh McK. Jones, representing with Maestre, the Community Fund.

The agencies participating this year, grouped according to the nature of their work, are listed below:

Agencies Giving Home Relief: American Red Cross, St. Louis and Webster Groves chapters; Bureau for Homeless Men; Bureau for Women; Jewish Social Service Bureau; St. Louis County Welfare Association; St. Louis Provident Association; Society of St. Vincent de Paul.

WILLIAM D. WARNER, HEAD OF FUR COMPANY, IS DIVORCED

Does Not Contest Suit; Wife Has Former Name, Mrs. Genevieve T. Dempster, Restored.

Mrs. Genevieve Warner obtained a divorce yesterday from William D. Warner, president of the W. F. Warner & Co. Inc., fur dealers, in Circuit Judge McElhinney's court at Clayton.

She alleged general indignities. They were married in 1924, she testified, and separated several weeks ago. Her former name, Mrs. Genevieve T. Dempster, was restored. They have no children.

Warner was divorced in 1923 by Mrs. Stella Warner, whom he married in 1909. He filed an entry of appearance and a general denial, but did not contest the suit. He lives at 500 Holmes avenue, Oakland.

Charges Wife Neglects Children.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Harold B. Herschman, in a suit for divorce filed against Winifred Jones Herschmann, daughter of Mattison B. Jones, political leader, charged that his wife, against his wishes, had been associating with George F. Willard, Adminton instructor, formerly of Boston. Herschmann said his wife saw Willard almost daily, neglecting their two children, whose custody he asks.

SUITS AGAINST FORMER BROKERAGE PARTNERS

Knight, Dysart & Gamble Customers Seek $39,474 From Sale of Collateral.

Three suits for a total of $39,474 against former partners of the brokerage firm of Knight, Dysart & Gamble, 401 Olive street, were filed in Circuit Court yesterday. Defendants named in the petition with the firm are Harry Hall Knight, Clarence O. Gamble and Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

It is alleged that collateral owned by customers represened in the claims and against whom the firm had debit balances on their accounts was sold without their knowledge and that the collateral's actual value was in excess of the amount for which it was sold. The suits ask for judgments for the difference between the real value and the debit balance.

One by Herr Estate.

One of the claims is in behalf of the estate of Mrs. Barbara Herr of Belleville, seeking $8685. The claim is filed in the name of Public Administrator Walter Sheehan, who is in charge of her estate. Another claim is by her daughter, Miss Amelia B. Herr, suing for $10,678.

The third suit is by Mrs. Blanche Koster Trautmann, 41 Hillvale drive, who asks for $20,111. She alleges she had a joint account with the late Alphonse N. Herr, son of Mrs. Barbara Herr, and in April, 1928, the account, without her consent, was put in the sole name of Herr. According to her petition there was a debit balance in the account amounting to $70,092 in 1929 and some of the securities held as collateral were sold for $23,222 in excess of the debt. Mrs. Trautmann avers that the remainder of the securities, valued at $17,000, were credited to the account of Herr, and although she owned a one-half interest in the collateral she was not credited with her share of the balance.

A member of the firm said he had not seen the petitions and was not familiar with the transactions.

Previous Suits.

Sept. 24 suits asking for a total judgment of $16,721 were filed in behalf of Miss Herr and her mother's estate against Waldheim, Platt & Co. It was alleged that securities deposited in their accounts with the firm were transferred to A. N. Herr's account without their consent. A member of the Waldheim-Platt firm said if the accounts were changed it was done with proper authority. Peter T. Barrett and Joseph Block are counsel for petitioners. Herr, an accountant, died in 1931.

UPPER CLASS MUST MIX WITH HUMBLE FOLK IN ITALY

Fascist Party Secretary to Bring University Students in Contact With Workers.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 6.—In the Fascist leveling-out process the so-called privileges classes must learn to mix with humbler folk, by order of the party secretary, Achille Starace. Starace has warned that caste barriers will not interfere with the selection of Fascist party leaders.

Emphasis was laid on plans to bring university students into contact with the people "in the field of labor." "Why should professional men not have practical experience in the work they are called upon to direct from their offices?" he demanded in a statement.

"Schools and books are not sufficient sources of learning, engineers, chemists, landowners and their kind should do a period of service in factories or the field before receiving their titles." Mussolini is in full accord with the pronouncements of Starace.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK PROGRAM IN ST. LOUIS

Firemen to Speak in Schools and Give Demonstrations on Twelfth Blvd.

This is National Fire Prevention Week by Presidential proclamation. State, county and municipal governments have concurred in the proclamation and the fire department, schools and civic organizations are assisting in the campaign to advise the public of fire hazard.

The program in St. Louis will include the distribution of home safety leaflets to school children and advertising through fireplug signs and posters. Uniformed firemen will visit each grade school, making talks on fire prevention.

High schools will hold auditorium sessions at which public speaking classes will discuss fire hazard. Programs will be broadcast on the radio, and presented in movie theaters.

Each noon hour during the week city firemen will give exhibitions of fire fighting on a tower erected at 412 North Twelfth boulevard. Each maneuver will be explained over a loudspeaker by Fire Chief O'Boyle.

MASON CONTRACTORS' AGREEMENT UP TO NRA

Hearing on Wages and Other Working Conditions to Be Held Oct. 22.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The NRA announced today that employes and members of the mason contractors division of the constructing industry in the St. Louis metropolitan area had submitted an agreement on wages, hours and other conditions of employment for approval by the National Industrial Recovery Board.

Public hearing on the agreement was scheduled for Oct. 22 at the Statler Hotel in St. Louis. The construction industry code provides for regional labor agreements to be reached by collective bargaining and submitted to the board.

The St. Louis agreement provides a wage scale as follows: Bricklayers $1.50 an hour, bricklayer foremen $1.62½ an hour, stone mason $1.25 an hour, stone mason foremen $1.37½ an hour. Bricklayer tenders 87½c an hour and stone mason helpers $1 an hour.

The agreement calls for a five-day, 40-hour week and an 8-hour day for which regular hours would be between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

When two shifts are employed the hours would be eight for the first and seven and one-half for the second. In the case of three shifts, each would be seven and one-half hours. Exceptions to the regular hours would be allowed on emergency work that could not be done during regular hours with safety or without serious inconvenience to others.

The participants in the agreement include the Mason Contractors' Benevolent and Protective Association, the Associated Stone Mason Contractors, the Allied Building Contractors' Association, the Bricklayers' Union No. 1 of Missouri, the International Hod-Carriers' Building and Common Laborers' of America, the Stone Masons' Union of Missouri, and the Allied Building Crafts' Union.

The NRA set Oct. 19 as the deadline for criticism, objections or suggestions concerning the agreement.

Coal Production Up 5 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Bureau of Mines report production of soft coal in the week ended Sept. 29 reached 7,300,000 tons, an increase of 5 per cent over the preceding week.

In the corresponding week last year, 424,000 fewer tons were mined. Pennsylvania anthracite production declined 143,000 tons.

DEMOCRATIC CITY CAMPAIGN OPENS WEDNESDAY NIGHT

U. S. Senator William H. Dieterich to Make Speech at North St. Louis Turner Hall.

United States Senator William H. Dieterich of Illinois will speak Wednesday night at the formal opening of the Democratic city campaign at North St. Louis Turner Hall, Twentieth and Salisbury streets.

Instead of placing direction of the campaign in the hands of a special committee, Robert E. Hannegan, recently elected chairman of the City Committee, said the City Committee would take complete charge.

"We will make an intensive campaign until Nov. 6," Hannegan said yesterday. "With complete harmony in every ward organization, we will exert every effort to elect a complete city ticket. We are going to work just as hard to elect constables and justices of the peace as we work for the Congressional candidates at the head of the ticket."

Other speakers at the Wednesday night meeting will include Congressman John J. Cochran, candidate for re-election from the Thirteenth District; Congressman James R. Claiborne, seeking re-election in the Twelfth District, and Thomas C. Hennings Jr., Congressional nominee in the Eleventh District.

The nine nominees for Circuit Judge, three for State Senator, 19 for State Representative and other candidates will be introduced.

Campaign headquarters have been opened on the ground floor at the southeast corner of Twelfth boulevard and Olive street and will be in charge of State Senator Joseph H. Brogan.

Lawrence McDaniel is chairman of the Speakers' Committee; Joseph A. Lennon, chairman of the Meetings Committee, and Ernest F. Oakley, chairman of the Legal Committee. Women's activities will be directed by Miss Nell Meehan, committeewoman from the Twentieth Ward.

MOVIE MORALS DECLINING UNITED LUTHERANS ASSERT

Welfare Committee to Urge Attack Through Box Office of Theater.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 7. — The United Lutheran Church in America, at its ninth biennial convention here, will be told that the moral situation in the moving picture business has grown steadily worse.

In a report prepared by the moral and social welfare committee that will be read during the convention which begins Oct. 17, the committee says "the time for talking is past; the hour for a crusade is here."

Efforts at reform have availed nothing, the report says, and the time has come for the members of the church to attack through the vital spot of the theater—the box office. The committee urges parish leaders to provide parish and home programs to take care of "Christian leisure."

A. F. OF L. COMMITTEES MEET; DELEGATES GO SIGHTSEEING

Francis J. Gorman, Textile Strike Leader, to Address Convention Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6. — Issues confronting the American Federation of Labor were discussed in committees today while the delegates went sightseeing.

Tomorrow, 30 church congregations will be addressed by delegates, with William Green, president of the federation, speaking at three churches.

Reassembling Monday, the delegates will hear an address by Francis J. Gorman, first vice-president of the United Textile Workers, and a leader in the recent textile strike in the East.

SUIT AGAINST MARILYN MILLER

Ruling Deferred on $3225 Claim for Dancing Lessons.

By the Associated Press.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 6. — A suit for $3225 which Marilyn Miller, the dancer, is alleged to owe Alexis Kosloff for dancing lessons, was heard in Supreme Court today. Decision was deferred. Kosloff also contends he wrote an act for Miss Miller and the late Jack Donohue, at one time her dancing partner, for which he had received no pay. Miss Miller recently married a chorus man.

Illegal Oil Cargoes Barred.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Secretary Ickes announced today that a court order obtained by the oil administration and the Justice Department had prevented the unloading of an oil tanker, a large part of whose cargo was alleged to be illegal, at Cartaret, N. J. The administration recently prevented the dumping of the cargoes of two tankers on the Pacific coast.

Actress to Marry Song Writer.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 6. — Walda Mansfield, movie actress and former Broadway dancer, and Walter Donaldson, song writer, left here by plane today for Agua Caliente, Mexico, to be married, they said. Donaldson is the composer of "Blue Heaven," "Sleepy Head," and other airs.

ARRESTS AT RATE OF 100 A WEEK IN RUSSIA FOR GRAFT

Embezzlers in Office, Freight Thieves and Robbers of Government Stores Shot.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6.—The nation-wide campaign in the Soviet Union to suppress graft and pilfering in government institutions has resulted in more than 100 arrests a week.

And the list of articles stolen, within a single week, runs from a dozen football bladders, smuggled out of a Leningrad rubber factory to nearly $17,000 embezzled from the foreign trade store, Torgsin, in Astrakhan.

Death sentences, imposed only for offenses which are definitely declared "counter-revolutionary" are rare, comparatively. Four were reported in one week.

One was for thefts of soap, meat, sugar and cheese from a government warehouse in the North Caucasus.

Two men were shot in connection with the embezzlement of Torgsin funds in Astrakhan.

The fourth death sentence was imposed on one of a band of railway employes who tossed valuable freights out of baggage cars on the Moscow Kharkov line, to confederates waiting in the fields along the track.

One hundred and fifteen persons were sentenced to terms ranging from six months to two years.

Many of the cases reported deal with evasion of the Government's grain collections.

For distributing threshed grain of the collective farmers before the payment of the Government tax, the chairman of a collective at Cheripaneva, in Siberia, was sentenced to five years at hard labor.

For stealing grain from a collective, in the same general region, two men were sentenced to two years.

The chairman of a collective in the North Caucasus and his bookkeeper went up for five years each because of shortage in payments of the Government tax.

And, for hiding four sheep and a cow, in order to avoid the meat tax, under which the peasant must supply meat or money proportionate to the livestock he owns, three men were sentenced to two years and one to five years.

Vacations at Government Charge.

Other cases listed range from the embezzlement charged against four officials of the North Caucasian Railway of 21,000,000 roubles to the charge against five men in Stalingrad that they got themselves free vacations at Government expense.

Conniving with minor authorities, they received admission cards to rest homes and sanatoriums for distribution in certain factories, it is alleged. Instead, they used these themselves, then drew expense money for their trips.

Two brothers got five years for manufacturing and selling cocoa privately—cleaning up 40,000 roubles in 90 days—until one of the stores to which they sold sent the cocoa to a laboratory and discovered it was mostly sand. An associate got one year.

In the Kamensky region in Siberia, of 60 employes, 52 have been arrested for embezzlements within the last five months.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Oct. 6.—The unidentified body of a woman, about 18 years old, with three bullet holes in her head was found in a ditch beside a highway 12 miles from here today. Dr. E. E. Williams, coroner, said she was an expectant mother and was murdered about 24 hours before her body was found.

Mrs. Lola Waldron, a farmer's wife who lives near the place where the body was found, said the girl was the same she had seen Thursday night seated in an automobile, bearing a California license, with a swarthy-skinned man who appeared to be about 45 years old.

DANCER STABS MAN TO DEATH IN MONTREAL

Night Club Entertainer Says She Killed Broker's Aid in Self-Defense.

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—A night club dancer, Dolores Morel, held in the killing of William Owen, British Broker's assistant, admitted tonight, police said, that she plunged a knife into him in self-defense.

Owen bled to death early today in the dancer's apartment while a physician she had called tried to save his life. She had fled from the place and was injured when she ran Owen's automobile into a tree at Longueuil.

Police said they found her, bruised and unconscious, in a field near the car. A blood-stained knife was found on the seat.

She was held as a material witness for a Coroner's inquest Thursday. She is 25 years old and is also known as Dolores Lopez, the name under which she worked as a dancer. Police said she came to Montreal after dancing in several cities in the United States.

"We were alone in the apartment at the time," she was quoted as saying in a statement made public by Inspector Armand Brodeur. "Two men who were with us had previously left. William Owen, a hard man to deal with when partly drunk, tried to argue with me in a thoroughly drunken condition. I would not give him the answers he expected so he started to beat me and suddenly commenced to choke me."

The statement issued by Brodeur then quoted her as saying Owen had forced her back over a kitchen table and her hand had come in contact with a knife with which she struck him in an effort to loosen his hands from her throat.

Frightened by the blood, the statement quoted her as saying, the woman had run and brought a doctor, who found Owen bleeding from a wound near his right armpit. The doctor administered first aid but Owen died a few minutes later. In a panic she had run out again, climbed into Owen's car and started for her aunt's home.

At the morgue two notes were found, written on sheets torn from a scribbling pad. One said:

"Billy darling, I have taken George and Walter home. I could not let them take a taxi for that distance. I love you. Dolores." A postscript said, "There is a drink for you on the table. Be a good boy."

The other read: "I have gone home. For no reason at all you started hitting me in the face. Do you mean it? That is what I want to know. In any case you had better be a good boy and sleep here tonight. D."

ANCHORAGE FOR SHIPS FOUND IN 'DISAPPEARING' ISLAND

Discovery in Bering Sea Valued as Refuge for Vessels in Severe Arctic Storms.

By the Associated Press.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 6.—Discovery of a safe anchorage for ships on the famous "Disappearing" Bogoslof Island in Bering Sea was announced today by Father Bernard Hubbard, the "Glacier Priest" Alaska explorer and professor of geology at Santa Clara University.

The island, about 25 miles north of the western end of Unalaska, rose from the sea May 18, 1796.

"We anchored at the island for a day," Father Hubbard said, "and instead of a bay 5000 feet deep, as had been formerly reported, we found a crescent-shaped anchorage, with gradually sloping bottom from 30 to 70 fathoms.

"This discovery was valuable for several reasons. Many arctic-bound vessels, and even ships on their way to the Orient, might be caught in severe Bering Sea gales and storms, and knowing there is a safe anchorage at Bogoslof can go there instead of fighting the storm, with possible loss of life and even the ship."

Guard Increased at Ohio Prison.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6.—The guard forces at Ohio Penitentiary were increased today by Warden Preston E. Thomas, who said he acted on a "tip." A half dozen men were sworn in and told to report for duty tonight. The present guard force was given instructions by the warden to be on the alert for anything that might happen.

Harry Pierpont, Dillinger gangster, is in the prison awaiting electrocution Oct. 17.

Lake Steamer Sinks; Three Lost.

BEAUMARIS, Ont., Oct. 6.—The steamer Waome of the Muskoka Lake Navigation Co. foundered near here today during a violent storm and sank with a loss of three lives. Capt. G. W. Henshaw of Gravenhurst, a Captain for more than 50 years, lost his life when the 80-foot boat went down.

MORE CUBAN UNIONS VOTE TO JOIN STRIKE

Government Hints at Military Dictatorship If General Walkout Materializes.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Oct. 6.—Strike leaders added union after union to the general walkout pledge today as the Government, outwardly apathetic for days, appealed to the workers for support to prevent a Communistic or military dictatorship.

Leaders informed the Government the strike, originally set for Sunday midnight by Communistic labor unions, would begin tonight unless Jose Riera, president of a railroad brotherhood local, is released. He was arrested last night on a charge of spreading strike propaganda.

Among the unions now pledged to walk out are those of the dock workers, busmen, trammen, tobacco workers, railroad men, light, power, water and gas employes and sugar mill workers. Left wing employes of the Communications Department indorsed the movement on condition other Government departments do likewise.

The Government of President Carlos Mendieta asked the people to "sustain the republican institutions against the attacks of subversive elements." The Cabinet, after a special session, issued the most emphatic statement yet made by the Government against prolonged terrorism and radical agitation. It came soon after unconfirmed reports that Sergio Carbo, head of the National Revolutionary party, was about to seize power.

It was learned from an unimpeachable source President Mendieta is about to revamp the Cabinet to inject a firmer tone to the Government. The changes are scheduled to be made within a week, it was said.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army, backed up the President, saying "the armed forces will be at the side of order and not for the private interests of politicians."

Minor disorders were reported during the night. Communications lines were cut in Havana Province near the towns of Jaruco, Regla and Guines and three bombs exploded in the suburbs. One damaged the La Salud City Hall and a railroad intersection.

SEEKS RELEASE FOR MAN ALLEGED TO BE HELD

Attorney Files Habeas Corpus Writ in Federal Court, Naming U. S. Agents.

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus to release Dominick Binaggio of Kansas City was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Thomas Rowe, attorney. The petition charges Binaggio was arrested illegally at Union Station Thursday night by men flashing badges of the Department of Justice, that his case had not been presented to the United States Attorney or Commissioner and no warrant has been issues against him.

Rowe said he was unable to learn where Binaggio was being held. R. E. Vetterli, agent in charge of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice in St. Louis, is named as one of the respondents. He told a reporter he never heard of Binaggio and knew nothing about the case.

Accidentally Kills Sister.

LAKEVILLE, Minn., Oct. 6.—Patsy Joan Frank, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Frank of Lakeville, was accidentally shot and killed late today by her five-year-old brother, Denny. Mr. Frank had left the two children in his automobile while he went into a store here and Denny, playing with a pistol, accidentally discharged it.

ARRESTS AT RATE OF 100 A WEEK IN RUSSIA FOR GRAFT

Embezzlers in Office, Freight Thieves and Robbers of Government Stores Shot.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6.—The nationwide campaign in the Soviet Union to suppress graft and pilfering in government institutions has resulted in more than 100 arrests a week.

And the list of articles stolen, within a single week, runs from a dozen football bladders, smuggled out of a Leningrad rubber factory to nearly $17,000 embezzled from the foreign trade store, Torgsin, in Astrakhan.

Death sentences, imposed only for offenses which are definitely declared "counter-revolutionary" are rare, comparatively. Four were reported in one week.

One was for thefts of soap, meat, sugar and cheese from a government warehouse in the North Caucasus.

Two men were shot in connection with the embezzlement of Torgsin funds in Astrakhan.

The fourth death sentence was imposed on one of a band of railway employes who tossed valuable freights out of baggage cars on the Moscow Kharkov line, to confederates waiting in the fields along the track.

One hundred and fifteen persons were sentenced to terms ranging from six months to two years.

Many of the cases reported deal with evasion of the Government's grain collections.

For distributing threshed grain of the collective farmers before the payment of the Government tax, the chairman of a collective at Cheripaneva, in Siberia, was sentenced to five years at hard labor.

For stealing grain from a collective, in the same general region, two men were sentenced to two years.

The chairman of a collective in the North Caucasus and his bookkeeper went up for five years each because of shortage in payments of the Government tax.

And, for hiding four sheep and a cow, in order to avoid the meat tax, under which the peasant must supply meat or money proportionate to the livestock he owns, three men were sentenced to two years and one to five years.

Vacations at Government Charge.

Other cases listed range from the embezzlement charged against four officials of the North Caucasian Railway of 21,000,000 roubles to the charge against five men in Stalingrad that they got themselves free vacations at Government expense.

Conniving with minor authorities, they received admission cards to rest homes and sanatoriums for distribution in certain factories, it is alleged. Instead, they used these themselves, then drew expense money for their trips.

Two brothers got five years for manufacturing and selling cocoa privately—cleaning up 40,000 roubles in 90 days—until one of the stores to which they sold sent the cocoa to a laboratory and discovered it was mostly sand. An associate got one year.

In the Kamensky region in Siberia, of 60 employes, 52 have been arrested for embezzlements within the last five months.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT DEAD

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Oct. 6.—The unidentified body of a woman, about 18 years old, with three bullet holes in her head was found in a ditch beside a highway 12 miles from here today. Dr. E. E. Williams, coroner, said she was an expectant mother and was murdered about 24 hours before her body was found.

Mrs. Lola Waldron, a farmer's wife who lives near the place where the body was found, said the girl was the same she had seen Thursday night seated in an automobile, bearing a California license, with a swarthy-skinned man who appeared to be about 45 years old.

DANCER STABS MAN TO DEATH IN MONTREAL

Night Club Entertainer Says She Killed Broker's Aid in Self-Defense.

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—A night club dancer, Dolores Morel, held in the killing of William Owen, British Broker's assistant, admitted tonight, police said, that she plunged a knife into him in self-defense.

Owen bled to death early today in the dancer's apartment while a physician she had called tried to save his life. She had fled from the place and was injured when she ran Owen's automobile into a tree at Longueuil.

Police said they found her, bruised and unconscious, in a field near the car. A blood-stained knife was found on the seat.

She was held as a material witness for a Coroner's inquest Thursday. She is 25 years old and is also known as Dolores Lopez, the name under which she worked as a dancer. Police said she came to Montreal after dancing in several cities in the United States.

"We were alone in the apartment at the time," she was quoted as saying in a statement made public by Inspector Armand Brodeur. "Two men who were with us had previously left. William Owen, a hard man to deal with when partly drunk, tried to argue with me in a thoroughly drunken condition. I would not give him the answers he expected so he started to beat me and suddenly commenced to choke me."

The statement issued by Brodeur then quoted her as saying Owen had forced her back over a kitchen table and her hand had come in contact with a knife with which she struck him in an effort to loosen his hands from her throat.

Frightened by the blood, the statement quoted her as saying, the woman had run and brought a doctor, who found Owen bleeding from a wound near his right armpit. The doctor administered first aid but Owen died a few minutes later. In a panic she had run out again, climbed into Owen's car and started for her aunt's home.

At the morgue two notes were found, written on sheets torn from a scribbling pad. One said:

"Billy darling, I have taken George and Walter home. I could not let them take a taxi for that distance. I love you. Dolores." A postscript said, "There is a drink for you on the table. Be a good boy."

The other read: "I have gone home. For no reason at all you started hitting me in the face. Do you mean it? That is what I want to know. In any case you had better be a good boy and sleep here tonight. D."

ANCHORAGE FOR SHIPS FOUND IN 'DISAPPEARING' ISLAND

Discovery in Bering Sea Valued as Refuge for Vessels in Severe Arctic Storms.

By the Associated Press.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 6.—Discovery of a safe anchorage for ships on the famous "Disappearing" Bogoslof Island in Bering Sea was announced today by Father Bernard Hubbard, the "Glacier Priest" Alaska explorer and professor of geology at Santa Clara University.

The island, about 25 miles north of the western end of Unalaska, rose from the sea May 18, 1796.

"We anchored at the island for a day," Father Hubbard said, "and instead of a bay 5000 feet deep, as had been formerly reported, we found a crescent-shaped anchorage, with gradually sloping bottom from 30 to 70 fathoms.

"This discovery was valuable for several reasons. Many arctic-bound vessels, and even ships on their way to the Orient, might be caught in severe Bering Sea gales and storms, and knowing there is a safe anchorage at Bogoslof can go there instead of fighting the storm, with possible loss of life and even the ship."

Guard Increased at Ohio Prison.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6.—The guard forces at Ohio Penitentiary were increased today by Warden Preston E. Thomas, who said he acted on a "tip." A half dozen men were sworn in and told to report for duty tonight. The present guard force was given instructions by the warden to be on the alert for anything that might happen.

Harry Pierpont, Dillinger gangster, is in the prison awaiting electrocution Oct. 17.

Lake Steamer Sinks; Three Lost.

BEAUMARIS, Ont., Oct. 6.—The steamer Waome of the Muskoka Lake Navigation Co. foundered near here today during a violent storm and sank with a loss of three lives. Capt. G. W. Henshaw of Gravenhurst, a Captain for more than 50 years, lost his life when the 80-foot boat went down.

MORE CUBAN UNIONS VOTE TO JOIN STRIKE

Government Hints at Military Dictatorship If General Walkout Materializes.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Oct. 6.—Strike leaders added union after union to the general walkout pledge today as the Government, outwardly apathetic for days, appealed to the workers for support to prevent a Communistic or military dictatorship.

Leaders informed the Government the strike, originally set for Sunday midnight by Communistic labor unions, would begin tonight unless Jose Riera, president of a railroad brotherhood local, is released. He was arrested last night on a charge of spreading strike propaganda.

Among the unions now pledged to walk out are those of the dock workers, busmen, trammen, tobacco workers, railroad men, light, power, water and gas employes and sugar mill workers. Left wing employes of the Communications Department indorsed the movement on condition other Government departments do likewise.

The Government of President Carlos Mendieta asked the people to "sustain the republican institutions against the attacks of subversive elements." The Cabinet, after a special session, issued the most emphatic statement yet made by the Government against prolonged terrorism and radical agitation. It came soon after unconfirmed reports that Sergio Carbo, head of the National Revolutionary party, was about to seize power.

It was learned from an unimpeachable source President Mendieta is about to revamp the Cabinet to inject a firmer tone to the Government. The changes are scheduled to be made within a week, it was said.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of the army, backed up the President, saying "the armed forces will be at the side of order and not for the private interests of politicians."

Minor disorders were reported during the night. Communications lines were cut in Havana Province near the towns of Jaruco, Regla and Guines and three bombs exploded in the suburbs. One damaged the La Salud City Hall and a railroad intersection.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Hudson Ruggedness Run Car to Start From Here Tuesday

A Year's Hard Driving Will Be Concentrated in Two-Week Period.

A ruggedness run embracing a difficult 1612-mile circuit through Missouri, Illinois and Iowa will be started Tuesday, Oct. 9, 1934, by the Hudson Motor Car Co. A Hudson Terraplane which was selected at random from among owners of 1934 models will be driven continuously over the route night and day for a period of two weeks. All sorts of roads are included in the run which has been laid out as a real demonstration of the stamina and ruggedness of the car. A year's hard driving will be concentrated in the two-week period.

Drivers of the car will be of average type and not professional or race drivers. Performance demonstrations are included in the program along the route. It is estimated that the car will complete the circuit every two days. Announcements will inform interested observers and spectators of the progress of the run and will tell of the projected arrival of the car in different towns along the route.

Not only was the car selected from among Hudson Terraplane owners by a drawing, but owners will also be given an opportunity to write a slogan descriptive of the run to be used in future newspaper advertising. Winning slogans will earn prizes. The car will be painted conspicuously with its name and the roads over which it passes will be indicated by route markers.

The car winds through the three states by devious roads so as to touch important centers, and also takes in sections of unimproved highways which will afford a real test of the car. The car will leave St. Louis, Mo., Tuesday, Oct. 9, traveling through Jefferson City, Mo.; Des Moines, Ia.; Mason City, Ia., and Decatur, Ill.

This three-state run taking place in this vicinity is part of a national program of ruggedness runs which will blanket every section of the country during the coming month. Approximately 20 Hudson Terraplanes, all selected in the same manner from private owners, will be sent on their way over circuits approximating 1500 miles in length through all kinds of country and over all kinds of roads.

Chevrolet Distributes Prizes to Zone Winners

The Chevrolet Motor Co. held a meeting at the Jefferson Hotel Friday evening which was attended by over 275 dealers and salesmen from the metropolitan area who participated in the August and September sales contests at which meeting bonus checks were given to the salesmen for meeting their quotas and for special outstanding performance.

C. C. Shelp, city sales manager, was toastmaster, and after he delivered a special message from C. E. O'Meara, zone manager, who could not attend, the meeting was turned over to E. R. Watson, who distributed special prizes for outstanding performances and the capital prize of a large radio won by J. B. Nonn salesman for the Central Chevrolet Co.

F. S. Black, assistant zone sales manager, discussed sales and merchandising plans. A talking picture was shown featuring Chevrolet brakes. Black distributed the bonus checks.

Goodrich Silvertown Stores in St. Louis Receive Sales Prizes

C. E. Newman, manager of the Goodrich Silvertown Stores unit located at Twenty-third and Olive streets, H. Herleth, manager at 3458 South Jefferson avenue, and D. S. Rainey of the unit located at 5635-37 Delmar boulevard, in St. Louis, have beeen notified by the principal offices of the B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, O., that a majority of employes of each of the three stores will receive prizes awarded recently in a nation-wide sales contest, because of the excellent sales attainment of the stores.

Thousands of dollars in merchandise will be awarded as prizes among members of the nation-wide organization. Many of these will come to those on the staffs of these three Goodrich Silvertown Stores. Prizes were awarded on the basis of points scored in the sale of tires and tubes during the contest.

International Makes Promotions

It has been announced by H. N. Ross, district sales manager for the International Harvester Company, truck division, that they have appointed E. A. Dunsmoor as branch manager for the local International Harvester truck division at 4010 West Pine bl. He succeeds M. F. Peckels, who has been transferred to Chicago, where he will head the National Users Account Sales Department. Dunsmoor has had over 20 years experience in the selling of motor trucks, and he comes from the International Harvester Company's branch at Davenport, Ia. He is on the left, Peckels on the right.

Shell Contest Winners Given Dinner Here

Paul Ryan, advertising and sales promotion manager of the Shell Petroleum Co., presided at a dinner Monday night, given by the company in honor of J. A. Park, Shell service station superintendent of Gainesville, Fla.; W. G. Haddock, manager, and J. S. Mashburn, salesman of the Quitman Georgia Service Station No. 1, who were winners in a nation-wide service station contest held during August. During the dinner at the Jefferson Hotel Ryan read telegrams of congratulations to the winners from Alexander Fraser, president; L. Van Eeghan, vice-president, and P. E. Lakin, general salesmanager, who were unable to be present.

On Tuesday the three winners were taken on a tour of inspection of the home office of the Shell Co., after which they departed with Capt. Jimmy Haizlip and flew to Chicago to attend the Century of Progress Exposition as guests of the Shell Company.

Studebaker Cruiser At Fair Houses Eighty Passengers

Arthur R. Lindburg, president of Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., Studebaker distributors, made arrangements for entertaining this group at the World's Fair. They were all impressed with the unique exhibit of Studebaker's gigantic Land Cruiser, which is built to scale, but is many times larger than its prototype. This exhibit has been visited by tens of thousands. The size of the wheel pictures above gives you some idea of the enormous size of this Studebaker car. It is 80 feet long, 28 feet high, 30 feet wide; the steering wheel is 7½ feet from rim to rim. The tires are 12½ feet high. The running boards are 21 feet long and 5 feet wide. The windshield wiper is a yard long.

In the interior there is a complete motion picture theater, with seating capacity for 80 persons. A specially staged Studebaker picture is shown during the hours the fair exhibit is open to the public. This group was entertained with a special showing in this theater of the thrilling sound film "Studebaker Champions." J. Linn and M. E. Jones of the Firestone Rubber Co. accompanied the party. Others attending were R. E. Matthews of the Auto Club of Missouri; John Cramer, president; M. J. Nelson, secretary; Irving Shubert, vice-president; William Boeckstiegel, treasurer, all officers of the local A. A. A. Garages.

Alcohol Co. to Hold Sales Meeting Here For All Local Dealers

The U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co. in conjunction with their jobbers of the new anti-freeze super Pyro have invited dealers to attend a meeting Monday evening, Oct. 8, at Italian Fraternal Building, Vandeventer and Delmar.

A new eight-reel talking picture "Cold Cash," covering the story of a typical filling station owner with his trials and tribulations on his anti-freeze problems are covered by this story, and it brings out the sales and advertising features of Super Pyro.

This new product Super Pyro, put on the market last year for the first time, is water free, and contains 6 per cent more alcohol than ordinary denatured alcohol. A rust inhibitor has been added, preventing rust and corrosion in the radiator, and a special soluble oil that reduces evaporation. It is colored a golden color to prevent substitution, and is retailed throughout the United States.

E. W. Vickery, St. Louis division manager of the U. S. Industrial Alcohol Co., will have charge of the meeting, and will be assisted by M. L. A. Keane, Western sales manager of Chicago and two men from the Chemical Engineering Department of New York.

Col. Goebel "Sky Writes" For Entertainment of World Series Crowds

Col. "Art" Goebel, famous trans-Pacific flyer, who won the Dole flight from San Francisco to the Hawaiian Islands, Aug. 18, 1927, and who has since been on the staff of the Phillips Petroleum Co., entertained the fans at Sportsman's Park Friday afternoon with sky-writing, writing "Phillips 66" in orange-colored smoke.

The letters were more than a city block in height. As a reward for Goebel's winning the Dole flight, Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum Co., presented him the famous ship in which he made this flight. This ship, called the "Woolaroc," is now a part of the permanent exhibit at Phillips' Woolaroc Lodge, near Bartlesville, Ok.

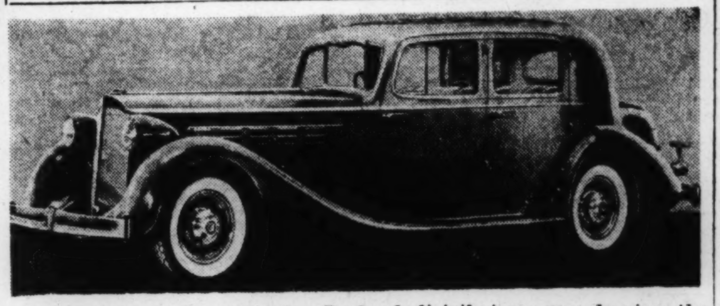
The New 1935 Packard



The Berry Motor Car Co., Packard distributers, are showing the 1935 models at a special salon display.

Special Display by Packard Distributer Opens Here Tomorrow

For 1935, the Packard factory will have two distinct groups of new models. The line of regular Packard models for 1935 was announced early in September, and the local distributors, Berry Motor Car Company, will hold a special display of these new models, starting Monday, Oct. 8th.

The second line will be cars that will sell at a much lower price. Packard has been making preparation for the production of this new line for a year past. It is expected that the announcement and display cars will be available in January.

The present special display will include a Style and Quality Exhibit. This exhibit goes into detail about the finish, the upholstery, steels used, body construction, and other interesting constructional details. The exhibit should be of interest to all automobile owners regardless of the price class in which they are interested.

Brandt Joins Staff Of West Side Buick Co.

D. E. Castles, president of West Side Buick Co., announces that he has just added E. J. Brandt to his sales department. Brandt has had a number of years experience in the automobile business in St. Louis, having started with the Buick factory branch when it was located at Twelfth and Locust streets in 1912. Brandt for a number of years has been active in the automobile field in St. Louis.

Ford to Exhibit at New York Show For First Time

NEW YORK.—At the drawing held here by the New York Automobile Merchants' Association for the New York Automobile Show, which will be held in the Grand Central Palace Jan. 5 to 12, the Ford Motor Co. was assigned space No. A-11, first floor; B-3, second floor, and E, F, G, third floor, and the Lincoln Motor Co. space No. B-8, second floor.

Due to the fact that in the past the New York show has been conducted by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the Ford company has never participated, because of its not being a member. This year it will be sponsored by the Merchants' Association, in which the newly formed New York dealership, the Ford Motor Sales Co., Inc., and Theodore Luce, Inc., New York Lincoln dealers, have membership. James Van Etta and Joseph G. Lewis of the Ford Motor Sales Co., represented the Ford and Lincoln interests, respectively, at the drawing.

Elaborate plans are being made for the forthcoming show, and its organizers predict that it will be the best ever held. Alfred Reeves, vice-president and general manager of the former National Chamber will manage it as usual, the Automobile Manufacturers' Association having donated his services to the Merchants' Association.

Although the Ford company has not yet announced to what extent it will participate, in view of the fact that this will be the first time in 28 years that it has been represented at the New York show, it may be assumed that the Ford exhibit will be on a large scale.

Development of Longest Highway.

With a total length of some 12,000 miles from Alaska to Argentina, more than 4500 miles, over a third of the proposed inter-American highway is now usable by motor cars in all weather, chiefly in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Panama. Some finished stretches are also in use in Alaska, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Colombia, Ecuador and Brazil. Although most of the roads which could be joined to from South America's part of any such great highway are already passable in dry weather, only insignificant stretches are usable in wet weather.

Beauty and Utility Blended.

Landscaping the highways of Texas has been adopted as a permanent policy of the State Highway Commission. As a part of this beautification program the roads are being lined by rows of native trees and plants. In due time hundreds of miles of trunk highways of the State will have been converted into shady, flower-bedecked avenues.

The New PACKARD for 1935!

THE great new Packards for 1935 are now on display at our showrooms.

With their appearance, we sincerely believe that the gulf between Packard and the next best fine car has become wider than ever before in history.

That statement is naturally open to challenge. And we would like to have you challenge it.

Come in and see these new Packards—ride in them and drive them. Then come to two conclusions: First, whether or not you want to buy a car in Packard's class. Second, whether or not you want to buy a Packard. We believe the answer in both cases will be "YES!"

What you will discover when you see the 1935 Packard

The most beautiful car in Packard's history—modern, stream-lined — yet retaining, and even emphasizing, Packard's famous identifying lines . . . Inside the car, a magnificent new interior treatment—smartly tailored, correct in every detail . . . Unbelievably spacious bodies—wider seats, doors that are easier to get into and out of.

What you will discover when you drive the 1935 Packard

That in every detail of comfort, convenience and operation, this car is the last word in ease and luxury. Seats are more relaxing. Windshield and windows are larger, providing greater vision than ever before. The car is easier to handle, easier to ride in even than last year's car.

What you will discover when you own the 1935 Packard

Only by owning this car for years will you realize its enduring values — its style, its mechanical excellence, the superb craftsmanship that has gone into its bodies, the long life of its motor, and its all-round economy of operation. All these things were bred out of the most exacting tests ever given a new motor car.

Simple Construction Of Ford V-8 Engine Demonstrated at Fair

Average Time to Dismantle Is Seven and One-Half Minutes—Thirteen to Assemble.

Seven and one-half minutes down, 13 up—a total of 20½ minutes to disassemble and then to assemble again a 1934 Ford V8 engine.

That's the average time each of the two teams of automobile mechanics spends in such a demonstration about 24 times daily on a stage of the Ford Exposition Building at A Century of Progress, Chicago, before throngs of World's Fair visitors.

There's keen rivalry between these teams—each one comprising two men—and sometimes they're even faster than that, encouraged by the applause of spectators who watch their time on a clock on the stage.

But the average time is seven and one-half minutes to dismantle and 13 minutes to assemble. Two of the four men never worked on motors before they began to practice just a few weeks ago, but repetition has given them facility, cutting down their beginning time from 15 minutes in disassembly and 20 minutes in assembly.

The demonstration does not attempt to picture the process as it takes place in a dealer's shop, but it does emphasize the simplicity of construction of the Ford V8 engine.

Only Standard Tools Used.

It's the simplicity of design, the easy accessibility of every part of the engine that makes for speed in breakdown and buildup, a speed which reduces all repair costs for the automobile owner. In the World's Fair dismantling-assembling demonstration, only the standard kit of tools used in all Ford service stations is employed.

Here is the disassembly process, step by step. Two men, working together, take off the valve chamber cover assembly at the top of the engine, which serves the dual purpose of manifold and valve chamber cover and to which are attached the fuel pump, carburetor and generator. Then they remove the cylinder heads.

Turning the motor upside down, the team takes off the oil pan and pump. Then they stand the engine on end, flick out the valve assemblies, and remove the connecting-rod caps, followed by the piston and connecting rod assemblies. The distributor and cylinder front cover are lifted off as a unit. Then, with the motor tilted to 45 degrees, the push rods and crankshaft bearing caps are removed.

Again turning the engine upside down, the crankshaft is lifted out and the camshaft removed. This completes the dismantling. To reassemble the motor, the steps are taken in reverse order.

Many are the items involved in this saving of time, but certainly one of the most important is the simple assembly of the valves. Quickly assembled before insertion into the cylinder block, they are instantly pushed into place as complete units. And when the valve assembly retainer is removed, a touch quickly releases the component parts.

Thousands daily marvel at this demonstration of dexterity and speed, but it is only one of many compelling attractions of the huge Ford Exposition, the largest single exhibit at the World's Fair.

Fine American Cars Winning the Favor of Orient's Ruling Class

American fine cars have been steadily gaining in favor in the Orient. In a letter to the Packard Motors Export Corporation, Takeo Fujiwara, sales manager of Mitsuwa Motors, Ltd., Japanese distributer of Packard cars, said that Packard was the almost universal choice of the Japanese royal family.

Prince Kayo and Prince Higashi-Fushimi each had a Packard sedan limousine, purchased last year. Now all six royal Princes of the Imperial family have Packards. In the garage of the imperial household are a number of other Packard cars, two of which are reserved for distinguished guests. Five members of the Cabinet are Packard owners.

Just before the coronation of Emperor Kang Teh of Manchukuo 10 Packard cars were rushed to that country for the ceremony. King Teh's personal cars are a Packard 12 sedan limousine and Packard 8 phaeton, both painted royal crimson.

An amphibian automobile has been developed in Russia for use in that country where there is a marked lack of roads and bridges.

St. Louis Pioneer Distributer Dies

A. S. FRAMPTON

A. S. Frampton, vice president of Hudson-Frampton Motor Company, passed away last Monday at 10:30 a. m. A. S. Frampton was 57 years old and was a native of Pennsylvania. He was associated in the automobile business with his brother, R. C. Frampton, since 1916. A. S. Frampton was well known among local automobile dealers and was a member of The Old Timers' Club which organization is made up of pioneer automobile men.

Dodge Dealer Sales of Cars and Trucks Increase in September

Sales of passenger cars and trucks made by Dodge dealers showed a further increase in the week ending September 29, in which deliveries amounted to 4412 against 4007 deliveries recorded for the immediately preceding week. The week's delivery figure of 4412 vehicles includes 1378 Dodge passenger cars, 1182 Dodge trucks and 1852 Plymouths compared to the previous week's sales. Business for the week ending September 29 shows increases of 5.4 per cent for Dodge passenger cars, of 5.5 per cent for Plymouths and 25.3 per cent for Dodge.

Commercial car and truck deliveries made by Dodge dealers within the latest report week bring the proportionate year to date sales volume well within reach of the 200,000 mark. The precise figure being 193,714. This compared to 142,272 sales on record for the corresponding period of 1933 places the 1934 delivery volume of 36.2 per cent ahead of last year's. Circumstance that Dodge dealers regularly market three classes of vehicles, Dodge passenger cars, Dodge trucks and Plymouths lends interest to the breakdown.

In the report given out by the office of A. VanDerZee, General Sales Manager of Dodge Brothers, Dodge passenger cars figure with 75,225 deliveries against 68,023 during the like period of 1933, Dodge trucks with 36,440 against 16,705 Plymouths with 82,049 against 57,544. Of special current interest in VanDerZee's weekly report is the statement that much talked about auto fatigue tests of Dr. Andrew H. Ryan, results of which were divulged to newspaper men and engineers a week ago, were conducted with the active co-operation of Dodge Brothers. The tests which were carried on over five months served the novel purpose of determining the degree of fatigue observable in drivers of automobiles in applying latest fatigue tests to automobile drivers. Dr. Ryan is said to have opened a new field of interest to engineers and manufacturers, as well as motoring public. The studies themselves were made with cars of different makes, whose scientifically established fatigue production ratings were chartered and interpreted in a book which is obtainable free from Dodge dealers.

Motor Death Toll Mounting.

It is estimated that deaths from traffic accidents in the United States this year will be more than 35,000 if drastic efforts are not made to curb the rising toll. In 1933 the traffic death roll was 31,000 persons. The first six months of this year there were 14,750 motor vehicle deaths, as compared with 12,270 in the similar period in 1933 and 13,078 in 1932. In 1933, 4100 of those killed by automobiles were school children.

Southern Route to Los Angeles

The extreme southern route to California is the favorite of many motorists at any time of the year. Virtually the entire distance is hard surface, free from construction, is an all-weather route and touches many points of interest.

Leaving St. Louis, follow U. S. 66 southwest directly into Oklahoma City; this is by way of Springfield and Joplin, the gateway to the Ozarks and the "Shepherd of the Hills" country. Tulsa, the base of operation for many oil companies, is also visited. Oklahoma City is the State Capital and is one of the largest oil fields in the world.

U. S. 77 leads from Oklahoma City to Denton, Tex., and then U. S. 377 into Fort Worth, which boasts of 45 parks together with many beautiful drives in the immediate vicinity.

From Fort Worth U. S. 80 goes through Abilene, Big Springs and Pecos into El Paso; this is the largest city on the Mexican border and is a famous pleasure and health resort. It affords entrance to Juarez (Old Mexico) which is just across the Rio Grande.

Continue on U. S. 80 through Deming to Lordsburg, N. M. Forty-one miles out of Deming the Continental Divide is crossed. Out of Lordsburg, if a mountainous route is prefered, take U. S. 180. The road is in excellent condition and provides real mountain thrills. Mount Graham, bordering close to the highway, reaches an altitude of 10,516 feet. U. S. 180 passes over the Roosevelt Dam and through the White Mountain Reservation into Phoenix, Ariz. This is known as the Superior Highway.

If less altitude is desired, take U. S. 80 out of Lordsburg to Tuscon, Ariz.; in this locality is Mount Lemmon, Sentinel Peak Park and Colossal Cave. From Tucson, State 84, a hard-surface road, is a short cut to Gila Bend. This saved approximately 90 miles.

Out of Phoenix or Gila Bend, U. S. 80 is followed to Yuma, Ariz., and on to El Centro, Cal. If Los Angeles is the objective and an inland route is preferred, take U. S 99 through the San Bernardino Valley. If the coast route is chosen continue on U. S. 80 to San Diego, the base of much naval and aviation activity. Then U. S. 101 affords a very scenic ocean drive by way of Ocean Beach, La Jolla, Cardiff-by-the-Sea, Oceanside, Laguna Beach, Long Beach, San Pedro and Santa Monica.

Old Nash Manual Contains Interesting Owner Instructions

When Dr. E. O. Nash was presented with the millionth Nash car recently, his old 1917 model became the property of the Nash Motors Co. In this 17-year-old veteran of the highways was found one of the earliest instruction books issued to Nash owners, which not only gave complete directions for every operation from unloading the car to changing a tire, but also contained the serial number and price list for every part used on the car.

The following excerpts from the old manual are interesting in view of the changes which have occurred in motoring since "old faithful" roamed the road:

"Fill tires with air to a pressure of 80 pounds."

"The foot pedal to the right operates a very powerful brake on each rear wheel. Familiarity with their operation should be obtained before entering the crowded ways of traffic."

"Considerable practice will be necessary before the operator can successfully change speeds without clashing the gears."

"Many motorists get from 6000 to 10,000 miles from their tires, while others only get 3500. This being true, it will be to the Nash owners' advantage to observe the following remarks on the subject:"

"Tires should always be stored carefully during the winter months. By doing so the motorist will add to his tire mileage."

"One of the best ways to preserve the finish of your car is to give it a thorough rinsing with cold water immediately upon unloading it from the freight car. The more thoroughly this is done the better."

"Do not keep the garage too warm in winter, or the sudden change in temperature when taking the car out will cause the panels to check and fine cracks to appear in the varnish coat."

Still Less Gasoline May Be Used in 1935 Race at Indianapolis

Driver May Use Only 42½ Gallons for the 500 Miles, Committee Rules.

A further reduction in fuel allowed for the entire route will be in effect with the running of the annual 500-mile race on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway next May 30.

For the first time, cars last year were restricted to 45 gallons for the run, forcing them to complete the competition on an average of more than 11 miles to the gallon. "Bill" Cummings, the winner, averaged 14 miles to the gallon.

A special rules committee of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association has decided further to restrict fuel by two-and-a-half gallons, allowing drivers 42½ gallons for the run.

The committee decided to make an undetermined exception of two-cycle gasoline burning motors, appointing a special committee to make recommendations.

A change was also made in the qualifying requirements for Diesel oil-burning racers, two of which were entered last year. It was decided to give the oil-burners a five-mile an hour advantage over the gasoline powered motors. Only the 33 fastest cars are allowed to start and the Diesels will add five miles an hour to whatever speed they make in a 25-mile qualifying run and take their chances of starting with the other competitors. Last year they were given a starting position regardless of speed of the other cars, if they made an average speed of 95 miles an hour.

Col. E. V. Rickenbacker, as chairman of the Contest Board, presided over the meeting attended by the leading automotive engineers of America.

"The gasoline restriction last year not only led to more perfect motor adjustment and better carburetion but made for safer driving and developed new combinations in motor fuel which will eventually be reflected in the standard car field," Col. Rickenbacker said after the meeting, "it was amazing even to the automotive engineers that racing cars could average 105 miles an hour over the distance of 500 miles and run 14 miles to the gallon. In further reducing the gasoline allowance by two and a half gallons, the committee feels that they are not working a hardship on any entry and at the same time furnishing an incentive to further motor perfection and more skillful driving."

In running the 500 miles last year, with an additional 7½ miles to include a pace lap and two safety laps, Cummings consumed but 35½ gallons and finished with 9½ gallons of gasoline to spare. Finishing in tenth position with a semi-stock car, Herbert Ardinger was the greatest gas eater, only requiring 43 gallons, and finished with two gallons to spare. He would have been under the wire under the new 1935 restrictions.

Chinese Uses Packard Only for Annual Trip to Grave of Parents

A car owned by a wealthy merchant in China, in the two years since it was purchased, has been run only 43 miles. That is less than every car is operated for testing before being shipped from the Packard factory.

One of the Packard distributers in the Orient, learning of the low mileage on the car, sought the reason. He found that this car has what is probably the strangest life story of any automobile.

The Chinese merchant who owns this Packard reserves it for an annual pilgrimage of 10 miles from his home to the temple containing the tombs of his ancestors. To pay the highest honor to his deceased parents, he uses the car for no other purpose.

Bathrick Returns to Pontiac as Sales Chief

Don U. Bathrick, for the past year Detroit manager for the National Broadcasting Company, has been named assistant general sales manager of the Pontiac Motor Company, according to A. W. L. Gilpin, sales head of the latter company.

In his new appointment, Bathrick resumes the same title he held for 18 months until the formation of the B-O-P in April of 1932. He will now share the position of assistant to Gilpin with C. P. Simpson, although no territorial division of the United States is contemplated. Both men will act as general assistants.

When the United States entered the world war, Bathrick left school and spent eighteen months with the Marines overseas. For the next six years, he was with a prominent automobile manufacturer, and in 1927 joined the Chevrolet Motor Company as a city sales manager. He then came to the Detroit offices as assistant sales promotion manager, and later served as zone manager at Portland, Me.

When General Motors acquired the automobile firm of Adam Opel at Berlin, Germany, Bathrick spent a year in Europe on organization work.

He returned in 1930 to zone and regional managerships with Pontiac and soon was named assistant general sales manager, retaining that position until the formation of the B-O-P.

Copper Used on Highway in Illinois.

Upward of 320 miles of new type of concrete highway is under construction in Illinois in which strips of copper are embedded as a protecting element. Smoother riding for the motorist and lower maintenance cost for highway departments are the main features of the new roadbed. Transverse and longitudinal joints have long been utilized by highway engineers to break up the wide surfaces into smaller units and thus combat the problem of seasonal contraction and expansion. At first the gaps between adjacent blocks were merely filled with tar, but this squeezed out under summer heat, causing frequent replacement of the tar as well as annoying ridges.

Unprotected Grade Crossings.

Only 13 per cent of the 237,000 rail-highway grade crossings in the United States are especially protected with gates, watchmen or audible signals. Rhode Island leads the states in the greatest percentage of protected crossings. More than 64 per cent of those in the state are especially protected. Massachusetts is second with 59 per cent and New Jersey is third with 46 per cent. In South Carolina and North and South Dakota less than 3 per cent of the rail-highway crossings are specially protected.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Securities markets pushed forward this week, after a setback on Monday.

The decline in stocks on Monday, following President Roosevelt's address to the nation Sunday evening, prompted comment in brokerage quarters that the market was disappointed that the chief executive was not more specific, but later on, a number of market analysts agreed that the Monday setback had been largely "a technical reaction," for sentiment seemed definitely brighter.

The President's proposal of a truce between employers and employes, together with his intimations of modification of the NRA later discussed more specifically by Donald Richberg, were interpreted as constructive in several quarters. The plan of a gradual withdrawal of the NRA from price and production controls was for the most part regarded favorably in the financial district, although some uneasiness may have been felt in those industries, particularly those with great excess capacity, which have been most helped by price and production regulation.

U. S. Bonds Better.

The Standard Statistics, a price index of 90 representative stocks, dropped 2.2 points on Monday, but regained all but 1.0 of the decline, closing at 71.3, which was 3.6 above the level of a fortnight ago. Bonds were steady to firm throughout the week, particularly United States Governments. The index of 60 corporate issues finished at 83.7, up 0.1 from last Saturday.

Securities markets acted well save for the Monday drop in stocks, in the fact of pronounced weakness in most of the leading speculative commodities. Wheat lost more than 5 cents a bushel during the week, with selling evidently prompted by weakness of foreign markets, depressed by sales of surplus French grain, and Argentine offerings. Corn 3 to 4 cents bushel and cotton $1.65 to $1.95 a bale.

Part of the selling of commodities was believed to reflect subsidence of inflation fears. Persons who had rushed into commodities as a hedge against inflation were evidently lightening their commitments, as the dollar continued strong in foreign exchange dealings. The pound sterling declined about 4 cents to around $4.92, which was within little more than 5 cents of old parity with the dollar.

Quiet Week-End Trade.

Stocks settled back into a lazy, easy course at the week-end session, and let United States Government bonds carry the banner of recovery in security markets.

Minor price concessions were necessary to absorb the stock which came into the market as traders evened up accounts and retired to the sidelines to wait for the next turn.

With volume only 230,668 shares in the two-hour session, the Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected stocks dipped two - tenths of a point to 71.3.

Final prices were mixed. General Cigar was up more than three points to a new 1934 high when directors declared two extra dividends of $3 each on the common. News of a stock dividend of 66 2-3 per cent on common stock of Mesta Machine lifted its shares more than a point and also to the year's peak. Otherwise it was a routine trading affair.

American Can, American Telephone, J. I. Case, Montgomery Ward, Bethlehem Steel, Santa Fe, Sears Roebuck, Chrysler and General Motors yielded fractions of their gains in the preceding session.

Cotton Is Lower.

Grains eased off, wheat finishing ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel lower while cotton lost 5 to 25 cents a bale. Rubber was rallied in the face of an easy British pound.

The treasury's offer of 3¼ per cent bonds for the called Fourth Liberty 4¼s became more attractive [illegible] rise in the Government [illegible] the premium on the 10-12 year 3¼s to no more than a point. Corporate bonds generally held the gains won earlier in the week.

Except for a sharp seasonal decline in motor production, business news carried little weight.

Civil strife in Spain had no apparent echoes in financial markets and a small decline in the peseta was matched by an easier tone in other European currencies against the dollar.

A sharp decline in automobile production this week was disclosed by Cram's reports. Output was placed at 18,998 units, a decrease of 18,236, compared with the preceding week and 27,296 less than the corresponding period last year. Assembly lines of eight companies were closed, three of them having completed production of 1934 models the past week.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The American dollar held steady to its opening price of 15.065 francs (6.637 cents to the franc) on the unofficial half-day banking market today. It closed yesterday at 15.0575 francs (6.641 cents).

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The United States dollar closed unchanged from its opening figure today at 4.92¼ to the pound, on a firm and quiet market in which the fluctuations were small. It closed yesterday at 4.92 11-16.

The French franc closed a shade harder at 74.15 to the pound after opening at 74.13. It closed yesterday at 74.18.

The price of bar gold was 1 penny cheaper, selling at 142 shillings, 3 pence ($35.01) a fine ounce, and an amount valued at £123,000 ($605,467.50) was sold.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—The United States dollar sold today at 2.472 marks (40.45 cents to the mark), unchanged from yesterday's quotation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Foreign exchanges moved in a narrow range and showed little change in terms of the dollar today.

In London the dollar closed at 4.92¼ to the pound sterling, unchanged from the previous day and in New York the British unit ended ⅜ of a cent lower at $4.92⅜.

In Paris the dollar closed at an equivalent of 6.63⅝ cents to the franc, while in New York the French currency was .00¼ of a cent lower at 6.63¾.

Based on the final New York rate for French francs, the dollar was valued at a discount of .14 of a cent under par compared with .10 of a cent Friday and .74 of a cent a month ago.

Bar Gold declined one penny in London to 142 shillings 3 pence ($35.01 a fine ounce), at which price approximately $605,467 was purchased.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—No sales were reported in raw sugar today. It was believed that buyers were willing to pay 2.95 for Cubas from store, but there was nothing firmly offered below 2.98 or 3.00.

Fluctuations in futures were small with the market closing 1 point higher to 1 lower. The inactivity in the spot market seemed to restrict any new or aggressive operations and most of the trading during the day was represented in evening up in December. Sales were 7500 tons, including 5600 in exchanges.

The range follows:

	High.	Low.	Last.
December	1.92	1.91	1.91b

GENERAL CIGAR DECLARES TWO $3 EXTRA DIVIDENDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Directors of the General Cigar Co. declared two extra dividends of $3 each and two regular quarterly dividends of $1 each on the common stock. One extra and one regular disbursement will be payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 16. The others will be payable Feb. 1 to stock of record Jan. 16.

In announcing the dividends the company stated that the "extraordinary" payments represent a distribution out of accumulated net earnings. Estimated net earnings for the first eight months of the year amounted to approximately $2.70 a common share, it was stated.

COTTON CHANGES NARROW WITH CLOSING LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—With traders awaiting Monday's Government crop figures, business in cotton was quiet today and Friday's advances were canceled. December contracts eased off from 12.26 to 12.15 and closed at 12.17, with the general market ending steady, 1 to 5 points lower.

Fluctuations were narrow. May sold off to 12.34 under late pressure, with the more active months showing net declines of about 7 points to the lowest. Closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the minimums.

A private end-September crop report placed the condition at 51.9, and the indicated crop 9,312,000 bales.

Advices from the goods market reported a better inquiry for coarse yarn cloths.

The amount of cotton on shipboard at the end of the week was estimated at 84,000 bales, against 169,000 last year.

Spot steady; middling, 12.40.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEWS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Metal markets were generally quiet during the week. Continued poor demand for zinc accounted for a further decline of 50 cents per ton to the lowest prices since spring.

While moderate buying orders were uncovered at that level, the trade apparently felt that downward readjustment of ore output would be necessary to balance consumer offtake, and plans were under discussion in the tri-state district for another period of mine curtailment.

Lead, on the other hand, experienced a fair day to day inquiry from various consuming branches and quotations were steady at last week's decline. The demand was said to have equaled daily smelted ore intake, but buyers showed little or no disposition to purchase beyond their October requirements.

Copper was dull and consumers failed to respond to efforts of producers to maintain a stable market through control of output. A further decline in the European price and plans being developed for reorganization of the NRA, which it was felt might have an influence on the code governing the marketing of copper, caused consumers to withhold purchases.

Fluctuations in tin quotations were due almost entirely to variations in sterling exchange prices early in the week. Declines had no apparent influence on the attitude of buyers and business was limited chiefly to the filling of prompt needs. Tin plate operations remained at the recent rate of about 45 per cent of capacity.

Antimony displayed a steadier undertone in sympathy with the Chinese market, but local transactions were confined to small prompt lots.

Steel production schedules were responsive to small fluctuations in the volume of orders received in the various districts and little or no marked change in the rate of ingot output for the industry as a whole was noted. Consumers were said to be showing greater inclination to reduce inventories than to make fresh commitments pending developments in administration policies and the general business situation. An increase in structural awards and gains in pig iron shipments were noted. *Prices were unchanged.

CORPORATION STATEMENTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Building permits filed in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, in September were sharply lower than in the preceding month, although the total for the year so far remianed more than double of that in the comparative period in 1933. During September permits were filed for buildings involving $1,728,325, compared with $3,881,100 in August. For the year to date the total expenditure involved in new building amounts to $17,140,850, compared with $8,309,660 in the first nine months last year.

Today's gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve Bank showed no imports and exports of $1,004,800 to Chile. Monetary stocks decreased $1,004,800 through the release of that amount of gold held under earmark for foreign account.

In contrast to the situation prevailing in many industries, leading units of the grocery trade had larger earnings in the third quarter than in the preceding quarter, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet. In a number of cases the totals were above those for any three months since 1931.

Closing of the books on the offerings of a new issue of $30,000,000 Federal intermediate credit banks 1½ per cent collateral trust debentures was announced today by Charles R. Dunn, fiscal agent, who reported that the issue had been heavily oversubscribed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—There were 19 favorable dividend changes during the past week compared with 26 in the previous week says the Standard Statistics Co., in its weekly compilation. Unfavorable announcements numbered eight, or the same as in the previous week.

The sugar melt of 13 United States refiners from Jan. 1 to Sept. 29 totaled 2,730,000 long tons against 2,990,000 in the same period last year. Deliveries for the period were 2,630,000 tons against 2,800,000.

The reorganization plan for the Celotex Co., recently endorsed by the first mortgage bondholders committee, has to date received the support of approximately 88 per cent of the general creditor's claims, 51 per cent of the first mortgage bonds, 44 per cent of the debentures, 33 per cent of the preferred stock and 20 per cent of the common stock, according to the reorganization committee.

GOVERNMENTS LEAD BOND LIST UPTURN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Under the leadership of U. S. Government securities, the bond market displayed a firm undertone in today's brief session.

While relatively narrow price changes were the rule, the Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues moved up one tenth of a point to 83.7. This advance also constituted the average net gain for the week. Transfers totaled $6,234,000, par value, compared with $4,049,000 last Saturday.

There was a turnover of $2,359,000 in the Government section, but gains in this list ranged from 2-32ds to 14-32ds of a point. Treasury 3¼s, the issue similar to the new bonds into which the called 4¼s are convertible, were the most active. They closed at 101-4, up [illegible].

The rails were the best of the corporation [illegible]. Advances of fractions to around a point were held by some liens of Alleghany Corp., Baltimore & Ohio, St. Paul, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

The utilities and industrials did little. [illegible] Telephone issues were a trifle [illegible] reflecting the uncertainties surrounding the European situation.

The foreign section seemingly was little [illegible] over the upheaval in Spain. [illegible] this department was relatively [illegible] loans were easier as were [illegible] Japanese.

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture) — The tone of the Boston wool market made progressive improvement during the past week. Inquiries were frequently accompanied by requests for sample bags, and in a few cases lots decidedly larger than requirements for sampling purposes were taken by worsted manufacturers at prices that had been quoted for the past few months. Most of the bids, however, were below asking prices and were rejected. Wools held in Texas were reported considerably more active than in recent weeks, and advances in prices were said to have been realized. Reports from foreign wool markets were of an encouraging character.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits $155,000 (decrease); total net demand deposits (average) $12,025,000 (increase); time deposits, (average) $3,176,000 (increase); clearings week ending today $2,906,590,642; clearings week ending Sept 29, $2,569,795,821.

HOG MARKET DOWN IN WEEK'S TRADING

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Oct. 6.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Weak to lower values were predominant in cattle during the past week despite a light supply of all classes. Receipts totaled approximately 15,900 head as compared with actuals of 16,215 the preceding week and 22,683 the corresponding week last year. Compared with the previous week's close, native steers sold 25@50c lower, excepting some lightweights suitable for local butcher trade; Western grass steers steady to 25c off; mixed yearlings, heifers and cow-stuff steady; bulls 10@15c lower; vealers, 50c higher; stocker and feeder cattle steady. Tops for the week: 1081-pound yearlings steers, $8; 1287-pound matured steers, $7.50; Western grass steers, $4; 566-pound mixed yearlings, $7.10; straight heifers, $7; beef cows, $4.50; sausage bulls, $3.25; vealers, $7.25; stock steers, $4.75. The heaviest steers offered this week were medium weights of 1287 pounds average and the entire supply of medium weight steers was very small, consisting of a few loads and small lots at $3.85@7.50. Yearling and lightweight steers ranged from $4@8 and bulked at $4.65@7.60, which was also bulk of all steers. Western grass steers ranged from $2.50@4 and bulked at $3.15@3.90. Most good native steers claimed $7@7.70; good mixed yearlings and heifers, $6@6.85; medium fleshed kinds, $4.25@5.50; beef cows, $2.50@3.25; low cutters, $1.35@1.75; stocker and feeder steers, $3.20@4.15. Closing top on sausage bulls was $3.15 and on vealers $7.25.

Bulk and top prices the corresponding week last year were as follows: steers, $4.50@6, top $6.25; good and choice mixed yearlings and heifers, $5.25@6, top $6.25; medium flesh mixed yearlings and heifers, $4.15@5.25; beef cows, $2.15@2.75; top, $3.50; low cutters, $1@1.50; top sausage bulls, $2.75; top vealers, $7; stocker and feeder steers, $2.85@4.15, top $4.65.

Swine Prices Drop.

Swine values dropped sharply at the opening of this week, packers at the low time making their purchases from $6 downward while an extreme top for the week of $6.50 was paid for a part load on Monday. Some recovery from the low time followed during the latter part of the week but losses of 25 to 35 cents were chalked up for the Saturday to Saturday period, the decline being unevenly distributed over all weights and classes. Supplies this week totaled around 51,500, compared with 55,783 last week and 37,697 similar week last year. The Saturday top was $6.25, paid fairly freely for weights above 200 pounds. Bulk of all hogs scaling 190 pounds up turned at $6.10@6.25, few below $6.15, while 160 to 180 pound averages cashed at $5.80@6.10. Most 140 to 150 pound light lights scored $5.25@5.65; 120 to 130 pound pigs, $4.25@4.85, and 100 to 110 pound averages at $3.25@3.75. Lighter weight pigs were salable from $3 downward. Packing sows bulked at $5.15@5.40.

Lamb Prices Higher.

Shipper competition added strength to fat lamb trade after early weakness and the market wound up steady to 25c higher than the close of last week. Sheep were unchanged all the way through. No yearling wethers were on sale. Small killers and shippers paid the top price of $7 on several sessions, while packers held their top at $6.85. Bulk of lambs for the period turned at $6.50@6.85, the closing bulk being $6.75@6.85. Buck lambs were sorted off at the usual discount of $1 and common throwouts turned at $3.50@4.50, thin lambs going on country account at $4 upward. Slaughter ewes bulked at $1.50@2.50. Commercial receipts this week totaled 14,000, compared with 11,719 a week ago and 9843 similar week last year.

WHEAT MARKET DOWN AT CLOSE; RANGE NARROW

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 6.—Wheat futures holders evened up over the week-end and with a pending holiday at Winnipeg Monday, prices closed fractionally lower after an upturn.

Liverpool closed ⅝@⅞d higher after opening ¼@⅜d up.

Winnipeg opened ⅜@½c higher. Early it was ¾c higher. The close was unchanged to ¼c net higher.

December wheat opened at 97⅞, up ⅜c, and May wheat 98⅛c, up ⅛c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 21,000 bu, compared with 27,000 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago, included 9 cars local and 5 through. Corn receipts, which were 27,000 bu, compared with 22,500 a week ago and 64,500 a year ago, included 17 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 20,000 bu, compared with 28,000 a week ago and 18,000 a year ago, included 9 cars local and 1 through.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was steady but only one car figured in the trade. The supplies continued light and a fair inquiry was reported. Hard wheat was nominally steady but none was offered, although mills displayed some interest. Corn was ¾@1½c lower. The opening was slow but holders weakened near the end of the session, influenced by the declines of futures and a good clearance was affected. Elevators were prominent as buyers in the forepart of the market but all branches of the trade competed at the finish. Oats were unchanged in a very quiet session. A mill took the only car sold. After the close two cars went to an elevator.

Sales of cash grain made on the floor of the exchange Saturday were as follows:

WHEAT—No. 4 red winter wheat, 97½c.

CORN—No. 2 yellow corn, 78c; No. 3 yellow corn, 77¼@¾c; No. 4 yellow corn, 77c; No. 2 white corn, 84c; No. 5 white corn, 81½@82¼c.

REACTING FROM EARLY GAINS, WHEAT AND CORN CLOSE OFF

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Reacting from early gains in prices, wheat and corn slid downhill today at the last.

Temporarily, fears of frost damage to the new wheat crop in Argentina had a bullish effect, but late cables indicated that as yet no grat harm from frosts re- that as yet no great harm from frosts re- Winnipeg market will not be open Monday influenced a good many grain operators to act with caution, and to realize on holdings rather than indulge in fresh buying ventures.

Dragged back by absence of any broad new speculative demand, wheat in Chicago closed weak at the same as yesterday's finish to 1⅛ cents a bushel lower, Dec. new 97¼@97⅜, corn ⅞@1¼ down, Dec. new 73¾@73⅞c, oats ⅛ off to ⅜ up, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents decline.

Responsive largely to Liverpool wheat quotations higher than expected, grain values here made early upturns today that contrasted with late weakness. Reports at hand said light frosts were general in Santa Fe and Cordoba Provinces, Argentina, where the wheat crop is just in the blossoming stage, four weeks away from harvest, and that even a slight frost experience would be serious. A transient further incentive for wheat buyers came from Liverpool cables telling of better European inquiry both for Argentine wheat and Canadian.

Indications of a new decrease of the United States wheat visible supply total on Monday served, too, as something of an encouragement to friends of higher prices, and so likewise did word that exporters were early active purchasers of October wheat contracts at Winnipeg. On the other hand, the fact became more and more evident that new speculative buying in Chicago lacked vigor for at least the time being, and that orders were mainly in small lots. Weather over the domestic winter wheat belt was generally favorable for field work, and seeding was reported as making steady progress.

Increased selling in the corn market was more or less due to auspicious weather for conditioning the new corn crop. Oats developed independent strength at times, with commission houses steady buyers.

Provisions were easy, influenced by hog market downturns.

MONEY IN CIRCULATION IS UP $134,000,000

Increase Is for Two Months Since New Silver Policy Was Announced.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—An increase of $134,000,000 in money in circulation was disclosed tonight by Treasury and Federal Reserve figures for the two months since the administration announced its new silver policy.

The figure attracted interest because of differing opinions over the amount of inflation involved in the administration's nationalization and purchases of silver.

Included in the total—a net figure representing money in the hands of the public or the vaults of commercial banks—was a jump of $77,351,000 in outstanding Federal Reserve notes and Federal Reserve bank notes.

The difference, or $56,649,000, represented the probable total of new silver certificates to reach the public. Altogether $80,393,000 of these certificates have left the Treasury. Of the latter figure, the unaccounted for $23,744,000 presumably had remained in the Federal Reserve banks.

The Reserve System is the Treasury's distributing agency for the new currency. It receives the bills and passes them along to commercial banks and the public as business conditions permit.

How the Reserve notes got ahead of the silver certificates in the last two months none would say definitely. Two theories were advanced—one that a quick demand for currency had arisen for which the flow of silver certificates was inadequate; the other, that the new bills were being held back for a special chemical and aging process by which the fibers of the new notes are toughened to prevent them from wearing out quickly. Ordinarily this requires six months, although recently it has been speeded up.

MAN SOUGHT IN KILLING OF HIS MOTHER IS FOUND

Woman Murdered With Hatchet in Her Home at Belleville, Ont.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 6. — Harold Vermilyea, sought on a warrant charging him with the killing of his mother in Belleville, was arrested today in Ontario, Cal.

While police were searching for the man who had been accused of the death of Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, a telegram was received today from California, signed "Harold Vermilyea." It was sent to Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, Harold's sister, and the wife of Dr. Faulkner, Ontario minister of health.

The telegram was quoted as saying: "Just read of mother's death in morning papers. Understand connect me wanted for murder. Fine reputation for family. Wire full details immediately." Mrs. Vermilyea was killed with a hatchet last Thursday night at her home here. A warrant for murder was sworn out against Harold Vermilyea by police who said they learned he had visited his mother. The son, a fruit packer, was apprehended as he was making a telephone call to Ontario.

PUHSE-LEHNE EXECUTIONS POSTPONED FOR APPEAL

East Side Couple Were Convicted of Killing Her Husband, Granite City Steel Worker.

Circuit Judge Mudge of Edwardsville announced yesterday he would postpone the date of execution for Mrs. Gertrude Puhse and Thomas J. Lehne, sentenced to be electrocuted next Friday, for 15 days, to permit their counsel to perfect an appeal. Filing of the appeal with the Illinois Supreme Court will result in an indefinite postponement of execution.

Mrs. Puhse and Lehne were convicted of killing her husband, a Granite City steel worker, last winter. They are in the Illinois prison at Chester.

MISSOURI LIQUOR REVENUE $1,558,450 SO FAR IN 1934

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—The State Liquor Control Department today announced that revenue so far this year from the new State liquor control act totaled $1,558,450. The act became effective last Jan. 13.

Of the revenue collected so far $242,849, represents collections of $1 a barrel tax on beer with an alcoholic content in excess of 3.2 per cent, and $806,930 represents collections of the various gallonage taxes on whisky, wine, gin, rum and other intoxicating liquors. These stamp taxes total $1,049,779. The remainder of the revenue was derived from the several classifications of State license fees.

Shot by Rabbit Hunter, Dies.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUCKLIN, Mo., Oct. 5. — Jess Hear, 50 years old, who lived on Ward ranch in Macon County, was accidentally shot yesterday while cutting hay by a stepson of Henry Schreckhise, 19, while shooting at a rabbit. Head died last night at Kirksville hospital.

INCREASED DEMANDS ON CLOTHING BUREAU

Director Asks Persons Having Unnecessary Garments to Call Office.

Demand for free clothing by needy families has increased sharply at the Clothing Bureau, 815 North Broadway, with the arrival of crisp autumn weather. Mrs. Irvin Bettman, director of the bureau, has called on the public to turn over to her organization garments no longer needed.

Employes of the bureau will call anywhere in the city or county to receive clothing. The bureau's telephone is CEntral 3365.

During September the bureau distributed 41,162 garments, an increase of 11,087 over August. There were 20,969 persons receiving the clothing last month, an increase of 6367 over August. During the first week of October there has been an almost daily increase in the number of applicants. Reserve supplies accumulated since last spring are likely to be exhausted soon, Mrs. Bettman said.

Since Jan. 1 the bureau has given 250,935 articles of clothing to 127,950 men, women and children. The bureau is largely dependent on donations of used or shopworn clothing, which it cleans and repairs before distributing. From time to time the Government has furnished it with supplies through the St. Louis chapter of the Red Cross.

Agencies through which the bureau works include: Citizens' Committee on Relief and Employment, Red Cross, Bureau for Homeless Men, Bureau for Women, Citizens' Application Bureau, Jewish Family Service, Children's Aid Society, St. Louis County Welfare Association, Provident Association. St. Vincent de Paul Society and Salvation Army. Since the bureau was opened, in 1931, it has distributed 1,534,664 articles of clothing.

MRS. FRANK STOBIE GRANTED DIVORCE AND $250 A MONTH

Head of Photo Copy Company Also to Pay $150 a Month for Care of Children.

Mrs. Loretta D. Stobie, 1221 Oakley place, was granted a divorce yesterday from Frank G. Stobie, head of the Stobie Photo Copy Co., 105 North Eighth street.

Alleging desertion, she testified they were married 20 years ago, and separated in September last year. Stobie now lives at the Mark Twain Hotel, she said.

By stipulation Mrs. Stobie receives $250 monthly alimony and $50 a month for each of three children, custody of whom was awarded to her. Stobie did not contest, dismissing a divorce petition which he had filed. Mrs. Stobie dismissed a sperate maintenance suit. Her divorce suit was filed yesterday morning, a short time before the case was heard by Judge Hoffmeister.

TIGERS WIN, 10 TO 4, AND EVEN SERIES; DIZZY DEAN HIT ON HEAD; MAY PITCH TODAY

ILLINOIS HARD PRESSED TO WIN, 12 TO 7, OVER BEARS

By James M. Gould

The heart of many a loyal son of the tribe of the Illini murmured loudly and skipped a beat or so yesterday when, at Francis Field before a fine throng of 12,000, only a last quarter rush saved Coach Bob Zuppke's team from a defeat by the Washington Bears. This last, mad dash which covered 85 yards from Illinois' 15-yard stripe, enabled the Big Ten eleven to defeat the best Washington team since 1918 by the score of 12 to 7.

Illinois scored in the first and fourth quarters, both their kicks for extra points failing, while Washington counted its touchdown in the second period and Londy place-kicked the extra point.

Illinois Scores First.

Grieve, an Illinois reserve back, scored first when, after a series of passes alternated with short rushes, he took a forward lateral pass, late in the opening quarter and ran for the score. Froschauer failed to convert. In the first minutes of the second period, after a 53-yard run by Capt. Harry Brown of Washington, Wagner hugged a 20-yard pass from Wimberly and crossed the Illinois goal line after a dash of another 20. Londy's extra point kick was good.

The advantage was maintained until the last five minutes of the game, when Bob !uppke threw in all his first-stringers in a desperate effort to win the game. The Illini took possession of the ball on their own 15-yard line. Using Lindberg as a plunger and crossing the Bears now and then with a pass, Illinois plowed steadily down the field. It was a race between the Illini and time, and the Big Ten team just made it, with less than two minutes eo spare. Lindberg cut off left tackle for the final needed seven yards. Again the try for point failed.

Bears Complete Only One Pass.

Illinois made 17 first downs to seven for the Bears and gained 225 yards by rushing, as against 133 for Washington. The Bears tried only five passes and completed one—that gave them their score—while Illinois, passing 15 times, completed nine for a gain of 100 yards.

Until the last few minutes, the Washington line outplayed their opponents while the Washington ends—Moller, Brungard, Hobbs and Tutinsky—were clearly superior to the Illinois flankers.

There was nothing flukey about the clos escore. It wasn't a case of Illinois weakness at all, but rather one of Washington's strength. The Illini next week enters Big Ten competition, but in the next few weeks will have no sterner foes than Coach Jimmy Conzelman's Bears were yesterday.

Can This Be True?

Fans who had been following Washington football rubbed their eyes in amazement as the game went on and the Bears clung to their one-point lead. It didn't seem humanly possible for Illinois to win except by the completion of an extra long pass thrown by that expert heaver, Jack Beynon, the Illinois quarter.

But Zuppke apparently knew the plunging power of his backs and elected to rush for his main gains

"Dizzy" Is a Good Base Runner; I Used Him Because I Needed Him"

—FRANKIE FRISCH

The great ery that went up last night after the game was: "Why did Frankie Frisch risk injury to Dizzy Dean by sending him in to run for Davis in the fourth inning?"

Let Frisch answer:

"I used Dizzy because I needed him and he is an excellent base runner. It is not the first time this season that Dean and Carleton have been used in this capacity.

"The situation was this: I figured I might need Whitehead to pinch-hit for Durocher and would have nobody else to put in at shortstop if I used Whitehead merely as a runner. I could not send in Fullis because he was the only available substitute in case I had to substitute an outfielder or send in a pinch hitter for one of them.

"I had Healy, but he is too green, whereas Dizzy is an extremely smart runner.

"This sort of an accident will not happen once in the next 20,000 times, if at all, and I feel that it was merely this miracle mischance and not bad judgment that resulted in his being hit on the head."

The town, not having heard Frisch's explanation, was still seeing and talking red, far into the night.

Bridges to Pitch for Tigers Today and Rowe in Next Game

By W. J. McGoogan

That baseball natural, with Schoolboy Rowe on the mound for Detroit and Dizzy Dean pitching for the Cardinals, which fans everywhere have hoped would develop in the world series, was dealt a blow by the Tigers' victory yesterday, so today's pitching assignments will be Tommy Bridges for Detroit and Dizzy Dean for the Cardinals.

Both managers stated positively that these righthanders would be their nominees but in the case of Frank Frisch, the Redbird leader, there was a contingency owing to the fact that Dean was hut, but Frank said he was sure Diz would be all right and was not even considering another choice.

Bridges got a royal reception from the Cardinals Friday when they pounded him for eith hits and four runs in four innings but Cochrane has confidence in him. Naturally if he could win it would give the Tigers their Schoolboy for the sixth game.

Yesterday's walloping was not so hard for the Cardinals to take as the previous loss in Detroit. Frisch and his men merely said that they had played a terrible game and deserved to get beat.

"Just Every Other Day."

"However, if we win every other day, we're bound to cop the series," declared Leo Durocher, the lippy shortstop of the Redbirds.

Tex Carleton, who was knocked out of the box, took it philosophically.

"There's nothing to cry about in a beating like that one. We just got beat," he said as he, with his mates, rested in the clubhouse after the game, "Hallahan had something to kick about because he pitched a great game and lost, but we just naturally were bad today."

Frisch also did not show the display of temper which characterized him after the first defeat. Reporters gave the Cardinal clubhouse a wide berth, making arrangements with Butch Yatkeman, the clubhouse boy, to call them, when Frisch cooled off enough to talk. Instead they were told almost immediately they could come in.

Frank merely laughed and said "it was just a sandlot ball game, that's all there was to it. We all had our finger in the pie."

"That's the first time I ever saw that. I've seen ball players reach out and hit wide ones if the catcher doesn't get them far enough away. Suppose that had happened and the batter had fouled one into Bill's face?"

Dazzy Vance, after 23 years in baseball, finally got into a world

"Dizzy Will Pitch Today, I Feel Sure," Frankie Frisch Says

"DIZZY DEAN will be the pitcher today. I am so sure of it that I haven't considered a possible alternate. Knowing him as I do I am certain that he is not badly hurt and that he will be ready to face the Tigers in the fifth game."

Frisch declined to consider the possibility that he might have to name someone else to hurl today, and refused to say if Hallahan would be his choice if Dean was still ailing today.

Army Trounces Davidson, 41-0

Weinstock Wins Tennis Title in State Tourney

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 6.—Bob Weinstock, University City High racquet star, this afternoon breezed to an easy victory, 6—0, 6—1, over Gordon Rogers, Kansas City Pembroke-Country Day, to win the singles title in the State interscholastic tennis championships.

Weinstock, who today annexed his second State high school tennis title, had things all his own way through both sets, with Rogers never seriously threatening. Weinstock's superior placement kept his opponent at a total loss.

In the play-off for third-place honors, Billy Skillman of Fayette emerged victorious by a 7-5, 6-4 margin over Charles Digges of Columbia.

By J. Roy Stockton

The world series struggle is all even once more and if the Cardinals of Frankie Frisch are going to win baseball's highest honor of 1934, the victory will have to be gained finally in the enemy's country.

Mickey Cochrane's fighting Tigers, taking full advantage of five Redbird errors at Sportsman's Park yesterday, squared the series by winning the fourth game, 10 to 4, and after today's contest, the teams will move to Navin Field, the bailiwick of the American League champions where the sixth and if necessary the seventh will be played.

Frisch's Redbirds performed like the awkward squad at a school for ungainly boys as they saw the American League forces wipe out the one-game St. Louis margin which had accrued by virtue of the Dean boys' two victories in the first three contests.

Dizzy Dean Injured.

But while the defeat was a blow to their hopes to win four out of five and end the series without the necessity of journeying back to Detroit, they found consolation in the fact that the defeat was not even more costly.

For a time the Cardinals had visions of going through the rest of the struggle without Jerome Herman Dean, their ace of aces.

Dizzy was hit on the head by a thrown ball and knocked unconscious during a fourth inning rally that eventually tied the score at 4 to 4, and as the brilliant righthander, victor in 30 National League games and the first contest of this title series, was being lugged off the field in the arms of his brother and other comrades, it was easy to see the Cardinals' championship chances vanishing with the bearers and their burden.

But Dizzy recuperated quickly. In a few minutes he regained consciousness. In a few more he was flouting the doctor's orders by trying to talk. And before the game had ended he was trying to persuade the clubhouse group that he was well enough to return to the dug-out, to sit with his comrades and see the finish of the battle.

Dr. Robert F. Hyland, the club surgeon, ordered X-ray photographs, but he said it was merely a precautionary measure and that barring unexpected complications or the disclosure of an injury not evident in his first examination, Dizzy might be able to pitch against the enemy this afternoon. Dr. Hyland said no definite decision could be made until today.

Dizzy was in the game as a pinch-runner when the accident laid him low. Spud Davis had just singled to right, sending Orsatti home and moving Durocher to third to cut the Detroit lead to 4 to 3. Davis, a good hitter, is not particularly fast. And Dizzy was delighted when he volunteered and Frisch told him he could run for Spud.

Dizzy peeled off his sweater coat and went to first base and when Martin grounded to Gehringer, Dizzy set out for second, stepping high. He stepped too high. Gehringer threw to Rogell, forcing Dizzy at second and Rogell, wheeling for the relay at first, fired methodically, without bothering to see what was in his way. The ball hit Dizzy on the right side of the head—the right templar region—and bounced high into the air.

Dizzy fell to the ground and players swarmed from the Cardinal

THIS SERIES ONE OF MOST LOOSELY FIELDED IN HISTORY

Nineteen "Boots" Thus Far Rivals Record of Pirates Team of 1909

By Herman Wecke

This 1934 World Series is apt to go down in the record books as the one of "boots." In the four contests to date, the athletes of the two clubs have made a total of 19 errors—11 for the Cardinals and eight for the Tigers. There's no record in the books for errors by two clubs, but back in 1909 in seven games, the Pirates made a total of 19.

However, two records along these lines already have been tied. The man who has this rather doubtful distinction is John Leonard "Pepper" Martin, the big hero of the Cardinals' last world series triumph in 1931.

Martin in the fourth game made three errors to bring his total for the four contests to four.

These two totals are series records. It's the first time in 34 years that a far corner guardian has made as many as three boots in a single contest, while not since 1912 has one made as many as four errors in the complete set.

Martin's Only Peers.

The others who have made three in one game were George Rohe of the White Sox, in 1906, and Harry Steinfeldt, a great player with the old Cubs, who had that many in a contest on October 18, 1910.

Steinfeldt made one other error in that 1910 series, which went five battles, while Larry Gardner, of the Red Sox, had four in the eight games with the Giants in 1912.

Thus Martin has made his boots in fewer games than those in which the others played. Martin's fourth boot came in the 12-inning battle at Detroit, when Schoolboy Rowe won, 3-2.

In the fourth game, Martin had a terrible time of it. He could not hold thrown balls and he kicked grounders. His first error on a throw from the outfield led to a Tiger run in the fourth. His next, in the fifth, when he kicked a roller from Greenberg, did no damage. Then, in the seventh, he missed a toss from Durocher trying to catch a man at third. That runner later scored to give the Tigers a lead, which they retained to the finish.

Thus the hero of 1931 was one of the "goats" of the fourth game of the 1934 battle for baseball supremacy.

As regards the clubs, there has not been a game in which the fielding has been clean. There were seven errors in the opener, three in the second and third and six in the fourth. The Tigers went through the 12-inning Detroit contest without a boot, but the Birds have failed to come through with perfect support for their pitchers in any one game.

The game yesterday developed into a free swinging affair, with the two clubs putting together 22 safeties. The Redbird pitching, especially that of Carleton, Vance and Walker, was woefully weak. Auker, after yielding six hits in the first four rounds, was found for only four in the last five.

Six Games Assured.

Even-Stephen in the first four games of the 1934 struggle for the world baseball championship, each with two victories and as many defeats, the Cardinals and Tigers will be forced to start all over in the fifth game at Sportsman's Park this afternoon. Play begins at 1:30 o'clock.

With the series now certain to go six games at the least, it will be the first time since 1931, when the Cardinals beat the Athletics in seven battles that more than five contests have been required to decide the issue. In 1932, the Yankees downed the Cubs in four consecutive games, while last season the Giants won four out of five from the Senators to make off with the world championship.

With Manager Frank Frisch announcing that he was considering no one but Dizzy Dean as his pitcher and Tommy Bridges scheduled to twirl for the Tigers, two pitchers who already have appeared in the series, will be seen in action. Dizzy, hit on the head by a thrown ball from Bill Rogell, when he was sent in as pinch runner, won the opening game, but he was not the usual effective Dizzy. Since that opening game he has had a three-day rest and unless that bump on the head proves more serious than thought, he should have his full strength and really show the Tigers some pitching.

In the event that Dean's condition does not permit his working in this afternoon's game, Bill Hallahan is the logical hurling choice for the Redbirds. Hallahan, in his previous start pitched great ball and really deserved a victory over Rowe, Detroit's big ace. Two plays, the failure to catch a short fly in center and the other a mixup on a pop foul, kept William from scoring a 2-0 decision over the pitcher, who in the last nine of a 12-inning game, held the Birds to one safety.

Bridges Coming Back.

Bridges opened against Paul Dean in the third game of the series. He will be coming back after only one day, but in that game last Friday, he worked in only four innings. In that time the Redbirds made merry at his expense, pounding out eight hits, four of them good for extra bases, and scored four runs, to give the younger member of the Dean and Dean family his first world series triumph. After the game, which Bridges lost, Manager Frisch of the Birds declared that the right-hander had pitched good ball after he settled down.

Cardinal Special Will Leave Here at 7:30 O'Clock

THE Cardinals' special for Detroit, where the sixth game of the World Series will be played tomorrow afternoon, starting at 12:30 o'clock (St. Louis time) will depart tonight at 7:30 o'clock and arrive in Tigerville the following morning about 7.

With Bridges scheduled to open the fifth game, Manager Mickey Cochrane apparently is saving Schoolboy Rowe for the sixth battle of the series, which will be played in Detroit Monday. The Tigers' manager probably figures that Rowe has not had enough rest since his thrilling 12-inning duel with Bill Hallahan at Navin Field.

It was weak pitching and peurile fielding which enabled the Tigers to tie the series at two games each. Tex Carleton after getting rid of the Tigers in the first and second and retiring two batters in the third, saw Mickey Cochrane get his second hit of the series, a double. On the next 10 pitches, Carleton walked Gehringer and Goslin and after that the Birds could do nothing right. True they had the score tied at four all as late as the start of the seventh, but then errors and hits gave the jungaleers more than enough runs to win.

Finding Auker easy in the first four rounds, the Cardinal bats were suddenly silenced by his under-hand pitches. In the last five rounds not a single Redbird runner advanced beyond second base. Despite an error by Gehringer, the Tigers gave Auker some fine support, turning three double plays to help him to his triumph.

Cochrane's Wise Move.

The shakeup in the Tiger batting order worked wonders. Bill Rogell, advanced a notch, and Hank Greenberg, dropped from fourth to sixth place, made good with a vengeance. Rogell pounded across the first two runs in the third while in the Tigers' big eighth, after Goose Goslin had been purposely passed to fill the bases, Rogell again came through with a safety to score two mates. Greenberg for his portion had two doubles and two singles and reached first base on Martin's error on his other appearance at the plate. His last double, a tremendous line drive to right-center just missed going into the stands for a home run. Greenberg also turned a sensational fielding play at the expense of Joe Medwick, Cardinal left-fielder, who leads all individuals in total hits with eight.

Unless Dizzy Dean is at his best, Manager Frisch will be hard put for pitchers. Paul Dean will have to face Schoolboy Rowe Monday. If a seventh game is required, Cochrane will be able to come back with Auker, a winner, while Frisch will have to use Dizzy Dean with only a day's rest or rely on Hallahan, Walker and Co. And Walker to date has been charged with the Cardinals' two defeats.

BRIDGES FOR TIGERS, DIZ DEAN FOR CARDS, IF HE'S ABLE, TODAY

series game. He was removed for a pinch batter, much to his disappointment. "If the wind just had been blowing the other way, Frank would have let me hit," Dazzy said, "but as it was blowing against a left-field hitter, he probably thought I would crack one and it would be just a long fly to left field."

Asked if he thought the accident to Dean had upset the Cardinals, he asserted he did not. "Because one man gets hit with a ball, that's no reason why another should drop a pop fly or a ball thrown right to him."

Pepper Playing for Detroit.

Pepper Martin moaned that he must have looked like he was playing for Detroit out there while the rest of the Redbirds forgot it with the remark that all they have to win now is two out of three games. They feel sure they can do that.

Over on the Detroit side there was joy aplenty. The Tigers shouted their feelings as they trudged in. In chorus they declared "We got 'em now," and, of course, Auker was the big hero.

This tall boy from Norcatur, Kan., was an all Big Six football and basketball star during his college days with the Kansas Aggies, and he proudly showed a telegram reading: "Good luck today. We know you can do it," signed "Bo and Ralph." The senders being Bo McMillin, coach of Indiana University's eleven, and his assistant, Ralph Graham, who also played with the Aggies.

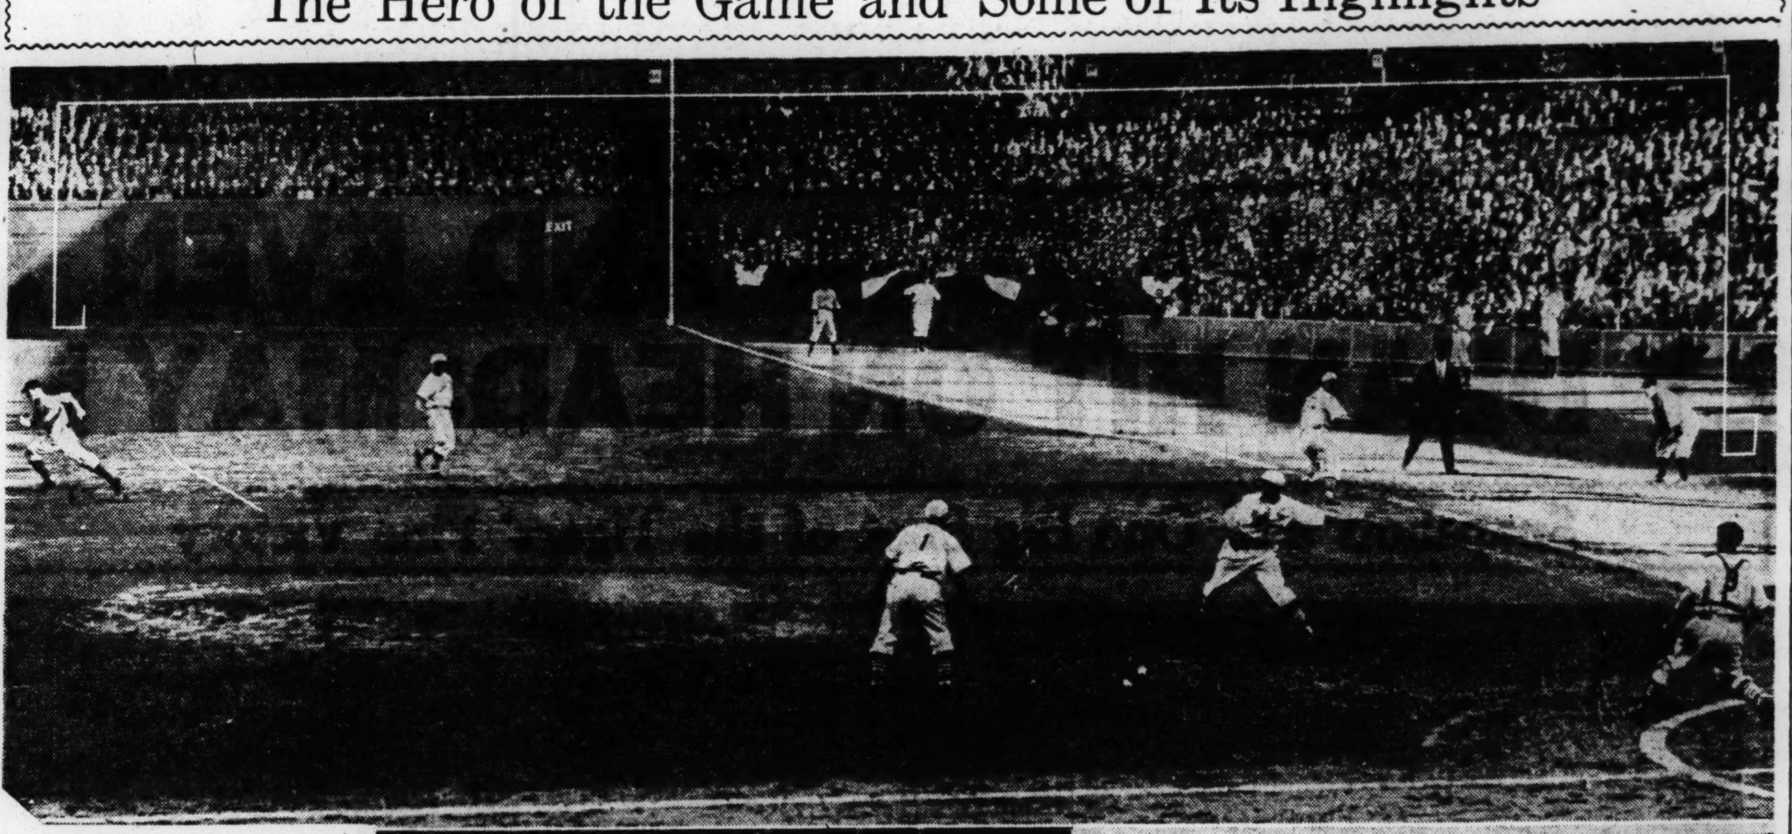
Auker's mother and father and his wife were on hand for the contest. His father is a mail carrier on Rural Route No. 1 out of Norcatur.

Some baseball men around the park were inclined to criticize Frisch for sending in Dizzy Dean to run for Davis.

"What was the idea of that?" Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Browns, wanted to know, "Diz is Frisch's ace pitcher and he was going to use him tomorrow. He had plenty of other runners on the bench. Why didn't he use one of them instead of Dean?"

"Fullis is a good runner and some of his others are all right. Of course, a thing like that won't happen again, very likely, in a million years but there's no use taking that chance in a world series.

The Hero of the Game and Some of Its Highlights



Below, at right—Eldon Auker who pitched the Tigers to victory in the fourth game. Below at left—Medwick sliding into third base in the third inning on Collins' single.

At top—Cochrane bunting, after White had walked in the eighth inning. Walker threw wild to second and both runners were safe. It was the start of that five-run inning.

What the Players Will Receive from World Series Pool

IF the Cardinals win the world series, the bulk of the pool, $127,109.98, will be so divided that each Redbird will receive $4964.39. The Cardinals voted to apportion the money into 25 shares after $3000 in donations had been subtracted from their end of the spoils. The Tigers, figuring on 23 players, would get about $5526.52 apiece for winning.

If the Cardinals should come out on the short end, each shareholder would get $3269.59, while each Tiger would receive $3684.34 for the losing end.

Although the total of $299,785.69 exceeds the financial melon cut by the Giants and Senators last year by approximately $15,000, this year's pool is the second smallest since 1922. The remainder of the player pool, amounting to $87,739.99, will be split up as follows: $21,983.92 each to second-place New York Yankees and Giants; $14,655.90 each to the third-place Chicago Cubs and Cleveland Indians, and $7327.95 to each of the fourth-place Boston clubs.

Memphis Scores On 43-Yd. Pass But C. B. C. Wins

A 50-yard gain on a forward pass is not an infrequent occurrence, but when the thrower is a high school player, that's the color of a different horse. John Gallella of the Memphis C. B. C. team completed a 43-yard pass to his teammate, Tom Bergdoll, who ran seven yards for Memphis' only touchdown against the St. Louis Christian Brothers last night at C. B. C. St. Louis won by an extra point, 7 to 6.

Gallella's heave came in the waning minutes of the game. Memphis had the ball on the St. Louis 37-yard line, when Gallella faded back to the mid-field line and threw the ball straight into the arms of Bergdoll, who ran unmolested over the goal line. The try for extra point failed.

The St. Louis C. B. C. team scored the winning touchdown in the first period when Tommy Shields, a 10-second man on the track team crashed through center for 24 yards. Gorman plunged for the extra point that later proved to be the winning margin.

Memphis was outrushed on plays from scrimmage, 65 yards to 237, but the Tennessee boys tried 19 passes, completed four and had five intercepted. One of the successful four, of course, was Gallella's mighty heave of 43 yards.

Durocher flied to Fox, whose quick return prevented the runners from advancing. Carleton grounded to Rogell whose throw to Gehringer forced DeLancey. ONE RUN.

THIRD—TIGERS — Auker flied deep to Orsatti. White struck out. Cochrane slashed a double to right. Gehringer walked. Goslin walked, filling the bases. Rogell singled through the box, scoring Cochrane and Gehringer, Goslin reaching third. Carleton was removed from the box and Vance went in to pitch for the Cardinals. Goslin scored on Greenberg's single to Durocher, Rogell reaching second. Owen was safe at first on Martin's high throw to Collins and the bases were filled. The play was scored as a hit for Owen. Fox struck out. THREE RUNS.

CARDINALS — Martin was out, Owen to Greenberg. Gehringer tossed out Rothrock. Frisch singled past Rogell. Medwick walked. Collins singled over second, scoring Frisch and sending Medwick to third. DeLancey was out, Auker to Greenberg. ONE RUN.

FOURTH — TIGERS — Auker was called out on strikes. White walked. White stole second and when the ball got through Frisch White dashed for third and was safe when Martin dropped Orsatti's throw. White scored on a wild pitch. Cochrane was called out on strikes. Gehringer was out, Frisch to Collins. ONE RUN.

CARDINALS — Orsatti singled past Rogell. Durocher grounded to Owen, but when Gehringer dropped Owen's throw at second both runners were safe. Virgil Davis batted for Vance and hit over Greenberg's head for a single, scoring Orsatti and sending Durocher to third. Dizzy Dean ran for Davis. Martin grounded to Gehringer, whose throw to Rogell forced Dean at second, but in trying for a double play Rogell's throw hit Dean and apparently knocked the Cardinal pitcher out. Durocher scored as the players of both teams gathered around Dean at second base. The players carried Dean off the field. The ball apparently hit Dean in the head and bounced 20 feet into the air. Rothrock flied to Goslin. Frisch grounded to Gehringer who stepped on second, forcing Martin. TWO RUNS.

FIFTH — TIGERS — Bill Walker went in to pitch for the Cardinals. Goslin grounded to Frisch. Rogell flied to Orsatti. Greenberg was safe at first when Martin fumbled his hot bounder. Owen was out, Martin to Collins.

CARDINALS — Medwick singled to right. Collins flied to White. DeLancey walked. Orsatti lined to Greenberg and Medwick was doubled at second.

SIXTH — TIGERS — Fox doubled off the left center field wall. Auker sacrificed, DeLancey to Collins, Fox moving to third. White fouled to Martin. Cochrane flied to Rothrock.

CARDINALS—Durocher singled to left. Walker struck out, failing three times in an attempt to bunt. Martin popped to Gehringer. Rothrock was out, Gehringer to Greenberg.

SEVENTH—TIGERS — Gehringer singled to center. Goslin sacrificed, Martin to Collins. Rogell grounded to Durocher but Gehringer was safe at third when Martin dropped his throw, Rogell reaching first. It was Martin's third error of the day. Orsatti failed to hold Greenberg's long fly and the ball fell safe for a double, Gehringer scoring and Rogell raeching third. Owen flied to Rothrock. Fox was purposely passed, filling the bases. Auker was out, Frisch to Collins. ONE RUN.

CARDINALS — Frisch flied to Fox. Medwick grounded to Greenberg. Collins was out, Greenberg unassisted.

EIGHTH — TIGERS — White walked. Cochrane bunted to Walker, whose throw to second was wild and both runners were safe. Gehringer sacrificed, Collins to Frisch. Goslin was purposely passed, filling the bases. Rogell singled to left, scoring White and Cochrone. Greenberg hit against the right field wall and reached third but under the ground rules was forced to return to second. Goslin scored and Rogell reached third on the double. Walker was removed from the box and Jess Haines went in to pitch for the Cardinals. Owen singled to right, scoring Rogell, Greenberg stopping at third. Fox struck out as Greenberg and Owen executed a double steal, Greenberg scoring and Owen going all the way to third as Frisch's throw to the plate went through DeLancey. Auker was called out on strikes. FIVE RUNS.

CARDINALS—DeLancey lined to Owen. Orsatti singled to left. Durocher popped to Greenberg, who dropped the ball but recovered in time to throw to Rogell, forcing Orsatti at second. Crawford batted for Haines and was out, Gehringer to Greenberg.

NINTH—TIGERS Mooney went in to pitched for the Cardinals. White singled through the box. Cochrane sacraficed, Mooney to Collins. Gehringer popped to Durocher. Goslin lined to Collins.

CARDINALS—Martin beat out a hit to Rogell. Rothrock flied to White. Frisch hit into a double play, Rogell to Greenberg.

Dizzy Says He's Willing to Follow Doc's "Keep Quiet" Order Only to Game Time

By Dizzy Dean
Leading Pitcher of 1934.

This ain't going to be a very long story folks, because I saw so many stars and funny lights and strange animals when I got busted on the head that Doc Hyland has ordered me to be very quiet. And I am perfectly willing to be quiet until tomorrow afternoon. But we Deans are a sturdy people and nobody ain't going to stop us by just cracking one of us on the head with a baseball.

I guess wer'e a high-stepping people, too, and that's really what caused this headache that I got. I was tickled to death to be in there running for Spud Davis because while I haven't persuaded Frank Frisch just yet that I could be useful as a pinchhitter, I am pretty fair shakes of a base runner. I usually get the opposition kinda rattled, but I don't want 'em to get rattled any more the way Billy Rogell was this afternoon.

I stepped pretty high going down to second, but I sure would have ducked if I had seen that ball coming. We Deans know when to duck, but we don't get much practice because most generally it's the other guy that should ought to be ducking.

When Rogell threw that ball or how he threw it I couldn't tell you no more than nothing. The first thing I knew, a thousand little stars and big stars and cats and dogs and queer shaped things was jumping around before my eyes. But I never did see no Tigers and I guess that would mean something to people who believe in signs. But then maybe it wouldn't neither, because I never could see the Tigers anyway.

You won't see the Cardinals play very often the way they did this afternoon, but the best way to look at it is the bright side. There were some swell folks up in Detroit and this means that we'll have to go back there. And the hotel men will be glad and the railroad conductors and ticket collectors and porters. So we might as well figure that it's all for the best.

I still feel sorry for the Tigers though. It would have been much nicer for them if we could have given them the painless treatment by beating them right here, so they wouldn't have to take it in their own backyard. But if they're asking for it, I says let them have it.

The way it looks to me, we'll be ahead again tomorrow evening and then Paul will give the Tigers the works on Monday and the Tigers will still be just champions of the American League Monday evening.

Now if you'll excuse me I'll have to get me another ice pack for my head. The doctor told me to keep real quiet and I could take another shot at the Tigers. And I'm just sorry I won't be able to show 'em more about pitching. But me and Paul together should show 'em plenty.

BERKLEY, Calif., Oct. 6.—St. Mary's galloping Gaels wrote a vivid chapter into their 1934 football history with a stirring 7 to 0 victory today over California's giant Bears, a feat that brought thunderous oviation from 65,000 frenzied fans.

Four minutes after California had won the toss and kicked off, the alert Gaels who learn their football under smiling Edward "Slip" Madigan, saw and seized their chance, to rush over the touchdown that turned the tables on a time honored gridiron foe.

FIFTY THOUSAND SEE SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA LOSE TO COUGARS, 19-0

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Washington State outplayed and outthought Southern California here today to send the Trojans down to defeat in their first Pacific Coast conference game, 19 to 0.

Fifty thousand fans saw the fighting Cougars make the breaks work for them in the first half and then score on their own in the second half. Babe Hollingbery's boys had a lot of tricks in their bag and pulled most of them during the afternoon to confuse the pupils of Howard Jones.

The victory marked Washington State's first success over Southern California since 1930 when Hollingbery's team won the conference championship and played for the West in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena. Last year the Trojans won 33 to 0.

RUTH THINKS VICTORY GIVES TIGERS SLIGHT EDGE IN SERIES

BAMBINO NOT SURPRISED BY GREENBERG'S HARD HITTING

By Babe Ruth.

Well, the Tigers are starting to show some of the form that made them American League champions, the big battle of Dizzy Dean against Schoolboy Rowe becomes next to a certainty, and the series prepares to move back to Detroit. The early promise of a thrilling battle, which appeared to be false dope when the third game ended, now seems likely to be realized after all.

That was a terrible blow which Dizzy Dean received as he raced down to second base in the fourth inning and I think I know how he felt later. I got my head in the way of one of those double play throws some years ago and they are no joke. The player is running into a fast thrown ball, coming the other way, which makes it tougher.

The Tigers knocked Dizzy Dean out of a ball game all right, but not the way they would like to knock him out. The news that the injury was mainly a bruise was good news for everybody. And I am sure that goes for every member of the Tigers, too. They wouldn't want to win a world series through the injury of a St. Louis player. That is the feeling of a ballplayer any time a fellow on the other team is hurt, whether in a hot pennant fight or in a world series.

Bill Rogell undoubtedly felt worse over the affair than anybody else in the park. And I want to say a word for the sportsmanship of the St. Louis fans. There was no demonstration against Rogell, no thought that it was anything but an accident. It was a tribute to baseball that people feel this way about it.

Believe It or Not, Ripley.

Did you notice, among the many unusual things that happened, the odd run which Detroit scored in the fourth inning? Page Bob Ripley, for here is a snappy "Believe-It-or-Not." White walked, stole second base, raced to third when the ball got away from Frisch and was safe when Martin muffed the ball after Orsatti made the throw in. Then he scored on a passed ball.

He got all the way around before Mickey Cochrane, who followed him to the plate, had touched his bat to the ball. There's a freak run for you.

Bad fielding by the Cardinals and frequent changes in pitchers made it a long drawn out game, which at times was terrible to watch from the standpoint of good baseball. But it had plenty of high spots, too.

Cochrane let Auker stay in after an early bad spell, and later he let Auker bat with the bases filled in the seventh, two out and score only 5 to 4 in the Tigers' favor. Mickey knew his Auker. His faith was justified the way the big fellow finished up. From the fourth inning to the finish he did a grand job.

Cochrane Knew His Auker.

I got quite a kick out of seeing old Dazzy Vance get his long-awaited world series chance in the third inning. And it struck me that Daz moved the clock back a few years the way he got Fox on strikes to halt the big rally which the Tigers had started against Tex Carleton in that inning.

The hitting of Greenberg and Rogell didn't surprise me any, because I have seen them do a lot of timely thumping in our own league. I felt, too, that Auker might have a good game in his arm, because he has done some high class pitching in the American League.

I like the Tigers' chances much better than I did Friday night. With the series surely going back to Detroit, and with this game won yesterday, I feel they have the edge, though a slight one.

Now for the Dean versus Rowe struggle. Good luck, boys, and may the better win.

(Copyright, 1934.)

Street Thinks His Cards Stronger Than Frisch's Team

"THOSE Cardinals looked pretty bad in losing to the Tigers 10—4, but I think they just had one of those bad days and will come back to win the series," declared Gabby Street former manager of the club under whose management the club won two National League championships and one world title.

"I like the Cardinals. They look good to me. Even Pepper Martin, having a bad day though he was, never quit for a minute. He's got fight and hustle and he looks like the Martin of 1931.

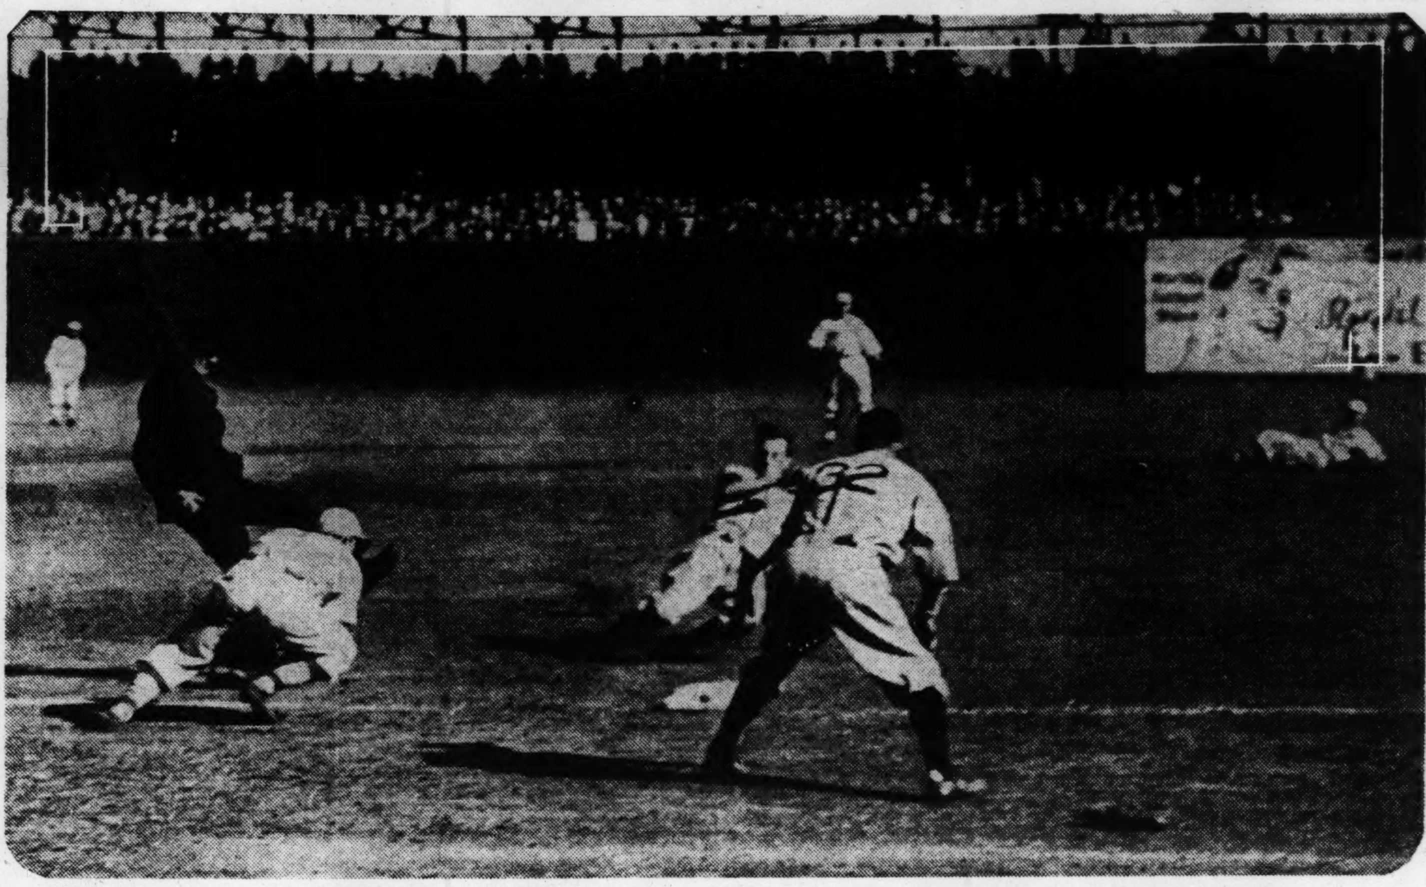
"Although I believe the Cardinals will defeat Detroit and that they're a good team I still think that the St. Louis Nationals of 1930 and 1931 was the best title winning team ever to represent St. Louis."

And that remark, coming from Gabby was rather funny for Rogers Hornsby, who led the Cardinals to their first world championship in 1926 declared that was the greatest team of Cardinals ever.

Need New Backfield.

St. John's College of Annapolis must develop an entire new backfield this year.

This Play Started Martin on a Record-Tying Spree of Errors



White of Detroit sliding into third base in the fourth inning, after stealing second and continuing on when DeLancey over threw second. Orsatti's throw had the runner beaten, but Martin dropped the ball. Martin tied the error record for a third baseman during a single world series game, three. He has made four in the series, which also ties the third base record.

Dizzy Dean Hurt as Cards Lose

bench. When he failed to regain consciousness, Paul Dean, Coaches Gonzales and Wares and Dr. H. J. Weaver, club trainer, picked him up and carried him, making a basket of their arms.

The tying run scampered over the plate during the play, but as though stunned by the accident to their pitching star, the Cardinals never seriously threatened after that.

And the Tigers, fighting hard, took advantage of St. Louis errors and romped to their easy victory.

Auker Effective After Fourth.

Elden Auker, a right-handed gentleman of the pitching profession who developed a steel arm and deadly accuracy throwing rocks and clods at jack rabbits in the fields near his Kansas home at Norcatur, was on the hill for the Tigers and after the fourth inning the Cardinals could do nothing important with his under-handed delivery. Auker must have learned to pitch throwing at the jack rabbits through holes near the base of the Kansas fences. He leaned far down near the ground and fired curves that gained altitude as they neared the plate and exploded in the strike zone. He was in much trouble for four innings, but he got the range on the Redbirds after that, just as he used to get the range on the jack rabbits. And after the fourth inning only one Redbird flew as far as second base.

The St. Louis pitching might have compared more favorably withAuker's, if the Cardinal defense had been better. But grounders seeped through the infield. thrown balls were dropped at critwith Auker's, if the Cardinal deserved just what they got—a good sound beating.

Cardinals Score First.

The Cardinals were first to score. Medwick singled in the second inning and Collins doubled to right. De Lancey drew a pass and the bases were filled with nobody out. Medwick scored after Goslin caught Orsatti's fly, but Auker pitched out of the inning with no further scoring. Carleton was in good form for two innings, but with two out in the third Cochrane doubled down the right field line and Tex lost control. He walked Gehringer and Goslin, filling the bases and when Rogell's grounder was just out of Durocher's reach Cochrane and Gehringer scored and Goslin reached third.

Frisch tried to check the attack by calling Dazzy Vance to relieve Carleton, but Greenberg's grounder that caromed off Durocher's glove for a single scored Goslin with the third run of the inning.

Frisch's infield hit, a pass to Medwick and Collins' single to center gave the Cards their second run in the third, but in the fourth Vance walked White and Jo-Jo stole second and set out for third when' De Lancey's throw bounced into center field. Orsatti pegged to Martin, and Umpire Geisel was motioning that White was out. But Marfin, diving to tag the runner, dropped the ball and the umpire had to change his decision. Vance then made a wild pitch and White scored.

Orsatti Upsets Gehringer.

Orsatti opened the St. Louis fourth with a single to left and when Durocher hit to Rogell, Orsatti slid into second with so much force that he upset Gehringer, who forthwith dropped Rogell's throw and both runners were safe. It was then that Davis singled scoring Orsatti and sending Durocher to third, whence Leo scored the tying run on the play which figured in the accident to Dizzy Dean.

Vance retired for a pinch hitter in that inning and Bill Walker kept the score tied until the seventh, when another error by Martin gave the Tigers a run to break the deadlock. Gehringer opened with a single to center and Goslin sacrificed. Rogell hit to Durocher who threw to Martin and when the Wild Horse dropped the ball, Gehringer was safe at third. Greenberg followed with a high fly to center. The ball was well hit and carried almost to the pavilion wall in right-center. Orsatti, blinded by the sun, was slow to start for the ball and after reaching it, failed to hold it and Greenberg was credited with a double. Gehringer, of course, scored on the hit.

Cardinals 7-10, Detroit Even Money Today

ALTHOUGH their ace pitcher is thought to be a doubtful quantity as a result of being hit in the head by a thrown ball, the Cardinals are still favorites, at 7 to 10, to win today's game and to win the World Series, according to Tom Kearney, betting commissioner.

Detroit is now an even money bet to win the title and Kearney considers them an even money proposition in today's fifth game.

Tigers Score Five Runs in Eighth.

The Tigers ran away with the game in the eighth, adding five more runs. White, first up, walked and when Cochrane bunted, Walker threw late and low to second and both runners were safe. Gehringer sacrificed and after Goslin was passed intentionally, Rogell singled to center, scoring White and Cochrane. Greenberg hit the pavilion wall in right-center, scoring Goslin and because a spectator reached out and touched the ball, Rogell was stopped at third and Greenberg at second, the umpires ruling it a technical two-base hit. Jess Maines relieved Walker and Owen's single scored Rogell and Greenberg scored on a double steal as Owen reached second.

The Game in Detail.

There was an argument while White, first up in the first inning, was at bat. Umpire Reardon went through the manual gesture of calling a strike on the first pitch at which the batter took a half-swing and when the next one was a strike and the scoreboard showed one and one, Frisch and Durocher ran in. But Reardon explained that it was one and one and it remained that way. However, White flied to Orsatti to make the dispute unimportant. Cochrane then complained at a called second strike, after which he grounded to Frisch. Gehringer, the only Tiger slugger performing up to expectations thus far, singled to center for his sixth hit of the series, but when Goslin lined to right-center, the reliable Rothrock ran over for the catch .

Martin, leading off for the Cardinals, drew a pass, but Rothrock hit to Auker and Rogell was middle man in a double play. Frisch lined to Goslin for the third out.

Rogell struck out without taking his bat off his shoulder to start the second inning and Carleton's first two pitches to Greenberg were strikes, but Tex missed the plate three times with cross-fire curve and Greenberg then lined a single off Durocher's glove. Owen and Fox, however, could do nothing with the cowboy's cracking curve, Owen popping to Frisch and Fox to Durocher.

The Tigers went into the lead in the third inning. Carleton started by pitching three balls to Auker, but found the plate and Orsatti caught Auker's fly near the pavilion, running into the concrete after the catch. White struck out, but Cochrane doubled down the right field line and Carleton walked Gehringer and Goslin, filling the bases. Rogell lined a single over second, scoring Cochrane and Gehringer and sending Goslin to third and Dazzy Vance making his first appearance on the hill in a world series, relieved Carleton. Greenberg greeted the veteran with a hot grounder near second and while Durocher reached the ball, it caromed off his glove for a single. Goslin scored and Rogell reached second. Owen also got an infield hit. Martin ran over in front of short for his slow bounder and hurried throw was high. Collines had to leap to catch the ball and before he touched the bag Owen had arrived and the bases were filled. Vance had trouble finding the plate for Fox who worked his string to three balls and one strike, but Dazzy grooved the next one, a called strike and Fox swung and missed the next one to end the inning.

Vance felt that he was not properly warmed up and as the Cards went to bat in the third, the Dazzler hurried to the bullpen and pitched to Francis Healy to loosen his muscles.

Auker disposed of Martin on a grounder to Owen and Rothrock on a tap to Gehringer, but Rogell lost Frisch's high bounding grounder in the sun and it went over his shoulder for a single. Medwick waited and walked and Ripper Collins singled to center for his sixth series hit, scoring Frisch and sending Medwick to third. De Lancey, however, tapped gently to Auker to end the inning.

Vance burned a called third strike over the plate for Auker, leading off in the fourth, but trouble quickly developed. White walked and dashed for second on the first pitch to Cochrane. DeLancey's throw was low and White continued on his way to third. Orsatti's throw to Martin had the runner, but after Umpire Geisel had called him out the ball popped out of Martin's hand and the decision had to be reversed. Martin made a dive for the runner and the error nullified a fine play. Vance's next pitch was wild, hitting the dirt and bouncing away from DeLancey and White scored. Cochrane took a called third strike and Gehringer grounded to Frisch to end the inning.

Lively argument enlivened the Cardinal fourth. Orsatti, first up, lined a single to left-center. Durocher grounded to Rogell and upset Gehringer and Charley dropped the throw. Umpire Klem waved Orsatti safe and stuck to his decision as the Tigers crowded around him, contending that it was dirty work at the cross roads and that not only Orsatti, but both men should be called out. Virgil Davis, the forgotten man of the series, then broke in the picture. Spud, who was one of the leading hitters of the league in 1933, batted for Vance. He looked bad on the first two pitches, but finally lined a single over Greenberg's head, Orsatti scampered home and Durocher reached third.

Tigers To Fall With the Leaves Say the Deans

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

(Copyright, 1934.)

This series is something like two lumberjacks fighting on a rollling log.

The teams seem to be as evenly matched as the Sultan's Pearls.

Detroit owns a great slinger in Schoolboy Rowe, but he ain't twins. And the breaks of the game compelled the slender kid to pitch a tough twelve-inning game to cop. That takes the starch out of his laundry.

It's autumn now and somebody has to fall with the leaves. The Deans have dicided it is going to be Detroit.

No matter who wins, the fans have seen plenty of baseball of all kinds. We ain't including the gambling fan who will lay even money that a hawk can kill a sparrow. We mean the bleached-in-the-wood hometown bug who roots for his favorites, win or lose.

What college are the Deans going to this fall? We will be there on the 50-yard line.

Dizzy Dean Injured.

Dizzy Dean went in to run for Davis and misfortune overtook the Cardinals. Martin hit to Gehringer, whose throw to Rogell forced Dizzy at second. Rogell, firing to first for a double play, hit Dizzy on the head. The ball bounced high into the air and Dizzy fell to the ground. Players swarmed from the Cardinal bench and surrounded their fallen hero, while the Tigers stood about box and Jess Haines went to the in little groups. Dizzy finally was picked up and carried off the field.

Durocher scored on the play and the teams were tied, 4 to 4. Rothrock flied to Goslin. Frisch forced Martin at second to end the inning.

Bill Walker went to the hill in the fifth and Goslin quickly grounded to Frisch. Rogell flied to Orsatti, who made the catch with the sun plainly bothering him. Greenberg reached first on Martin's fumble of his hot grounder near the line, but Pepper grabbed Owen's bounder and threw him out.

Medwick Gets Eighth Hit.

Medwick opened the Cardinal fifth with a single to right, his eighth hit of the series, but did some stupid base running to make the inning scoreless. After Collins flied to White, Delancey walked. Orsatti lined to Greenberg and Delancey beat Greenberg back to first to prevent a double play, but Medwick was watching the play and when Greenberg turned and fired to Rogell, Medwick was doubled off second.

There was a Tiger threat in the sixth when Fox led off with a double that hit the base of the bleacher wall in left-center, but Walker pitched out of danger. Auker's sacrifice moved Fox to third, but White fouled to Martin. Cochrane had a chance to break the tie, but with a call of two strikes and one ball, Bill gave him a half speed ball and Mickey flied to right, an easy catch for the reliable Rothrock.

Durocher finally got his first hit of the series, opening the home sixth, with a drive between Owen and Rogell, but it didn't lead to anything. Walker, trying to bunt struck out, Martin popped to Gehringer and and Gehringer fumbled Rothrock's grounder but recovered in time to get his man at first.

Cardinal Defense Falters.

The Cardinal defense faltered again in the seventh and the Tigers broke the tie. Gehringr, first up, singled to center, and Goslin sacrificed. Rogell then hit to Durocher and Gehringer was safe at third Greenberg followed with a high fly to center field. Orsatti, after a slow start, reached the ball, but it popped out of his hands and was scored as a double. Gehringer scored on the hit and Rogell reached third, but Owen lined to Rothrock and, after Fox was passed intentionally, Auker grounded to Frisch.

As the Cards went to bat for their seventh, Announcer Kelley was shouting to the customers, to the tune of cheers, that "Dizzy Dean apparently was all right."

It was Auker's best inning, the first in which the Cardinals failed to put a man on base. Frisch flied to Fox. Greenberg made a fancy pick-up of Medwick's hot liner and Collins grounded gently to the first baseman.

Greenberg Gets Fourth Hit.

More trouble for the Redbirds in the eighth. White drew a pass and when Cochrane bunted, Walker threw wild to second, with only an outside chance for a force play and both runners were safe. Gehringer sacrificed and Goslin was passed intentionally, filling the bases. Rogell almost hit into a desired double play, but his grounder near second caromed off Durocher's glove to center field for a single, scoring White and Cochrane and sending Goslin to third. Greenberg had another hit in his bat, his seventh of the series and his fourth of the game. His line drive hit near the top of the pavilion wall in right-center, and Greenberg reached third, but because a spectator reached out and touched the ball it was ruled a two-base hit and while Goslin scored, Rogell was ordered back to third and Greenberg to second.

This knocked Walker out of the mound for the Cardinals, their fourth pitcher of the afternoon. Owen greeted Pop with a single to right and Rogell scored, but Greenberg stopped at third. This set the stage for a double steal and when Owen dashed for second as Owen struck out, De Lancey threw to Frisch and Greenberg beat Frank's relay to DeLancey. The ball bounced off DeLancey's glove ror when Owen reached third. Auker took a called third strike to end the disastrous frame with the Tigers leading, 10 to 4.

Orsatti's single was the only break as Auker retired the Cards in the eighth. Crawford batted for Haines and grounded out and Mooney then went to the hill to finish the game.

White singled to center for the Tigers' thirteenth hit, and Cochrane sacrifice, but Gehringer popped to Durocher and Goslin grounded to Collins.

Martin beat out a grounder to Rogell to start the Redbirds' final turn at bat and Rothrock connected solidly, but White ran back and caught the fly, and when Rogell took Frisch's grounder, stepped on second and relayed to Greenberg, the series was even.

BOULDER, Colo., Oct. 6.—The football teams of universities of Missouri and Colorado battled to a scoreless tie today.

It was Colorado's second scoreless tie in two weeks, as they fought a draw with Kansas at Lawrence last Saturday.

Colorado ran the ball to Missouri's 3-yard line soon after the second period opened, but the brightest scoring chance of the game was muffed.

The nearest Missouri could get to scoring during the dull contest was Colorado's 11-yard line as the result of a 13-yard punt by "Kayo" Lam, Colorado's second-string quarterback.

Sid Johnson, Fred Biggs and Joe Angello made most of Missouri's yardage and Angello tossed the only two Missouri passes that were complete. One, caught by Johnson, was good for 27 yards in the fourth period.

Missouri used a delayed buck with Johnson packing the leather that was good for considerable ground, but instead of using this or other running plays when in scoring territory the Tigers chose to attack from the air and every such effort failed.

Colorado made 14 first downs to Missouri's 11, gained 192 yards from scrimmage to Missouri's 204 and 83 yards on passes compared with 34 earned by the Tigers.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Did Frankie Boot One?

UNLESS Dizzy Dean rises in his might today to smite the Tigers again, Frankie Frisch may have a hard time escaping the odium of having committed the world's championship boner of all time, when he sent Dizzy Dean in to run for Virgil Davis in the fourth game of the series.

Of course Dizzy may come around all right; he may suffer nothing more lasting than a headache, as a result of Rogell's hitting him on the head. On the other hand, the singers of the St. Louis Blues last night visualized, as extreme consequences, the inability of Frisch to use Dizzy during the remaining games of the series and the possible defeat of the club, in the championship struggle.

That is pessimism carried to extremes. Still, it might turn out that way. And if so, Frankie, would have to shoulder the blame.

Used Dizzy Once Before.

ELSEWHERE in this section Frisch gives a reasonable explanation of his action. One argument is that he had used Dizzy before as a pinch runner as well as Carleton.

Looking through the season's records we find that Frisch did use Dizzy to run in one game. On August 26, Dizzy was sent in to run for the same player he substituted for yesterday — Virgil Davis. He also used Carleton once, on June 13, when Tex ran for Davis.

Action Not Justified.

FRISCH'S argument is not sound, under the conditions. It would have been better to have allowed Davis to run than to risk the keystone of the Cardinals' championship hopes. There is no escape from that fact. Dean should have been kept from all possible chance of injury.

"Dean Nagged Me"—Frisch.

FRISCH said something else which more adequately explains his determination to use Dizzy. "Dean kept pulling my sleeve and begging me to use him," he said. "I knew that he was a fine runner and that I had used him as such before. I did not think it even remotely possible that he could be injured in such a role so I consented and let him go."

Dizzy, apparently intoxicated with fame, saw another chance to get before his public and he teased Frisch into letting him run. And that probably is the fundamental reason why he got into the game—and into trouble.

The chances are this remarkable fellow will be out there on the firing line today heaving them across with his accustomed stuff. He is really a miracle man. Nevertheless, it was a genuinely foolish risk for Frisch to take at such a time.

Watch Your Step.

ONE of the features of the current world series has been a heavy increase in betting. A local commissioner who handles stakes from out-of-town sources told this writer that the weight of metal carried on this series was three times the volume of any since 1926.

Moreover, throughout the season the bets on single games have been mounting in number and size. Fans wonder if this is just the natural increase to be expected of a nation that is more or less bet-crazed, or whether it reflects intensity of interest in baseball.

In any case, the growth of baseball betting will be viewed with considerable eyebrow lifting by baseball magnates, who see many sinister possibilities in top-heavy wagering. Once before this resulted in splashing a blot on the baseball escutcheon, one that was wiped out with great grief to individuals and to clubs involved.

Johnson Fought Gambling.

PRIOR to 1919 betting had been watched with a hawk-eye by President Ban Johnson. Every attempt of the gambling element to entangle baseball was fought by him. At one time, so great had the gambling practice developed in Boston parks that Johnson secretly contrived to buy up the obligations of the late owner of the Red Sox, Harry Frazee, and intended to compel him to withdraw from the game by foreclosure.

In this effort he was thwarted by another club owner who loaned Frazee enough money to protect his holdings.

Undermining Players.

THE first effect of the heavy betting on baseball in earlier days was the suborning of the pitchers. Gamblers obtained control here and there of star hurlers and, working in conjunction with one or two other players, were able to fix the result of any specific game.

At one time the "grapevine" connected the names of some outstanding men with these cheating episodes, but few convictions were made. Until 1919 the fixers had been getting away with it to the extent that the throwing of the 1919 series was actually plotted and executed, a New York underworld character being the master mind.

Hi-Jackers on the Job.

THAT the mere suggestion of buying a world series was ever made indicates the extent to which the minds of players must have been poisoned by the gambling element. They had been successful so frequently they thought that the world series could be managed, too—and it was.

The fact is there was not only one plot, but two, in that celebrated coup.

It was the effort of a high-jacking group which horned in on the original plot, that really brought to light developments. The main plot went through as scheduled and the players were paid off. The originator of the idea cleared upwards of $150,000.

But the secondary plot revealed the "cullud pusson" in the woodpile. On the night before the first game, played at Cincinnati, an enormous amount of money was dumped on the betting market by the gamblers and their friends on the inside and the odds which had been overwhelmingly on the White Sox, shifted before the game to Cincinnati.

The second group was attempting to buy the series game by game and the publicity attending their efforts to get their money down and the fact that several of the agents were known, too late, opened the eyes of officials to the fact that there was something very wrong.

They were unable to stop the plot, however, and it went on to its conclusion—which led to such a mess of scandal and confessions that fans were thoroughly disillusioned.

Baseball Got Well.

SUCH was the fundamental belief in the honesty of the game, however, that following the drastic action taken by Organized Baseball in banishing everybody concerned, even though the courts acquitted the men indicted, that baseball has not only gone on and upwards, but its reputation has been enhanced by the affair.

Today one hears nothing of scandals or of throwing games. For several years not a word has been heard of attempted fixing of games or even of much betting on contests.

Now the betting is on the boom again. But it is not of a nature to fear. This writer asked Tom Kearney, nationally known betting commissioner, if there was any evidence in the betting this year indicated a group of gamblers was operating anywhere.

"Nothing like that. I know all of the local money is clean and the out-of-town wagers do not follow lines that indicate any central operator. The bettors are very wise and they wait until the pitcher is announced. Sometimes the amounts run up into the hundreds, but we never handle stakes of that size from persons we do not thoroughly know.

"I don't think there is the slightest indication in the amount of wagering that the betting is becoming organized again. But I think the country is bet crazy, if you ask me."

Kearney Exposed Plot.

KEARNEY was one of the first to turn up the gamblers in the scandal series. The night of the first game, Kearney begged the late Otto Stifel, then part owner of the Browns, to wire President Ban Johnson and warn him the betting handled in his "store" made it certain that the series was being framed.

Stifel promised to do it, but later thought better of this and failed to notify Johnson. Had he done so immediately, steps might have been taken to prevent the completion of the plot.

ILLINOIS HARD PRESSED TO DEFEAT WASHINGTON, 12 TO 7

85-Yard Drive Gives Visitors Victory Few Minutes From End

in the last quarter. Les Lindberg, the loping Swede, was the hero of the 85-yard parade and it was fitting that he should have made the touchdown that brought victory to his team. He is a great running back.

In a manner of speaking, there were no "stars" on the Washington team for a star is one who stands out in his play. Every Washington player who saw service is entitled to any badge of honor accorded. Captain Harry Brown was the biggest ground gainer for he dashed 53 yards on a brilliant run in the first quarter and in the third quarter got away for 45 yards putting th ball on Illinois' 20-yard line and giving the Bears a second scoring opportunity. Here Illinois braced after Droke had gathered seven yards off tackle and kicked out of danger.

Throughout the game, despite the disparity in the number of yards gained, play was fairly even. Illinois could gain but not often when within scoring distance. Washington had only the two chances to score and made good on one of them.

Flowers fc~ Conzelman.

Washington's ıne stood the test. In fact, the entire Conzelman combination clicked beautifully and followers of the Bears are looking for the best season in years. They have reason their optimism. The Bears, cleverly coached, "know what it's all about" and "have what it takes." It is difficult to vision them defeated by any team that remains on the 1934 schedule.

Moreover, you probably can get an argument as to whether this 1934 team isn't better than the S. A. T. C. team of 1918.

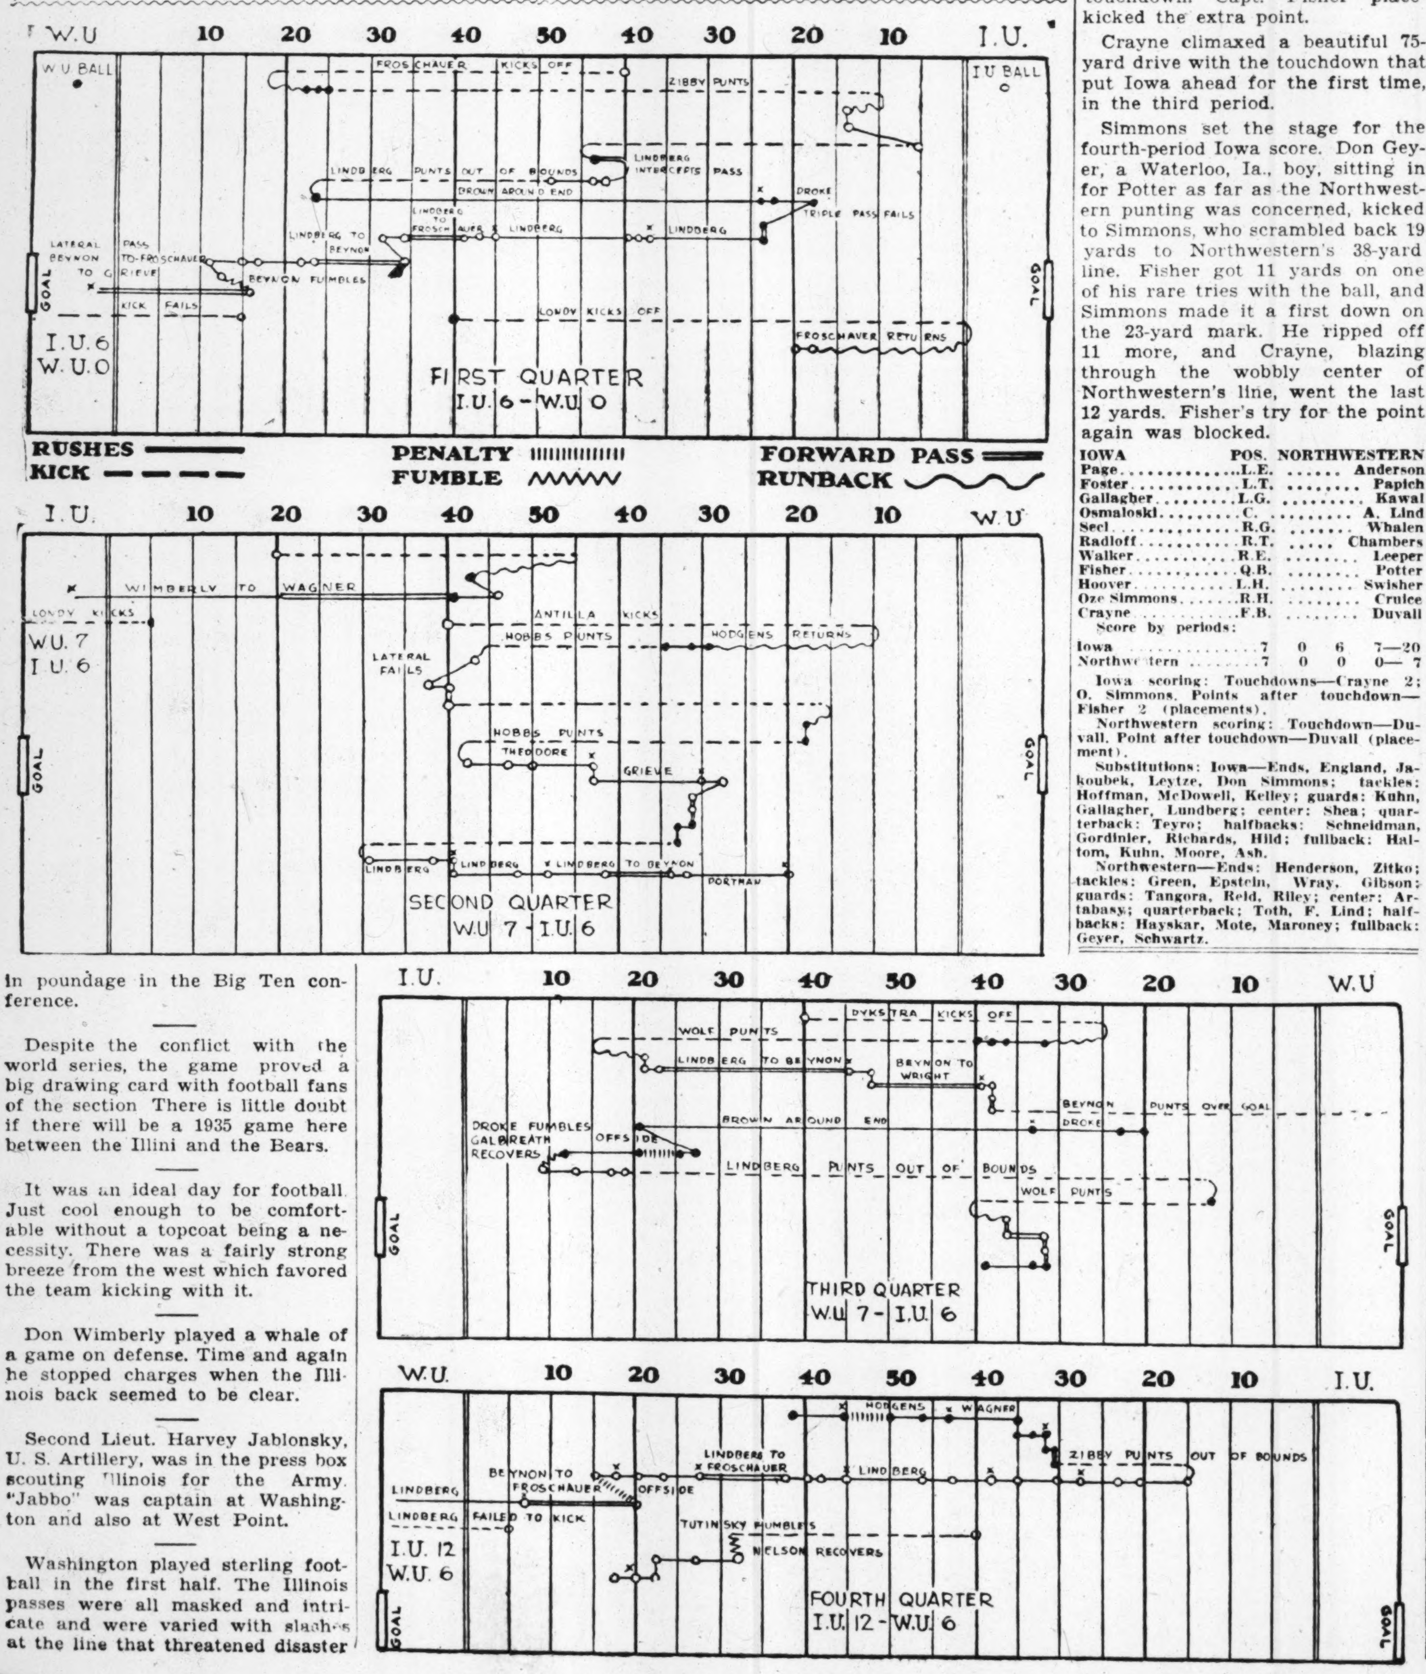
Notes of the Game.

For a half hour before the game, the great University of Illinois band gave a concert. The full strength of the band—165 men under A. A. Harding—was musical action. Their famous and intricate marching formations drew a big cheer from the crowd. Their singing of "Fair Washington" was a gem.

There were almost enough Big Ten scouts present to make up an all-America eleven. Prominent were Floyd Stahl of Ohio State, Walter Weber of Michigan and Waldo Fisher of Northwestern. Illinois meets Ohio State next Saturday.

The Illinois squad is the smallest in poundage in the Big Ten conference.

How the Battle Waged at Francis Field



Despite the conflict with the world series, the game proved a big drawing card with football fans of the section There is little doubt if there will be a 1935 game here between the Illini and the Bears.

It was an ideal day for football. Just cool enough to be comfortable without a topcoat being a necessity. There was a fairly strong breeze from the west which favored the team kicking with it.

Don Wimberly played a whale of a game on defense. Time and again he stopped charges when the Illinois back seemed to be clear.

Second Lieut. Harvey Jablonsky, U. S. Artillery, was in the press box scouting Illinois for the Army. "Jabbo" was captain at Washington and also at West Point.

Washington played sterling football in the first half. The Illinois passes were all masked and intricate and were varied with slashes at the line that threatened disaster toward the end of the second quarter.

Strangely enough, Washington outgained Illinois by passing in the first half, the figures being, Washington, 40; Illinois 39. The Illini in the first two periods made 10 first downs to two for the Bears and, by rushing gained 131 yards to 26 for Washington.

Between the halves, a sign was posted on the scoreboard, reading "How about that practice game." It referred to the remark alleged to have been made by Coach Zuppke in advance of the contest. "Zup," however, denied that he made any such reference. Those who know "Zup" know he was misquoted.

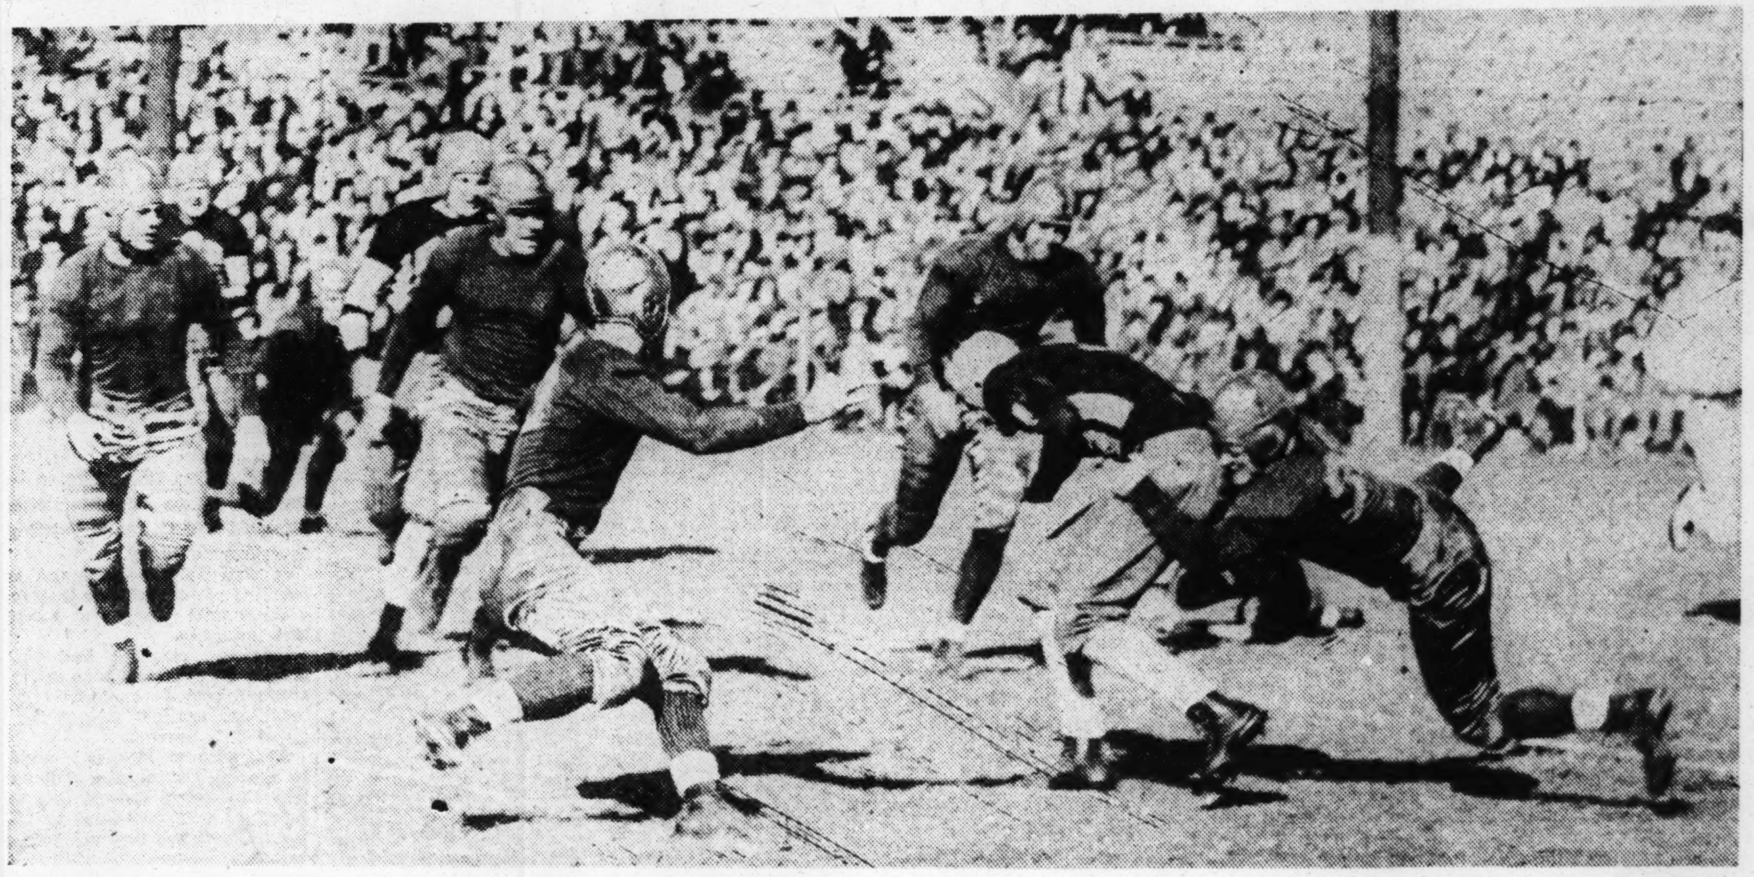
FROSCHAUER GAINS FOR ILLINI AGAINST THE BEARS



Iowa Wins by 20 to 7 Over Northwestern in Its Big Ten Opener

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 6.—Iowa's infantrymen, striking savagely three times, conquered Northwestern's air-minded gridiron forces today, 20 to 7, in a dazzling offensive battle at Dyche stadium.

Northwestern staged a brilliant aerial raid, but for all of the accuracy of George Potter's right arm, it could not overcome the battering drives of Dick Crayne, the Hawkeyes' 195-pound fullback, nor the twisting, squirming runs of Oze Simmons, a brilliant sophomore Negro halfback from Fort Worth, Tex.

Crayne and Simmons did 98 per cent of the Iowa ball carrying and although occasionally tossed for losses by the desperate Wildcats, between them turned in more than 200 of Iowa's 233 yards gained on the ground.

The battle was the first conference test for each team, and stamped Iowa as just what the experts figured it to be—a potent contender for the Big Ten championship for the first time since it was readmitted to athletic competition, after its suspension in 1929.

After Northwestern, staging an amazing raid through the skies, had taken the lead early in the first period, 170 pounds of shimmering, elusive speed and power had Iowa back in the ball game with little delay. Taking the ball on Northwestern's 48-yard line, Simmons burst through a hole in the middle of the Wildcat forward wall, jerked loose from four tacklers and made the first Hawkeye touchdown. Capt. Fisher placekicked the extra point.

Crayne climaxed a beautiful 75-yard drive with the touchdown that put Iowa ahead for the first time, in the third period.

Simmons set the stage for the fourth-period Iowa score. Don Geyer, a Waterloo, Ia., boy, sitting in for Potter as far as the Northwestern punting was concerned, kicked to Simmons, who scrambled back 19 yards to Northwestern's 38-yard line. Fisher got 11 yards on one of his rare tries with the ball, and Simmons made it a first down on the 23-yard mark. He ripped off 11 more, and Crayne, blazing through the wobbly center of Northwestern's line, went the last 12 yards. Fisher's try for the point again was blocked.

Harvard Scores Early to Beat Bates, 12 to 0

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6. — Fred Moseley and Chet Litman scored a pair of first period touchdowns to give Harvard a 12 to 0 victory over a scrappy Bates eleven in the opening game of the Crimson season here today.

Bates threatened three times in the second half but couldn't score.

Only about 2500 spectators braved steady downpour to see the game.

Bowling Notes

Bud Folkerth and Fred Blasberg turned in 700 totals at the Cinderella Recreation last week, Folkerth getting 707 on games of 278, 219 and 210, while Blasberg got 259, 268 and 185, for a total of 712. Folkerth has an average of 208 in the Cinderella Scratch League with George Bobmeyer second with 206.

Fred Johnston is leading the Cinderella handicap league with a 200 average, while Miss Lee Chase tops the Monday Night women's league with 180. Gert Weidemann is right behind with 178.

The Dorr-Zeller team topped Heidel's women's scratch league last week with a 2828 total, finishing with a 1000 game. The Dorrs won three games from the Parks with Lucille Wilson leading the parade with a three-game total of 613. Gert Weidemann had 599, and Ann Johnson 574. Esther Holman had 522 for the Parks. In the other matches the Eurekas won two from the Waldens, the Vescovos took three from the Student's Den and the Heidels won the odd game from the Hellrungs. Irene Schreiber did the best shooting in the league, collecting a 649 count for the Eurekas. Other high scorers were: Mrs. C. Schuessler 557, Laura Barton 555, Lucille Eaves 582, Mary Hughes 511 and Marge Timmer 533.

The Dowlings are leading the Downtown handicap league at the Washington alleys with a record of eight games won and one lost, with the Caseys in second place one game behind. Otting of the Rogans holds high average with 180, while Lucks, with a supposedly injured hand, is running a close second with 174. The Caseys hold high single and high three with 954 and 2520.

The Brocks rolled into second place in the Mound City league by taking three games from the Nadas while the Judge Butlers dropped to third place by losing one game to the Peter Hauptmans. Kendall with 545 and Englander 586 were high scorers. The Comforts won two games from the Fosters and the Silver Seals took three from the Liberty Bells. Scott had 584 for the Seals and L. Fehr Sr., 523 for the Liberty Bells.

A mixed doubles contest is being held at the Washington alleys and several openings remain on today's squads. Any bowler desiring to compete in the event are asked to call Clarence Kaley, GArfield 8953.

Results in the Electrical Board of Trade league were as follows: Generals 2, Otis 1; Bussmans 2, Kearneys 1; Appleton 2, Utilities 1; Sachs 3, Kearney No. 2 0; James 3, Westinghouse 0; Glassco 2, Moloneys 1. Johnson with 634 and Mulcahy 609 were the high scorers.

Vic Helmer was the best bowler in the Newspaper league last week with a 594 total and helped the States make a clean sweep of their series with the Sport Salads, who totaled only 2403. The Ripleys won the odd game from the Wray's Column and the Stars took two from the Popeyes in the other matches. Wilkening 561, Gorman 555, Stockman 559 and Kerley 580, were the team leaders.

Minnesota Shows Its Vaunted Power, Running Over Nebraska by 20-0

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 6.—Minnesota's juggernaut, fumbling and plunging like a bull in a china shop, hammered out a 20-to-0 victory over Nebraska's dogged Cornhuskers today after frittering away five opportunities to pile up a bigger score.

Thirty-eight thousand fans saw the elusive three-fingered Pug Lund make sparkling runs that contributed to the Gophers' 15 first downs for 240 yards in gains by rushing. in the first half, not one inch of which in itself, brought a touchdown.

Minnesota capitalized on a Nebraska error to score their first touchdown when W. Bevan, guard, intercepted a Cornhusker pass in the second period and scampered 32 yards to the goal line. Big, burly, Stan Kostka, the rampaging terror from the west, followed this with two bursts in the fourth period for two more touchdowns.

Lund, who fumbled seven times, without serious results, started off the game with 46 yards in four running plays but Nebraska held for downs on the one-foot line.

Nebraska, on second play of the second period, attempted a pass which Bevan snared and converted into a touchdown.

Kostka, the 215-pound fullback, crossed the line for eight yards and the Gophers second touchdown in the final quarter. He followed this with a 47-yard gallop through right guard for the third Gopher touchdown five minutes before the gun.

The game was barely five minutes old when Lund ran a Nebraska punt back 27 yards for a touchdown only to have the play called back and the Gophers penalized for holding.

Minnesota gained 423 yards by rushing for 20 first downs against 88 yards for six first downs for the Cornhuskers.

Rowe Doubts Cardinals Can Win Next Two Games, Ready to Pitch Today

By Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe.

Detroit's Leading Pitcher.

Well, we've come back twice after the Cardinals had us one game down in the series. It's time now for us to step out and do a little leading ourselves. Our hitting has been looking more natural since the late innings of the third game, and I think now that we should be good enough to keep the Cards from beating us. They'd have to take two of the next three and I don't feel they can do it.

What looked for a few minutes as a terrible break for the Cardinals has turned out happily. I just can't explain how I felt when Dizzy Dean lay stretched out there on the field. And I know how Bill Rogell felt, too. There wouldn't be much satisfaction in winning a series if victory came through the injury of the greatest star on the other team. And we sure were pulling down on the bench for him to get up and walk off the field. When they carried him off, we feared he had been very badly hurt. Later we got the good news that he wasn't.

Felt Auker Would Win.

If Dizzy should be kept out of the series by a sore arm or something like that, I'm sure nobody on our side would complain. We admire him too much as a pitcher to be sore if he couldn't work against us. But we don't want him out through an accident in which any of our team had a part, even though it was accidental as that one was today.

I just had a hunch that Auker would do it. And I knew down deep, too, that Hank Greenberg wasn't going to fail us in a big series like this. He has too much ability and too much courage to be stumped by a world series. He started to slam in the last inning Friday and he was at it all afternoon in this fourth game. He came close to getting five hits for himself and that would have set a new series record. You see we keep a pretty good line on what a fellow has to do to set a new mark. Nobody ever got more than four hits in one world series game.

Ready to Pitch Today.

I'm not sure, as these lines are written, whether or not I am to pitch the fifth game. I may get the call, or it may be Tom Bridges. I am ready if I have to pitch. I warmed up yesterday afternoon and my arm felt fine. In fact it has felt fine since the long game Thursday in Detroit. My arm was a little tired that night, of course, after all the pitching I had to do, but it felt great Friday and yesterday.

We all realized that this game yesterday was the one we had to win. If we lost it the Cards would have needed only one of the last three to win the title. And the way they have been playing through this series no team would figure to beat them three straight, as we would have to do had we lost this one.

The feeling in our clubhouse after the game was that we are on our way. We have some hard work ahead, I know, but I am satisfied that our hitting will go on until we finally clinch the series.

The first Saturday afternoon football double-header for 1934 at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday saw two utterly diferent types of games. In the first contest of the twin bill the Soldan and Beaumont elevens battled through three scoreless periods and then, with the minutes ticking away toward the completion of the final quarter, both teams scored, ending the game in a 6—6 tie. McKinley High romped over the Cleveland team in the second game, 20 to 0.

The Beaumont-Soldan game was a see-saw contest with the action skipping from the shadow of one goal post to the other. Soldan offered the first threat in the initial quarter when Jimmy Dimiatrades, right half, knifed through the left side of his line for 30 yards and was downed on the 10-yard stripe. Soldan's attack then faltered.

The scoreless situation was ended when Wilson Schwenk, Beaumont quarterback, looped around right end, cut back and raced down the left side of the field for 87 yards and a touchdown, early in the quarter.

Soldan strove desperately from that point to score and its efforts were crowned with but two minutes left, when Carl Steimentz crisscrossed through the right side of the line for five yards to a touchdown. Soldan had advanced on several sparkling passing plays with McGreevey to Steimnetz as the combination.

In the McKinley-Cleveland game, the former saw its scoring chances and took advantage of the situation, counting once in the first quarter, again in the second and completed the job with another touchdown in the final period.

Walter Songer, McKinley right end, rushed in to block Wilfred Kracke's punt late in the first quarter, and then grabbed the oval and raced 60 yards for a touchdown. Richard O'Connell booted the ball through the uprights for the extra point.

Julius Blanke, fullback, crossed the Cleveland goal line just before the half ended after three successive line bucks. The kick was blocked but as the half ended the Gold Bugs were out in front by a 13 to 0 count.

McKinley's scoring efforts for the day seemed to be stifled but with an almost complete substitute team, the Gold Bugs whipped across the line again in the fourth quarter O'Connell toting the leather.

MISS VAN WIE WINS U. S. GOLF TITLE THIRD TIME IN ROW

CALIFORNIA GIRL CARRIES HER TO 35TH GREEN IN 2 AND 1 FINAL

By BOB CAVAGNARO,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Finishing with a burst of brilliance, Virginia Van Wie of Chicago today turned back the stubborn challenge of Dorothy Traung, 20-year-old San Francisco golf prodigy, and won the National Women's championship for the third successive year.

As darkness was setting in and after both players had made bold bids for eagle threes that missed by inches, the thirty-eighth annual tournament ended dramatically on the thirty-fifth green with Miss Van Wie the winner by a margin of two up and one to play.

In the Hall of Fame.

Thus the golf Hall of Fame bade welcome to the 25-year-old Chicago star, who became the fourth woman to win three successive titles. The others were Beatrix Hoyt, Alexa Stirling Fraser and Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare.

Miss Van Wie's victory also prevented California from obtaining a three-ply monopoly on the major American championships, Olin Dutra having won the open and W. Lawson Little the national amateur last month.

Erratic playing that included three three-putt greens on the first nine holes set Miss Van Wie three down at the turn and a par rally beginning with the twelfth hole enabled her to draw level at the fourteenth; taking the lead for the first time at the seventeenth and be all square with the plodding and persistent girl from the Golden West at the halfway stage.

Miss Traung, flashing a remarkable coolness for one so young and inexperienced, took advantage of Miss Van Wie's putting lapses and covered the first nine in 42, while the champion blew herself to a 45.

Self-Imposed Penalty.

A self-imposed penalty on the sixth hole, where she moved her ball while addressing it, unnerved Miss Traung for the next few holes and figured no little in her second nine 43 for an 85. The fateful break against the Pacific Coast youngster was a boon to Miss Van Wie, who regained her putting touch sufficiently to come back in 40, one over women's par, for an 85.

Playing the last three holes of the third nine in two under par, Miss Van Wie was out in 40 to 42 for Miss Traung, and when the match finished on the thirty-fifth green the champion was only one over par for the afternoon round.

The cards:

Morning Round.

Par—Out	445	454	553—39
[illegible]	445	454	553—39
Miss Van Wie	656	555	643—45
Miss Traung	555	465	642—42
Par—In	553	445	354—38—77
Miss Van Wie	563	455	345—40—85
Miss Traung	574	465	354—43—85

Afternoon Round.

Miss Van Wie—Out	565	445	443—40
Miss Traung—Out	565	454	554—42
Miss Van Wie—In	553	555	34
Miss Traung—In	562	545	44

Miss Van Wie wins, 2 and 1.

WEBSTER GROVES DEFEATS CENTRAL FOR THIRD VICTORY

Webster Groves High School's football team won its third victory of the season, 6—0, over Central High of the City High School League yesterday afternoon at the Webster Field. The shutout conquest continued Webster's record of not having its goal line crossed this season.

That fine end of Webster, Russell Hudler, was again the mainstay of the Webster team, his punting and passing enabling his team to outplay Central. Also, he threw the pass to Moller that ended in a touchdown.

The pass came in the second quarter and followed a triple handling of the ball in the backfield. The pass itself was good for [illegible] yards, and Moller ran the remaining 10 for the score. Peters' place-kick was wide.

The Statesmen outgained Central, [illegible] in first downs.

OKLAHOMA NOSES OUT CENTENARY, 7 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 6. — The University of Oklahoma, aided by a last-quarter inspiration of Jeff [illegible], junior right end, nosed out a 7 to 0 victory over Centenary today before a crowd of 10,000.

The game snapped a streak of the Shreveport eleven which earned [illegible] first downs in rushing and passing to Oklahoma's two and 122 yards in rushing to the Sooners' 39.

The visitors attempted 18 passes to Oklahoma's two, completing seven passes to the home team's one. The Gents gained 94 yards to Oklahoma's 19 on forward passes.

Winner and Runner-Up in the U. S. Title Final

Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, who successfully defended her title, and Miss Dorothy Traung of San Francisco.

KANSAS STATE AND MANHATTAN PLAY 13-13 TIE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. — Young men from two Manhattans met in a quagmire here today in an intersectional football game with barely 5000 persons in the stands, and after the referee's whistle had ended the game, the score was tied at 13 to 13.

It was mentor against pupil with Manhattan College, New York, coached by Chick Meehan, opposing Kansas State from Manhattan, Kan., led by one of Chick's former pupils, Lynn Waldorf, tackle at Syracuse a decade ago.

Kansas Scores First.

After utilizing the first eight minutes in feeling out the sliding possibilities of the muddy sward with a punting duel between Armstrong and Byrne for diversion, Churchill blocked a kick on Manhattan's 25. Armstrong tossed a forward to Stoner, who slid to the 3-yard line and on the next play Stoner took it over. Stoner also converted the place kick, and Kansas State led 7 to 0 as the period closed.

With the ball in State's possession on their own three stripe, the result of Byrne's punt closing the first quarter, Connell blocked Stoner's kick and recovered. Downey then went over and Selck, subbing for Bartell, place-kicked the point, tying the score.

Taber Recovers Fumble.

A few moments later, Taber recovered a fumble on State's 47; Byrne made first down on the 25 and then Downey tossed a beautiful 30-yard pass to Gallagher behind the State goal. The try for point failed and the Jaspers led by 13—7.

Reverses to the left and right by Stoner and Armstrong interspersed with an occasional buck by Elder brought the ball to the Manhattan five-yard stripe where after failing on one pass, Stoner completed one to Churchill for a touchdown. Connell blocked Stoner's place-kick for the point, and the period ended with the Meehan clan alternately fumbling and recovering, and the score tied at 13—13.

Meehan's Line Stiffens.

Opportunity knocked for State when Ayers, Warren, Stoner and Armstrong alternated to bring the ball from midfield to the Manhattan three-yard stripe but it was the Meehanites who refused to let the door open. First down and three to go for the winning score, Stoner was smeared for alternate three-yard losses and he then essayed a place-kick from an almost impossible angle, the ball barely rising over the line of scrimmage.

Manhattan kicked out of danger and before any damage could be done the game ended with the ball in Manhattan's grip, midfield.

MATE RUNS THIRD, VICTOR EMMANUEL'S HORSE WINS STAKE

KEMPTON PARK, Eng., Oct. 6. —Victor Emmanuel's good campaigner, Statesman, today won the Duke of York Handicap at a mile and a quarter by three quarters of a length from Lord Wollavington's Montrose and a field of eight others.

A. C. (Brother) Bostwick's aged campaigner Mate, the second American-owned horse in the race, finished third two lengths behind Montrose.

Double Bill at Maplewood.

A baseball doubleheader will be played this afternoon at the Maplewood Junior High grounds, starting at 1 o'clock. In the first game, the Wolfs, champions of the Maplewood Municipal League, will oppose the Gasts, and in the second game the Maplewood All-Stars will meet the Clayton A. C. Negro team.

Auto Races Next Sunday.

Fourteen speed pilots already have entered next Sunday's automobile racing card at the Ramona Speedway. They include Floyd Davis, holder of the track record, and Porte Defraites, winner of the feature event two weeks ago. The card which was postponed from today because of the world's series, will include a 25-lap grind, three 10-lap preliminaries, a 10-lap consolation and a four-lap match race between the two fastest cars.

RICE SCORES LATE TO BEAT PURDUE, 14-0

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 6.—A battling team from Rice Institute gave the Houston (Tex.) school the greatest gridiron triumph in its football history by defeating Purdue today, 14 to 0.

Two of the best backfield men who ever performed on the turf of Ross-Ade Stadium led the Owls in a slashing attack that bested the Boilermakers in every period except the third. John McCauley and Bill Wallace were the pair.

It appeared that the battling Texans had played out in the third period, but they spurted anew in the fourth and before the quarter was fairly under way they had scored on a pass from Wallace to McCauley, the play netting a total of 57 yards. The surprised Purdue players watched John Sylvester boot a perfect place kick to make the score 7 to 0.

Purdue Becomes Desperate.

Coach Noble Kizer's team was ragged during the remaining 12 minutes of the game, fumbling and dropping passes and in a frantic effort to even the score attempted the unusual play of hurling a pass from behind its own goal line. This play led to a second touchdown for the Owls, Vernon Craig, the Purdue passer, fumbling. Frank Steen of the Owls recovered the ball in the end zone. J. Friedman place-kicked for the final point.

The victory of Coach Jimmy Kitts' Southerners terminated Purdue's long record of having scored at least one touchdown in each of its last 48 games.

Purvis on Sidelines.

Purdue was without the services of its star halfback, Duane Purvis. He is nursing a sprained ankle. Without him Kizer's men seemed unableto gain against the rugged Rice line.

On statistics the teams were evenly matched, but Rice played a smarter game to win a well-deserved victory. Rice gained 272 yards from the scrimmage line against 241 for Purdue and made 12 first downs to 11 for the Boilermakers.

The lineup:

RICE.	Pos.	PURDUE.
Williams	L. E.	Baumbach
Frankie	L. T.	Burmeister
Bale	L. G.	Dahlbeck
Arthur	C.	Bell
Brandon	R. G.	Voss

KANSAS STATE TIES MANHATTAN, 13-13

By the Associated Press.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Kansas State and Manhattan splashed and slipped through a quagmire here today without definite result, the intersectional football tilt ending in a 13—13 stalemate.

Out for the Season.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 6.—Two Kentucky gridiron players are out for the season as a result of injuries. Charley Hall, end for Morehead Teachers, broke his right leg in today's game against Centre College at Danville. Captain Vaughn Woodall, left tackle for Murray Teachers, broke his collar bone last night in a game at Murray against Stetson.

GUNNERS MEET OKLAHOMA TEAM HERE TODAY IN PRO ENCOUNTER

Clad in new red, white and blue jerseys and gold-colored pants, Chile Walsh's St. Louis Gunners will make their 1934 debut this afternoon when they oppose the Oklahoma City Chiefs in a professional football contest at the Public Schools Stadium. The kick-off is at 3:15, but the gates will be opened at 1 o'clock and early arrivals will be entertained by a broadcast of the world series.

Playing National League elevens and the strongest independent teams last year, the Gunners lost only two games. They hope to do as well this season.

The Gunners are starting off the season with most of the mainstays of the 1933 aggregation and a number of new players who promise to make the team more powerful. The strongest of independent clubs and National League representatives again will be the Walshmen's foes.

Two Sets of Backs.

Walsh has more than two complete sets of backs and it is a toss-up as to which is the more valuable. On the offense he intends to employ Chester "Swede" Johnston, fullback, who scored more points and touchdowns than all his teammates combined last season, and Gene Alford and Cy Casper, a pair of new men, most of the time. Alford, a regular with the Portsmouth Spartans for three seasons, and Casper, who came here from the Green Bay Packers, are rated by Walsh almost on a par with Johnston.

Walsh has Charley McLaughlin, the long-distance punter and passer from Wichita University; Manuel "Fat" Rapp and Benny Le Presta holding down positions on his defensive combination.

Good Quarterbacks Available.

In Blake Workman, a veteran, Bill Senn, former National Leaguer, and Stumpy Cronin of Notre Dame, Walsh has a trio of quarterbacks who understand his system of coaching, and each is trained to work with either set of backs.

The line has been greatly strengthened by the addition of Paul Moss, Purdue's All-American end in 1932, and Tackle Charley Diehl, a 215-pound National League product. Another new man on the line is Don Weldon, All-Western end last season with Northwestern U.

The Chiefs, whose squad is composed for the most part of Oklahoma City Unversity graduates, are coming here with a stronger team than the eleven which tied the Gunners, 0-0, and lost to them, 19-0, last season.

The probable lineups:

GUNNERS.	POS.	CHIEFS
Moss	L. E.	Eaton
Sandburg	L. T.	Corey
Reynolds	L. G.	Webb
Weldon	C.	Griffiths
McGirl	R. G.	Morgan
Diehl	R. T.	James
Rogge	R. E.	Hilpert
Workman, Senn or Cronin	Q. B.	Anderson
Casper or McLaughlin	L. H. B.	Schwab
Alford or LePresta	R. H. B.	Holt
Johnston or Rapp	F. B.	Anderson

SENTINEL ELEVEN MEETS CARONDELET IN DE MOLAY GAME

Sentinel Chapter will make its DeMolay Football League debut this afternoon, opposing the strong Carondelet team at 1:30 in the first of two league games at Sisler's South Side Park.

The second game at 3:30 will bring St. Louis, 1932 champion, against Harmony and the St. Louis eleven is favored to take the game as Perfection, defending champion, battled St. Louis to a scoreless tie in last week's game. Harmony lost the first game to Carondelet, 6-0.

Ralph Prinz, coach of the St. Louis team announced that Bob Jarrett, former Butler University backfield star will coach the St. Louis backfield for the remainder of the season.

BELLEFONTAINE BIKE HANDICAP RACE TODAY

Thirty-one men and 15 women will face the starter today in the 47th annual Bellefontaine bicycle handicap of the St. Louis Cycling Club. The first event of the program will be a 15-mile handicap for the boys with the first rider scheduled to leave the starting point at Midland and Olive Street road at 9 a. m. and finish 15 miles west at Hill Town, Mo.

Immediately following the finish of the handicap, a coasting contest will be held for the women's auxiliary followed by a similar race for boys after which a hill climb, one-mile handicap slow race and an obstacle race will be held. The Women's Auxiliary will also have a one-mile handicap and an obstacle race.

SPORT SALAD
by L. C. Davis

The Saliva Test.

THE old-fashioned tout used to dish out the dope
And give you a horse that would win in a lope;
But while he apparently won on the bit
Saliva tests showed that he won on the spit.

The Baseball Farmer.

THE baseball farmer in the dell
Right now is doing pretty well;
On pennants he appears to thrive,

And in nine years has captured five.

It's by rotation in his crops
That many flags the farmer cops.
In fact, he's formed a pennant trust
That rivals find is hard to bust.

In kindly soil he plants his seeds,
And then eliminates the weeds.
A bumper crop he often reaps,
The cream of which he always keeps.

Quiet Paul.

Probably for the sake of alliteration, some of the scribes have a habit of referring to the Dean brothers as Dizzy and Daffy. This is all right by Dizzy and maybe Paul doesn't care, but the name doesn't fit. Paul seems to be a pretty level headed sort of a guy.

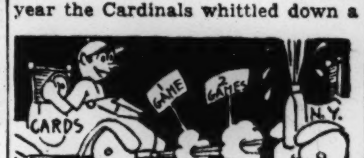
In the meantime Dean Brothers, Inc. stock is one of those gilt-edged securities that rose like the Phoenix from the ashes of depression, or, Venus from the sea of despond if you prefer, and paid the holders enormous dividends at a time when dividends were almost as scarce as dodo birds.

Dominic Vairo, Captain and left end of the Fighting Irish, hails from Calumet, Mich., where George Gipp came from. George Melinkovitch, the ace fullback on the 1931 and 1932 teams, who was forced to remain out of college last year, is back again, which indicates that Fighting Irish have a fighting chance to regain some of their lost glory.

The Athletics have a promising young pitcher named Caster. Connie's son "Oil" would make a good battery mate for him.

High Lights of History.

In 1876 George Washington Bradley, hurling for the St. Louis Nationals, pitched the first no-hit game in history against Hartford and in 1934 Paul Revere Dean took the Pittsburgh Pirates for a ride over the same route. In the same year the Cardinals whittled down a seven-game deficit in the last three weeks of the pennant race and turned it into a two-game lead which is probably a world record spurt.



In a recent interview in Cincinnati Dizzy Dean said that no matter what happens the firm of Dean and Dean, Inc., will not be dissolved. Ruth and Naomi, Damon and Pythias, Ham and Eggs and other famous partnerships have nothing on the Deans.

Harold (Muddy) Ruel, the local boy who made good, intends to take up the practice of law when he quits playing ball. There is one lawyer whose objections it will be hard to over-Ruel.

It is rumored that the Red Sox battery of Ferrell and Ferrell will be split, Rick going to the White Sox along with Dusty Cooke and Fred Ostermueller, for Al Simmons. The number of iron men that will be tossed in to balance the scale wasn't mentioned.

Principia Wins From Hannibal By 21-0 Score

The Principia College football team defeated the Hannibal La Grange eleven from Hannibal, Mo., 21 to 0, in a Missouri State Junior College Conference game at Taylor Field yesterday afternoon. Coach Bert Clark's team put over one touchdown in the first quarter and two in the final period to gain the victory.

Principia advanced to the visitors' 4-yard line near the end of the opening quarter. Paul Haines, halfback, circled right end for a touchdown and Carroll Higgins drop kick added the extra point.

At the start of the fourth period Principia advanced to the Hannibal 6-yard line. Higgins scored on an off-tackle play and Earl Stitt, quarterback, made a perfect drop kick for the extra point. Later in the period Foote, halfback, passed to Alward who crossed the goal line. Stitt again dropkicked for the final point of the game. Principia made 17 first downs to two made by the visiting eleven. It was the first game of the season for Principia and the second for Hannibal.

78-YARD RUN BY OHIO STATE BACK IN INDIANA GAME

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6.—Frank Boucher, husky Ohio State halfback, took the heart out of Indiana with a 78-yard touchdown run in the first period today, and when the smoke cleared away the Buckeyes had opened their Big Ten campaign with a 33 to 0 victory over the Hoosiers.

Joe Judge Injured.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — Joe Judge, former first baseman for the Washington Senators, and Mike Martin, trainer for the same team, were injured today in an automobile collision at Suburban College Park, Maryland. Judge was bruised and cut about the head. Martin was taken to Casualty Hospital where he was said to be suffering from concussion of the brain. Judge and the driver of the truck with which the automobile collided obtained reckless driving warrants against each other.

MICHIGAN GETS REAL SURPRISE, LOSING 16-0 TO MICHIGAN STATE

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 6.—Cast traditionally in the role of underdog, Michigan State College's football team pushed Michigan's Wolverines all over the field today and won, 16 to 0, in a stunning upset.

It was State's first victory in the annual intra-state classic since 1915, served notice that the Spartans have another sensational team and furnished a dismal answer to the question of how good Michigan's defending Big Ten championship team is this year. It was Michigan's first defeat since 1931, when Ohio State turned the trick.

State Scores in Third Period.

After knocking r the Wolverine goal line throughout the first half, only to meet with stubborn resistance in scoring territory, State finally scored midway in the third period, when Steve Sebo made good his fourth attempt at a field goal from placement, kicking from the five-yard line. One of several passes, Kurt Warmbein to Ed Klewicki, helped put it there.

The Michigan defense collapsed completely in the final period and Warmbein crossed the goal line twice, both scores resulting from brilliant long runs.

A 45-yard sprint by Wiseman, who was pulled down on Michigan's 35-yard line by Bill Borgmann, the last man with a chance to get him, set the stage for the first touchdown, which came when Warmbein found a hole in the right side of the Wolverine line and outran the Michigan secondary defense 29 yards to the goal line.

Warbein Scores Touchdown.

With only a few minutes of the game left and Michigan passing desperately from deep in its own territory, Warmbein intercepted one of Russ Oliver's heaves and ran 14 yards to the Michigan nine. Sebo was tossed back to the 13, but Warmbein found that same hole in the right side of the line and galloped across the goal line. Sebo placekicked the extra point.

Michigan made only three first downs, the first coming late in the third period on a lateral pass, Oliver to Triplehorn, good for 14 yards. State piled up 13 first downs, gaining 219 yards from rushing to 44 for the outclassed Wolverines.

State made six of its 13 forward passes good for 98 yards, while Michigan completed only two out of eight, for nine yards. Two Michigan passes were intercepted.

The line-ups:

MICH. STATE (16)	Pos.	MICHIGAN (0)
Zarza	L. E.	Savage
Zindel	L. T.	Viegever

Notre Dame Suffers Surprise Defeat, 7--6, at Hands of Texas

By the Associated Press.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Longhorns of the University of Texas, led by the brilliant Bohn Hilliard, stampeded through Elmer Layden's first Notre Dame team today for a 7 to 6 intersectional victory before 33,000 fans.

A brisk north breeze played havoc with kicks, and fumbles led to the scores of both teams.

Texas won in the first two minutes when George Melinkovich fumbled the kickoff and Jack Gray, Texas left end, recovered on the Notre Dame 14-yard line. Hilliard and Hugh Wolfe pounded at the Rambler tackles and on the fourth play Hilliard scored, and then booted a place kick for the point.

Notre Dame lost a chance to tie in the next period after Buster Baebel, sub quarterback of the Texas eleven, fumbled a punt, kicked it back towards his own goal, scooped it up and then dropped it again where John Michuta, Irish tackle, covered it on the nine-yard line. Fred Carideo and Melinkovich plunged to the three and Pilney swept out past the end to be thrown outside one yard from the goal, then Melinkovich hit left guard for a touchdown.

Millner tried a place kick, but the ball went wide, and with it Notre Dame's chance to give its new coach an opening victory.

The Ramblers fought to hold an upper hand until the final period. Then they were pushed almost to their goal line as the Longhorns pounded away at the ends and tackles, only to find themselves balked inside the 20-yard line.

Notre Dame's work was spotty throughout. At times the Irish forwards filtered through the Longhorn wall almost at will to smother the ball carrier. It was the wriggling, flashy Hilliard who time and again brought the Texans back from dangerous positions.

Elmer Layden, former member of the famed "Four Horsemen," watched his team overpowered by a fighting bunch from the Southwest coached by Jack Chevigny, who followed him by only a few years in the Notre Dame backfield.

Hilliard stood out in the play throughout the game. He carried the ball no less than 25 times, gaining 56 yards of his team's total of 135. The Irish totaled 141 yards from scrimmage. First downs were 11 for Notre Dame and 10 for Texas.

COLUMBIA'S STRONG MACHINE OUTPLAYS YALE ELEVEN, 12-6

BARABAS STARS FOR WINNERS; OLD ELI TEAM IS OUTPLAYED

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—Al Barabas, the New Jersey youngster, who led Columbia to a Rose Bowl triumph over Stanford last January, repeated his act here today as the Lions downed Yale, 12 to 6, in the season's football opener for both teams.

Nearly 20,000 rain-drenched spectators, primed for one of the biggest inaugurals in the annals of Eastern football, saw the fleet and wiry Barabas score both of Columbia's touchdowns and miss a third by a bare inch or so a few minutes before the timekeeper sounded taps.

Outplayed in every department of the game except passing, Yale rushed out a young master of the passing art named Jerome Roscoe, who tossed them from all directions in the last period to dent the touchdown column once and save the Blue from the chagrin of a shutout.

Assistance for Barabas.

Barabas was the big noise, but he received plenty of high-class assistance from a highly geared Columbia supporting cast.

Midway of the first period he sprinted and side-stepped 71 yards for a score. In the third, he led a thunderous 75-yard march down the field and took the ball over himself and in the fourth he missed a third touchdown by less than a foot after a series of line smashes that left the Yale forwards staggering.

The statistics tell the story. Columbia rang up 16 first downs to Yale's four and outrushed the Blue 353 yards to 53.

Only in the air was Ducky Pond's team superior. Thanks to young Roscoe's trusty right wing, Yale was able to complete seven of its 12 aerial tries for a gain of 60 yards. Columbia tried only two passes, completing one for a six-yard gain.

Taking the ball on downs in the opening quarter, Columbia tried line smashes. Barabas on the third play, shot through tackle, weaved his way through the Yale tacklers, neatly sidestepped Tommy Curtin, the Blue safety man and then galloped over for the first six points. Brominski failed to add the extra point.

Yale Evades Shutout.

In the third, after taking a Yale punt on their own 25-yard line, the Lions launched a power-house offensive against the Yale line which ended when Barabas plunged through right tackle for another score. Again Brominski was unable to convert.

Yale took a Columbia punt on the Lions' 35-yard mark in the final quarter. This was where Roscoe got busy. He hurled a 10-yard pass to Kelly. Two more overheads put Yale within three yards of a touchdown. Two line plays failed, but Roscoe shot a five-yarder to Kelly, who took it behind the Columbia goal line and Yale was in the touchdown column. Grosscup's try for point was unsuccessful.

KIRKSVILLE SCORES ITS 20TH VICTORY IN THREE SEASONS

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Oct. 6.—Scoring in each of the first three periods, the Kirksville Teachers overwhelmed the Missouri School of Mines in a football game here last night, 19 to 0. Embree scored two touchdowns and added one point after touchdown. Rhode scored the other counter. It was the twentieth victory in a row, over a period of three years, for Kirksville.

EAST ST. LOUIS TIES WOOD RIVER, 13 TO 13

A last-half rally by Wood River enabled it to tie, East St. Louis, 13 to 13, in the first Southwestern Illinois High School Conference football game for both schools yesterday afternoon at Paron's Field.

The Flyers took the lead in the first quarter on Stecker's plunge for a touchdown and added seven more points in the second period, when Stecker passed to Coker. Stecker also place-kicked the extra point.

In the third quarter, Uffert smashed through on a plunge for Wood River's first score and then place-kicked the extra point. The Oilers tied it up late in the fourth period, when the Flyers had a kick blocked. East St. Louis was on its own one-yard line, when Losch broke through, blocked the kick and Eberhart fell on the ball over the goal line for the score.

IOWA STATE POLO TEAM WILL MEET MISSOURI, OCT. 18

AMES, Ia., Oct. 6. — Four polo matches, all away from home, have been scheduled this fall for the Iowa State College polo team, Lieut. John H. Lewis, coach, has announced. Several other matches have been tentatively arranged.

Cyclone riders will meet the University of Missouri team at Columbia, Oct. 18 and 20, and the University of Oklahoma at Norman, Nov. 13 and 15. Arrangements are pending for games with the Oklahoma Military Academy at Claremore, Nov. 13 and 16. The Cyclone team will also play several matches at Fort Des Moines during the fall.

All fall games played by the Cyclone team will be away from home because the Military Department does not yet have an adequate number of trained ponies for two teams to use for the regulation six chuckers. During the summer 14 ponies were brought here and will be trained for the game by the spring season, Lewis said.

Six veterans back this fall are William Nevitt of Houston, Tex., Don MacArthur of Milwaukee, Wis., Al Lantzky and William Herrmann of Dubuque, Max Guttshall of Van Meter, and Leland Hughes of Worthington, Minn.

MAXIE ROSENBLOOM TO DEFEND TITLE AGAINST BOB OLIN IN GARDEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. — Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, announced last night that Maxie Rosenbloom will defend his light heavyweight title against Bob Olin of Brooklyn in a 15-round bout in the Garden Nov. 16.

Although shorn of his title by the National Boxing Association recently, Rosenbloom still is recognized as champion in New York, California and other States not affiliated with the association.

A card featuring lightweights has been arranged for November 2. Harry Dublinsky of Chicago will meet Frankie Klick, San Francisco, in the feature bout.

PITT DEFEATS WEST VIRGINIA EASILY, 27 TO 6

By the Associated Press.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 6.—The West Virginia University Mountaineers and the Pittsburgh Panthers renewed their football rivalry today before a crowd of more than 12,000, and when it was all over the Panthers had a 27 to 6 victory.

Fresh from victories over West Virginia, Wesleyan and Duquesne, the Mountaineers had hoped to avenge last year's 21-0 defeat.

Winning the toss, Captain Hartwig of Pitt elected to defend the west goal and Onder kicked to Pitt's 29. Larue and Nicksick made two first downs, aided by a 7-yard pass, Nicksick to Rooker, going to West Virginia's 47. After an exchange of punts, Nicksick passed again to Rooker, who raced 53 yards behind Shotwell and Ormiston, for a touchdown. Weinstock place kicked the extra point. The period ended with Weinstock slamming center for a first down on West Virginia's 40 after Nicksick had passed to Rooker for 9 yards. Score: Pitt 7, West Virginia 0.

Weisenbaugh broke through guard on a fake reverse and ran 26 to West Virginia's 43. Shedlosky knifed through right tackle to the 20. Nicksick made it first on the Mountaineer line, added 5 more, then Shedlosky went through right tackle for a touchdown. Weisenbaugh place kicked the extra point. The half ended with the ball in Pitt's possession on their 25. Score: Pitt 14, West Virginia 0.

Weinstock and Nicksick made two first downs in line smashes, but neither advanced the ball outside Pitt's territory. A pass, Allen to Heath, took the ball from West Virginia's 39 to Pitt's 4. Allen rammed the line three times for a touchdown. Onder's try for the extra point was low. Score, end quarter: Pitt 14, West Virginia 6.

Runs 35 Yards for Score.

Weisenbaugh and Shedlosky punched through the Mountaineer line from Pitt's 23 to its 48, where West Virginia drew a 15-yard penalty for piling on the big full back. He broke through and ran 35 yards for a touchdown, but missed the try for extra point. A little later Malarkey passed to Baxter from West Virginia's 41 to their 5, and Baxter stepped across for a touchdown. Weisenbaugh added the extra point from placement. Final score: Pitt 27, West Virginia 6.

Pitcher Ruffing Marries.

By the Associated Press

NOKOMIS, Ill., Oct. 6.—Miss Pauline M. Mullholland and Charles (Red) Ruffing, pitcher for the New York Yankees baseball team, were married at the Presbyterian Church here this morning.

Among the guests were Jim Bottomley, Nokomis member of the Cincinnati Reds ball team, and Floyd Newkirk, a teammate of Ruffing. Both Ruffing and his bride are from Nokomis.

RATING PLANS FOR MORTGAGE LOANS OUTLINED BY FHA

Officials of Five Federal Agencies in Conference Decide Upon Policies to Prevail in Appraisals.

SOME LATITUDE IN FIXING VALUATION

Premiums to Be Paid for Risk Insurance Based Upon Classification of Properties Involved.

Plans for a system of risk rating of home mortgages to be put into efefct by FHA, as well as for checking the valuation of homes back of the mortgages under federally supervised mutual mortgage insurance, were outlined by Frederick M. Babcock, chief of the appraisal section FHA, in an address delivered before the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers at a recent special conference of the institute's entire membership at Washington, D. C. Premiums to be paid by institutions applying for insurance will be determined by the loan classification, the lower-risk mortgage to get lower rates. This problem is regarded as greater than that of valuing the physical properties back of mortgages presented. Principal features of the system, necessarily subject to revision, are ready and the regulations and forms to be used in the process are being prepared.

"The proposed plan involves an inclusive analysis of hazard," Babcock said. "The major categories of risk are treated separately and then combined to indicate a final risk. In our plan of organization, regional offices will be established, 40 or 50 being contemplated, to appraise security and rate loans."

Babcock pointed out the present lack of data for measuring environmental and other "intangible factors affecting the value of a home. "Methods of valuation applicable to a home," he said, "can advance precisely to the extent that we are able to secure more complete and more accurate data relative to neighborhood prospects, housing requirements and markets; therefore, we are placing great emphasis on data-gathering, fact-finding and research facilities."

PWA Checks on Plottage Costs.

H. Tudor Morsell, director of land acquisitions, asked the conference as to what percentage should be counted upon for plottage, assemblage sentimental value and the like, over and above market value of each individual parcel, in acquiring land for Federal slum clearance and low cost housing projects. Wherever possible we employ members of the American Institute of Appraisers for our appraisal work, so we feel our problem on this much debated question is your problem," he said.

John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, discussed the important real estate appraisal problems of that board, which has under its direction the 12 Home Loan Banks, the Federal Savings and Loan Associations and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. He emphasized the increasing effect of the activities of these agencies which may be expected to be felt on real estate values.

Babcock Details Appraisal Policies.

Emphasizing the fact that the Federal Housing Administration is confronted with two types of appraisal problems, valuation and loan-rating, and that the two operations are distinct although they involve related kinds of analyses and utilize appraisal method, Babcock asked for the co-operation of the institute with FHA in finding the best possible solution for both problems.

"Mortgage-lending institutions which submit loans for insurance will make their own investigations and appraisals," he said. "It will be necessary for the Government to make separate appraisals, to assist in determining the eligibility of mortgages for insurance.

"In our plan of organization, regional offices will be established to appraise security and rate loans. The plan requires two types of field inspectors with different kinds of qualifications. Each house will be inspected by both an architectural engineer and by a real estate appraiser. Both will have an important part in the valuation and rating of the loan.

"We expect to establish a number of regional field offices, possibly 40 or 50, at strategic points throughout the country. The acceptance of applications for mortgage insurance, the examination, inspection and appraisal of security, the control of construction and architectural standards, the supervision of building operations, the rating of mortgages according to risk, and all other operations which precede the underwriting of mortgage insurance will be accomplished in these regional offices. The procedure will utilize a combination of salaried specialists and outside men who give their services on a fee basis. We anticipate that different situations in different regions and communities will make it desirable to organize along a variety of lines.

"We believe that uniformity is desirable in all matters pertaining to principles and basic procedure, but that to extend standardization to the minute details of the process will hamper further progress. We shall outline a specific valuation procedure and require our appraisers to adhere to it, but we shall leave much opportunity for subsequent refinement of methods and a reasonable latitude for the exercise of the appraiser's judgment. The element of judgment enters so strongly into both valuation and loan-rating that we propose to use devices to assist in the control of judgment. Representative type houses will be designated and, to a certain degree, will be used to define various grades of risk."

MORTGAGE BANKERS HOME FROM NATIONAL MEETING

New Federal Laws Governing Loans Closely Studied—Housing Act Big Problem.

Most of the delegation of about forty St. Louisans, identified with real estate and kindred busineeses, who attended the 21st annual convention of the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, in Chicago, last Thursday and Friday, returned yesterday morning. Among these were Julius S. Feydt, Jr., president of the St. Louis branch of the national body, Geo. J. Wanstrath and Louis Maginn. According to Wanstrath, the attendance exceeded 900, being the largest in the history of that body.

Interest in the convention was heightened, Wanstrath said, by reason of the National Government's financing of real estate, directly or indirectly. That by the Federal Home Loan Banks was the basis of an address by John H. Fahey, chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board. He stated that $1,600,000,000 in loans have already been made, as a result of which nearly 2,500,000 people are living in homes they may call their own. An army of small savers have escaped enormous losses, and the mortgage lending institutions have been greatly strengthened. Before next spring, Fahey said, the corporation will have placed approximately $3,000,000,000 in the hands of mortgage lending institutions and individual mortgagers in every section of the country.

Most of the discussion, which took the round table form, following basic addresses, centered upon the National Housing Act. While this law was enacted several months ago, it has been found to contain problems which have compelled delay in its operation. The various questions presenting themselves have been under consideration by the authorities charged with putting the law in operation. Progress in that direction was outlined in discussion at the convention and at informal conferences with these Washington representatives after the meeting's close.

SEVEN STORE PROPERTIES LEASED BY SCOTT AGENCY

Activity Held to Be Strong Indication of Better Business Footing.

Leasing of seven store properties in one week is convincing to Oreon E. & R. G. Scott that business is regaining a solid footing in confidence. The evidence in this instance follows: The northwest corner of Seventh and Pine streets to Walco, Inc., recently organized by a group of business men to operate a chain of taverns in city and county, operations to begin in about 30 days. To the same company the southeast corner of Pershing and De Baliviere avenues, remodeling of which will be taken care of by the tenant. The owner of the latter property was represented by Cornet & Zeibig, who also represented the Morrison estate in the negotiations of a lease on the store No. 303 N. Union boulevard to Max Wolff, as a new location for his market.

No. 5267 Delmar boulevard, to Mrs. Helen Smit Handleman, for a dress and millinery shop.

No. 714 N. Union boulevard, to Isadore Kanner.

The United Association Steam and Gas Fitters Local No. 562, 3309 Olive street, containing 6000 square feet, for a display and meeting room.

Southeast corner of Newstead avenue and Natural Bridge road to Arthur Romano for a tavern, he being represented by Zerega Brothers Agency.

Arthur H. Fuldner, manager of the commercial leasing department of the Scott Company, who handled the foregoing leases, reports that he has received many inquiries for space in the Continental Life Building, which is now under the Scott management, negotiations for two large areas in which have been practically completed.

INCREASED RENTAL ACTIVITY REPORTED BY M'DONALD

The McDonald Realty Co. reports a distinct increase in the rental of business property, having secured lessees for the following: 4477A Olive street, entire second floor, to Willard Holland; northwest corner Clark avenue and Fifteenth street, lot 54x10ↄ feet, to Alexander Todor; 6135 Page boulevard, to William Berkley. He further reports a number of other stores leased.

BRISK DEMAND FOR COUNTY REALTY REPORTED BY TOBEY

The Frank H. Tobey Realty Co., 5427 Gravois avenue, through A. A. Osterkamp and J. S. Havlicek, report the following sales:

Brick bungalow, 5436 Murdoch avenue, for Charles H. Blohm to Conrad Groepper and wife; single flat, 2110 Withnell street, for William P. Hartig; six-acre tract, with six-room matt brick bungalow on Highway 61, near city, for Albert J. Feldmann and wife; six-acre tract, for John B. Nahlik to John Giles; four-acre tract, near House Springs, for Mrs. Filomena Duda; 205-acre farm, for Lena Smith and husband to John Connoly; 94-acre farm, near Union, for Clem Hubbard; 80-acre farm near De Soto, for William Duda and wife; 4-acre homesite, near Big River, to Mrs. Grace Gale.

Havlicek reports a brisk demand for better county homes, with acreage, in the county

THREE LEASES MADE BY ARTHUR S. MARTIN & SON

Arthur S. Martin & Son report having negotiated three leases last week. One to the Braznell-Sylvester Ink Co., covers the five-story building at 508 North Second street, owned by the Clementine Realty Co. Another was to the Mound City Fur Co., on the four-story building at 212 North Main street, owned by Mrs. Jessie Howard Gregg. The third lease was to J. R. Bissel Dry Goods Brokerage Co., on the storeroom at 1205 Washington avenue, owned by the Lesser Goldman Co. Martin & Son represented all parties in the negotiations.

Y. M. C. A. SCHOOLS OFFER COURSES ON REAL ESTATE

What is termed a real estate program is included in the fall and winter activities of Y. M. C. A. schools in St. Louis. Included is a course in real estate fundamentals, which will enable a beginner to obtain an understanding of that business, from the practical angle. This is to be taught by M. J. Slonim, president of the Slonim Realty Co. The class will meet once a week for twenty weeks, opening Thursday, Oct. 11. A course in real estate law and conveyancing will cover the essential points of real estate law, with emphasis upon leases, mortgages, deeds and titles, estates, wills, and brokerage. The instructor will be McCune Gill, attorney and vice-president of the Title Insurance Corporation of St. Louis. This course also is once a week for twenty weeks, and opens Tuesday, Oct. 16. Courses in salesmanship, advertising and business correspondence are offered in connection with the definite work in real estate. These courses are sponsored by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

DAVIS PLACE RESIDENCE SOLD BY SHAW & FRANCIS

The recently completed residence on large lot No. 7801 Davis Drive, in Davis Place, has been purchased by Paul M. Gault, of the Missouri Pacific railway engineering staff. Both parties to the transaction were represented by Shaw & Francis, Inc. The home contains eight rooms, two baths, lavatory, three fireplaces, basement recreation room. There is also a two-car garage. The building is heated by conditioned air.

UNIQUE DEVELOPMENT ON SOUTH SIDE NEAR ROUND-UP

English Cottage Style Residence in Woodbine Court Leaves Only Two Vacant Lots.

Dedicated to development under the name Woodbine Court, only three years ago, along plans made by the Federer Realty Co., the area of one block with residences facing on each side of a well-paved street, the undertaking has been completed except for two lots, improvement of which will be made by Edwin E. Klaustermeier, the projector, as speedily as practicable. In these final touches, as in those thus far given, he will have the support of the Federer Co.

The residence now under construction, 6400 Woodbine court, at the southwest corner of Gresham street, is of brick, on the English cottage style, two stories and attic, with six rooms on first floor and full basement. Walls in kitchen and bath are of tile, and heating is by hot water, with concealed radiation. It has Eternit shingle roof.

Interior features of this home are a spacious living room with a large fireplace, also dining room with a bay window affording an excellent-view from the inside; modern kitchen with built-in facilities, double-drain sink, and numerous closets. Adjoining the kitchen and hall is a commodious lavatory. A handsome stairway leads to the second floor, on which three full sized bedrooms are provided, with a large tile bath, each room having a large clothes closet, and there are two closets in the hall. The basement is so arranged as to be easily adapted to rathskeller use. This is the third home to be constructed by Klaustermeier in Woodbine court during the last year.

Woodbine court is one of the unique small developments in South St. Louis, because of the striking design and quality of construction. No design that does not conform to the architecture prevailing in the court may be erected. Financing of the homes has been handled by the Federer Realty Co., which has developed this section, having financed about 200 homes in this immediate locality.

RETAIL STORES IN DEMAND HENRY R. WEISELS CO. REPORTS

Increasing demand for retail stores in the outlying business districts featured the real estate situation last week, it was said by the Henry R. Weisels Co., who reported the following leases:

3022 North Grand boulevard, to Gladys La Roque, for the Arlette Realty Co.; 937 Goodfellow avenue, to Charles R. Bouchard, and 5807 Suburban tracks, to Virginia Coppedge, for the Saifer estate; 5115 Delmar boulevard, to Joe Baruzzine, for Frank Woeltge; 4904 Laclede avenue to the Storz Instrument Co.; 4906 Laclede avenue, to Walter Ryan, both for the Euclid-Laclede Syndicate; 1716 S. Thirty-ninth street, to A. E. Wilson, for Harry Elkins; 4959 Delmar boulevard, 50-car garage to Monarch Motor Car Co., for the Ripley Realty and Investment Co.; 610 Kingsland avenue, University City, to Lungstras Dyeing and Cleaning Co., for the Loop Building Corp.; 6659 Delmar boulevard, University City, to the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., for the Loop Building Corp.

KIRKWOOD B. & L. ASSN. NOW HAS FEDERAL CHARTER

The Kirkwood Building and Loan Association has been converted into the Kirkwood Federal Savings and Loan Association by unanimous consent of its shareholders, and has received its charter from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, according to James L. McQuie, secretary of the Kirkwood Association.

The Kirkwood Association, Secretary McQuie said, was the first Missouri Building and Loan Association to apply for conversion, and the first converted association to receive a federal charter. This association completed 50 years of corporate existence April, 1934.

SALE OF TEMPLE CHECKED BY LAW OF GRAND LODGE

Restricted Jurisdiction of Masonic Lodges Halts Sale to Anchor Lodge of University City Home.

Anchor Lodge, No. 443, A. F. and A. M., desires and is ready to buy, on a cash basis, the temple erected for University Lodge, No. 649, the bondholders to whom ownership of the structure passed, several months ago, under foreclosure proceedings, are equally willing to sell it, and the Masonic Grand Lodge, which exercises supervision of transactions by its constituent bodies in that direction, fully approves the deal. Despite this unanimity on the part of all interests concerned, the sale is held in abeyance, and may not take place.

The obstacle is a grand lodge regulation of jurisdiction by lodges in the State over those seeking to unite with the fraternity. That detail in the present instance has to do with constituent bodies located in incorporated towns and cities, jurisdictions of which is restricted to corporate limits of the towns or cities in which they are situated, this being determined by the location of lodge structures.

Anchor Lodge is a St. Louis, or Thirty-third Masonic District, body, while University temple is in St. Louis County, embraced in the Fifty-seventh District. Should the transaction as proposed be consummated, the purchaser would automatically be transferred from city to county, a shift to which Anchor Lodge will not consent. It was supposed that this could be obviated by a simple transfer of University City to the Thirty-third District, and for a time this view prevailed, even among many authorities in the controlling body.

At the recent annual session of the grand lodge in this city the matter came up for decision, and had almost reached the point of favorable action, when reference to the regulations was made in their application to corporate limits of chartered cities and towns regarding jurisdiction over applicants for membership. The result was discovery that the condition insisted upon by Anchor Lodge could be met only by amendment of the law, and this apparently was possible only after the proposal had lain over for one year, until the next annual meeting of the higher body. The whole matter was accordingly referred to the Jurisprudence Committee, with instructions to find a way for earlier action if practicable.

The structure formerly owned and occupied by University Lodge, together with its equipment, cost in excess of $250,000. It was erected about 10 years ago according to plans and specifications prepared by the late Thomas P. Barnett, architect. It is an imposing edifice, Egyptian in design, occupying a large and eligible site on the north side of Delmar boulevard not far from the eastern limit of University City. Being designed throughout for lodge meeting purposes, including social and other rooms, it has been found that transformation for other uses can be effected only through expenditures generally considered to be unwise.

It is understood that the price agreed upon by Anchor Lodge and the bondholders is $50,000.

St. Louis Gained 452 Industries During 1929-33, C. of C. Reports

Additions to District, East and West of River, Provided Employment for 25,970 Persons —Two Illinois Counties Gain.

The St. Louis industrial district recorded a gain of 452 industries during the period between 1929 and 1933, inclusive, and these, together with expansions of existing industries, provided employment for 25,970 persons, according to the Industrial Bureau of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce. This information was included in the preliminary report of the sub-committee on Industrial Trends of the St. Louis Regional Planning Association.

Since adoption of the NRA program, the sub-committee's report states, the "most significant factor has been a definite trend on the part of manufacturing interests to move from the smaller towns in the St. Louis trade area to the City of St. Louis." This development is in part attributed to labor troubles experienced in the smaller towns. The preliminary report of the sub-committee, which is headed by John Ring Jr., director of the C. of C. Industrial Bureau, was made public yesterday by Harland Bartholomew, plan director for the Regional Planning Association.

The St. Louis district gained 129 industries in 1933, and 115 in 1932, compared with 80 in 1929, 57 in 1930, and 71 in 1931, according to the Industrial Bureau. New industries and expansions in 1933 required 10,507 additional employees, against 2,442 in 1932, 2,767 in 1931, 3,873 in 1930, and 6,381 in 1929.

City Growth Steady.

St. Louis, comprising the largest portion of population of the area, has shown a steady and consistent growth, the sub-committee's report stated, while St. Clair and Madison Counties reflect the greatest development on the East Side of the river. The present intermingling of land use or industrial occupancy, on the East Side is not particularly conducive to industrial expansion," the report states. "The railroads and the large industries are surrounded by and intermingled with residential areas. These uses cannot now expand in a logical and economical manner."

"Briefly, on the east side there are large areas suitable for industries with transportation facilities and easy access to St. Louis, with its many advantages. There is, however, a definite disadvantage in Illinois, particularly in the matter of sewers and of adequate housing, thereby handicapping the fullest and most satisfactory form of industrial development."

The committee states that " it would seem from the experience of the past that many of the processing type of industries would probably be better located in the metropolitan area of St. Louis, outside of the corporate limits of the city." With the zoning laws in St. Louis, particularly as regards those that might be classed as 'nuisance' industries, it is essential that this class of manufacturing go into sections where larger space is available and where the matter of smoke or smells in connection with the processing would not be objectionable to the locality. Most industries of this type have gone to the east side of the river, figures indicating that the growth, particularly among the capital and consumer goods class of manufacturer , has been the largest in Madison and St. Clair."

Recommendations by Committee.

The committee in its summary of its findings and recommendations, says that "St. Louis has generally kept abreast of requirements in public works, and has for the present adequate housing for industrial workers.

"The City of St. Louis is ideally situated and equipped as a strategic point, particularly for the location of lighter industries." It also expressed an optimistic viewpoint concerning the future industrial development of St. Louis and the surrounding region.

"Since the fall of 1929, when the depression first took form, there has been a relatively limited amount of shifting of industry," the report states. "This is not a local condition, but national. It is rather difficult, therefore, to reach definite conclusions regarding this period. Lack of business, inability to float bond issues, and adequate plant equipment are the reasons, in large part, for the lack of migration of larger industries during these four and one-half years.

"Under normal conditions, St. Louis and its metropolitan area should receive its full share of the industriaal development of the nation. It has the natural advantages of centrality, transporation facilities, established markets, accessibility to most basic materials, and the nearness to the great food-producing empire in the Middle West."

The 452 industries established in the St. Louis industrial district during the five-year period, 1929-1933, are grouped as follows: Men's and women's furnishings, 83; iron and steel products, machinery and metal products, 60; chemical products and cosmetics, 57; food products, 45; fermentation, 28; household furnishings, 27; building materials, 19; electrical products, 19; warehouses, 13; printing and paper products, 12; motor vehicles and accessories, 10; aircraft industry, 6; petroleumn products, 4; and miscellaneous, 69.

Members of the committee that made the investigation, in addition to Ring, were: George C. Smith, R. Vernon Clark, Sam W. Allender and George E. Miltenberger. They were assisted by Bartholomew, R. H. Riley, Tom Gilmartin, Duncan Smith, W. W. Horner, C. E. Jenks, E. R. Kinsey, J. A. Wolf and others.

EVENING REALTY CLASSES OPEN AT WASHINGTON U.

Courses have begun at Washington University, sponsored by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, covering real estate fundamentals, real estate law and appraising. These courses will explain the effect of new federal legislation on real property. They are open to realtors, mortgage bankers, salesmen, clerical help and property owners.

The class in real estate fundamentals and land economics is conducted by M. J. Slonim, and meets every Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. The class in real estate law is conducted by Prof. Chas. E. Cullen and meets every Friday at 7:45 p. m. The class in real estate appraising is conducted by Geo. C. Hetlage and meets every Tuesday at 7:45 p. m. The latest developments and trends in real estate are discussed by the lecturers named.

These courses are part of a curriculum worked out by the University College in connection with the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

Also 1181 Hodiamont, to the Ruel Radio Repairs Service Co.; 1183 Hodiamont to the Barlow Trim Shop; 6118 Gambleton, to the Colonial Candy Co., represented by H. O. Byrd. The three latter leases were made for the Deben Realty Co. Store at corner of Plymouth and Hodiamont avenues was leased to Al Cox for Mrs. Mary Schreiner.

HARRY NEWMAN RETURNING TO FORMER COMPANY HOME

Harry Newman, Inc., now at 4211 South Kingshighway, will move the latter part of this month to the southwest corner of Kingshighway and Winona street. The corner was formerly occupied by this company having been designed for its occupancy, the return to it being prompted by the need for larger quarters. The Southampton Inv. & Building Co., the affiliated building organization, will be a co-tenant in the premises.

FIVE PROPERTIES SOLD BY MERCANTILE-COMMERCE

The property on the northeast corner of Delmar boulevard and Pendleton avenue was sold last week to an unidentified party represented by the Dubinsky Realty Co. and C. J. Robinson. The corner was formerly owned by G. Y. Harris, now residing at Haynesville, La., who was represented by R. L. Klein of the real estate department of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co. It consists of a lot fronting 110 feet on Delmar boulevard by a depth along Pendleton avenue of 150 feet improved with three one-story stores and a 28-room hotel.

The same company also reports the sale of 1814 Chouteau avenue, a two-story residence; 2339-41 Chestnut street, a four-family flat; 2510-12 North Eleventh street, a four-family flat, and 5034 Maple avenue, a two-family flat. Owners of all these latter properties were represented by William J. Christy of the real estate department of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co.

INVESTMENT PROPERTIES LEAD WANSTRATH SALES

Sales of realty by George J. Wanstrath last week were reported as follows: For Harry P. Brown, holder of title for the owner, Mrs. Clara Jacoby, 3812-14-16 Olive street. Improvements are substantially built, being a four-family apartment of five rooms each, and a seven-room residence on the west, and seven garages in rear. The sale was to a client of Wanstrath, his name being withheld, also price paid.

Two-family apartment of five rooms each, hardwood floors, tile baths, craftex walls and two heating plants, double garage; No. 5732 Labadie avenue, for Roy W. Linders, to a client of Henry H. Haffner, who assisted in the sale.

Wanstrath also reports having made a number of first deed of trust loans during the week, and getting numerous inquiries on bungalows and flats, also several inquiries on business property from out-of-town clients.

EIGHT PROPERTIES SOLD BY THE BRANNER REALTY CO.

The Branner Realty Co., 5423 Gravois avenue, reports a very active market, with recent sales as follows:

5619 Lansdowne, bungalow, for Thomas A. Bidwell to John Hessler and wife; 4044-46 Blaine avenue, four-family flat, for Joseph Hons to Katie Marko; 5148 Cologne avenue, bungalow, for Rudolph Furer and wife to Nickolas Mayer and wife; 1840-42 Menard street, four-family flat, for Katie Marko to Anna Hrabovsky; 5909 Hampton avenue, bungalow, for Ira A. Wright and wife to Henry Kroll and wife; 3812 Texas avenue, single flat, for Bernard Schnieder and wife; 3236 Texas avenue, single flat, for Katie Marko to Maria Gerdes; 30-foot lot on Walsh street, for Fred C. Homeyer

FOUR SALES REPORTED BY ARCHSHOEFER & SKAGGS

The Archshoefer & Skaggs Real Estate Co. reports the following sales: 2608 S. Kingshighway, residence, from Leona Lanter to Dr. L. A. Millikin; vacant lot on Murdoch avenue from Nancy Pond Scharl to W. Ethridge; single flat, 3217 St. Louis avenue, from I. Archshoefer to Mary Pawlyk, Grecke representing the seller; single flat, 3950 Fairview avenue, from the Lafayette South Side Bank to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chamness, the Meyer Real Estate Co. representing the seller.

THEATER SCHOOL LEASES PREMISES FOR TRAINING

The Breitt & Naumer Realty Co. has closed a long term lease with the Fanchon & Marco School of the Theater, Inc., on the two-story building at 3331-33 Lindell boulevard. It contains about 15,000 square feet, and will be used for the individualized training for stage, scrceen and radio performers. The main offices of the company are in Hollywood, Cal. The lease was made by Breitt & Naumer for the Pickel Realty Co.

M'QUIE ADDRESSES FEDERAL S. & L. ASS'N. SHAREHOLDERS

James L. McQuie of St. Louis County, a director of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Des Moines, addressed a meeting of the Mutual Federal Savings and Loan Association of University City at a shareholders' dinner given at 6800 Washington boulevard last Friday evening. This association is chartered by the Federal Government for the encouragement of savings to be used for promoting home ownership.

SITE FOR HOME IN COUNTY SOLD BY MAY POTTER LOVE

Mary Potter Love, Inc., reports the sale of one and one-half acres at the northwest corner of Ladue road and Oakleigh Lane to F. Donald McDonald of the Mutual Bank and Trust Co. for Charles B. Spalsbury. The price is said to be in line with the highest made recently. Plans for a residence in keeping with those adjoining have been made by Beverly Nelson, architect

BARTMER AVE. RESIDENCE SOLD BY TERRY, SON & CO.

Albert T. Terry, Son & Co. report having sold the 10-room residence at 5459 Bartmer avenue, lot 100x238 feet, for Mrs. Clara K. Dix to Loren A. Chenue and wife. Chenue is connected with the F. W. Woolworth Co., and after completion of alterations, the new owners will occupy the place as their home. Both parties were represented by Terry, Son & Co.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

Let's Talk Plain Facts

We are the largest auto loan company in the country. We have 35,000 customers.

It is unfortunate that some people are unable to keep up their payments, and the car comes back to us for the balance of the loan. Because of our large customer list it is natural for us to have many of these repossessed cars.

They are offered to you for the unpaid balance. The other man's loss is your gain.

MUENCH-FOLLENIUS FAMILY REUNION TO BE HELD TODAY

Centennial of Coming to U. S. Will Be Celebrated by 150 Descendants at Augusta, Mo.

The centennial of the Muench and Follenius families in America will be celebrated at Augusta, St. Charles County, today. Dinner will be served to about 150 descendants of these families in the old cellars formerly used by the Mount Pleasant Wine Co., which was established by Georg Muench.

Former Circuit Judge Hugo Muench is the only survivor of the first American generation of the group. He is living in San Diego, Cal., at the age of 83. His son, Julius T. Muench, former City Counselor, will speak at the celebration. Max Starkloff Muench, son of Julius, is another St. Louis representative of the family.

In 1834 the Giessen Emigration Society came to Missouri from Hessen-Darmstadt, led by Friedrich Muench and his brother-in-law, Paul Follenius. They and Georg Muench, Friedrich's brother, who came alter, settled on farms in Warren County. The Muenchs were educated as preachers and Follenius as a lawyer; all were graduates of the University of Giessen, hence the name of their society. The society broke upon arrival, instead of forming a colony. Friedrich Muench and Follenius died on their farms, in the so-called Latin Settlement, but Georg moved to Augusta where he established vineyards about 1860. Friedrich was a State Senator during the Civil War and a delegate to the convention which first nominated Lincoln for president.

Byrd's Tractor Crew Snowbound.

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, (via Mackay Radio), Oct. 5. (Delayed)—Four men were snowbound with a tractor today 180 miles east of the Byrd expedition's headquarters. Harold June, chief pilot in charge of the tractor unit, reported by radio that the group was awaiting favorable weather to proceed to Grace McKinley Mountain, its objective. Blizzard with wind of 10 miles per hour piled drifts that nearly covered the tractor.

Peruvian Cabinet Resigns.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 6.—The Cabinet headed by Premier Alberto Rey de Castro, formed less than a year ago, resigned tonight. It was the fourth in the administration of President T. Benavides. It was formed Nov. 25, 1933, although Rey de Castro was not sworn in until the following May as Premier. In addition to premiership he held the portfolios of Justice and Education.

REPORT ON JOB INSURANCE, OLD AGE PENSIONS DEC. 1

Miss Perkins Predicts Legislation on the Former This Winter.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, said in an address today that President Roosevelt's Committee on Economic Security, of which she is chairman, will report Dec. 1. A "Comprehensive and unified program" to "give protection to the individual in all the vicissitudes and hazards of modern economic life—unemployment, accident, invalidity, old age and premature death." She spoke before the Commonwealth Club.

There is no intention of rushing at all these objectives at once, she said. Care will be taken not to disturb business recovery.

"In all our thoughts," she said, "recovery comes first, but we believe that security for the individual, if properly conceived and timed, will promote, not retard, recovery." There can be no national prosperity without personal security, she added.

"At least 90 per cent of the American people are in a position where they have a very real sense of personal insecurity," she continued. "This frightful loss of personal security is one which cannot be ignored." She predicted enactment of unemployment insurance this winter by the Congress.

600 ALUMINUM WORKERS IN NEW ASSOCIATION MEET

Say Minority Organization Is Mutual Aid Society Not "Company Union."

The recently formed Aluminum Ore Employes' Association, composed chiefly of the 600 non-union employes of the East St. Louis plant of the Aluminum Ore Co., held its first general meeting last night at Odd Fellows' Hall, East St. Louis.

The association was organized following the reopening of the plant Sept. 9, after a shutdown of a month caused by a strike in plants of the company throughout the country. The strike was approved by the 800 union workers in the East St. Louis plant.

C. B. Atwood, president of the new organization, denied it was a "company union," and said it was instead a mutual aid society, designed to provide a means whereby employes and company officials "may co-operate more closely," and to give the minority group representation under the National Industrial Recovery Act in case of future labor disputes.

ATTORNEYS OPPOSE PURCHASE OF PROPERTIES BY TVA

Tell Utilities Board Temporary Deal Would "Saddle Mistakes" on State of Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Resisting a proposal for the Tennessee Valley authority to purchase privately-owned electric properties at Knoxville, Forney Johnson, Birmingham attorney, charged today that approval of the deal would permit the TVA "to saddle its mistakes on the state as a part of its guinea pig experiment on the people of Tennessee."

Johnston appeared before the state railroad and public utilities commission on behalf of objectors to the plan, which the commission has been asked to approve, for the government agency to acquire holdings of the Tennessee Public Service Co. at and near Knoxville for $6,191,000.

James L. Fly and William C. Fitts, Jr., attorneys for the TVA, declared the authority planned to hold the properties only "for a limited period, probably not exceeding two years, at the end of which time the properties will be sold to local public agencies."

In a motion asking dismissal of the cross-petitions, Fly and Fitts declared the authority was taking part "without submitting to the general jurisdiction of the commission."

SCHOOL LEAGUE CONVENTION

Compulsory Education Officials to Meet in St. Louis.

The twenty-fourth annual convention of the National League of Compulsory Education Officials will be held at Hotel Statler from Oct. 22 to 25, inclusive. In addition to business sessions at the hotel, the delegates will visit St. Louis schools.

Founded nearly 25 years ago, the league is an organization of school officials concerned with problems of pupil personnel service, school attendance service, juvenile delinquency and juvenile welfare. Ralph E. Dugdale, Superintendent of Schools at Toledo, O., is president of the league.

Programs Include Contests in Cookcraft, Campcraft, Knots, Signaling, Mapping, Nature Study.

Annual rallies of the north, south and central districts competed with the fourth game of the World Series for the interest of St. Louis Boy Scouts yesterday.

The longest of the three programs was held by scouts of south district, who gathered in Tower Grove Park at 8 a. m. and devoted the day and evening to scout contests and entertainment. Contests events included cookcraft, campcraft, knots, compass, flag, signaling, water boiling, scout pace, mapping, nature study and first aid.

The scouts cooked their own lunches and ate picnic suppers, followed by a campfire and entertainment.

The north district rally, held in O'Fallon Park, began at 1 p. m. and featured a shorter program of contests followed by scout stunts, games and songs.

Central district's moot, as its annual fall rally is called, was held at Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport, where flying stunts and exhibitions added interest to the scout contests. As at the other rallies, parents were invited to watch the events and entertainment.

RAW RUBBER PRICE RISES UNDER RESTRICTED PRODUCTION

Control Authorities Not Aiming at Sharp Advance Which Would Check Consumption.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The scheme to restrict rubber production gradually is making itself felt in the price of raw rubber which has risen to 7⅝ pence per pound, the highest in more than four years.

It is generally thought in the market a condition is approaching which should bring many producing estates to a dividend paying basis. This undoubtedly has been the stimulus to the recent buying of rubber shares on the exchange. Opinion also prevails that the "control" is not aiming at any sharp advance in the commodity price but rather to insure a steady level based on cost of production coupled with considerations of fluctuations in world consumption.

Control authorities, according to market opinion, are not overlooking the fact that a sudden price increase would check consumption and bring about greater use of the reclaimed product. Efforts also are being made to persuade Dutch native producers to fall into line. Favorable advices have been received from the United States and Singapore.

BOY SCOUT COUNCIL LEADERSHIP COURSE

Study Under Direction of Col. H. D. McBride Will Begin Oct. 17.

A course in boy leadership for those who wish to study methods which have been successfully used will be given by the St. Louis Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the 138th Regiment Armory, Grand boulevard and Market street, beginning Oct. 17.

Col. H. D. McBride, scout commissioner of the St. Louis council, will direct the course, in which leaders in education and boys' work will participate.

Those who take the course will not be asked to become scoutmasters, nor will they be promised places in scouting. The idea of the course is to interest as many men as possible in the opportunities of boys' work and the need for work among boys.

James E. West, chief scout executive of the national council; Charles F. Nagel, former Secretary of Commerce and Labor; John L. Bracken, superintendent of the Clayton schools; Wilford M. Aiken, director of John Burroughs School, and Lou Leverington, field commissioner, will speak on various phases of boys' work in the five meetings which will constitute the course.

Older scouts who will have charge of troop ticket sales for the annual Merit Badge Show to be held in the Arena, Nov. 8, 9 and 10, will meet at a dinner at Pilgrim Congregational Church at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow to plan their work, under direction of Walter Slay.

This year's show, according to Willard B. Cox, chairman of the Show Committee, will be characterized by action.

"We will emphasize action," he said, "in every one of the 128 booths and displays, because action is the essence of entertainment, whether it's at a play, a movie or a baseball game. It's an education to see 128 different activities in which red-blooded boys are interested gathered together under one roof, but it's thrilling when you see those things in action."

Besides the regular scouting activities which will be displayed there will also be shown those of the older boys and of the Cubs, an organization of boys under scout age.

A ship's bell has been presented to Commodore Harry S. Holbrook, chairman of the council's Sea Scout committee, by the Inland Yachting Association, an organization of boating enthusiasts of St. Louis, Alton and vicinity.

The bell as given in appreciation of the work of a Sea Scout detail in helping handle crowds on the wharf during the recent regatta held on the Mississippi by the association.

The Order of the Arrow will hold its first fall get-together Saturday at Bee Tree Farm, country estate of E. D. Nims, president of the St. Louis Council, on Telegraph road. About 200 are expected at the meeting, which will begin at 3:30 p. m., and will include a steak fry.

The fall scoutmasters' dinner will be held at the Forest Park Hotel at 6 p. m. W[illegible] for the celebration of the twenty-fifth birthday of scouting in the United States, which falls on Feb. 8, will be discussed.

Troop 138, Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, will celebrate its fifth birthday Tuesday evening with a program of scout stunts and acts by radio entertainers to which Shriners throughout the city have been invited.

ST. LOUIS BRANCH TAKES PART IN NEEDLEWORK GUILD WEEK

Members Make Annual Gifts of Clothing, Linen or Money to Charities.

The Needlework Guild of America will open its annual national membership week today. The St. Louis branch, of which Mrs. John T. Davis is honorary president and Mrs. James A. Dickson, 5883 Julian avenue, vice-president, will participate, as in the past.

Qualification for membership is the annual gift of two new articles of clothing or household linen, or of money, for the benefit of recognized charities. Money gifts are used to buy clothing and household supplies. The contributions go to institutions for babies, children, the aged, the feeble, the sick and others. On the list of recipients are hospitals, homes, public schools in poorer neighborhoods and charitable agencies.

The St. Louis branch will assemble the goods it collects for display, before distribution, at Leon Harrison Memorial, Temple Israel, the afternoon of Nov. 13.

MRS. CLIFFORD H. ALBERS DIES ON 45TH BIRTHDAY

Widow of Commission Man Succumbs in Hospital After Week's Illness.

Mrs. Clifford H. Albers, widow of a St. Louis commission merchant, died yesterday on her forty-fifth birthday at St. Mary's Hospital following a week's illness. The body will remain at the Peetz Funeral Home, 3029 Lafayette avenue, until cremation services at Valhalla crematory Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. Albers, who lived at the Gatesworth Hotel, is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Ackhoff of Chicago; a brother, Henry Ackhoff of Chicago; a daughter, Miss Elizabeth Albers, and a son, Clifford Albers.

Nazis Getting Ready for War, Declares Former London Editor; Explanation of German Attitude

Wickham Steed Tells Why People of Reich Favor Another Conflict—Need of a New Strategy.

By WICKHAM STEED,
Former Editor of London Times and Review of Reviews.

LONDON, Oct. 6.

THROUGHOUT the war years, a column called "Through German Eyes" appeared daily in The Times in London. It was compiled by the late J. E. Mackenzie, who had been The Times' correspondent in Berlin until the outbreak of the war compelled him to leave his post. Thoroughly familiar with the German standpoint—the real not ostensible—Mr. Mackenzie used the German press as a means of telling his fellow countrymen German truths. They were not always pleasant reading but they were wholesome.

Today, as then, we need to understand the real German standpoint. A month or two back a well informed German of high standing warned a representative of Great Britain in a foreign capital that the same influences which, in 1914, worked to bring on the great war were again uppermost in Berlin and were working for the same object. He spoke of what he knew.

Why should powerful German influences now be working for war? Has not Adolf Hitler said that Germany desires peace? And were not the Germans badly beaten in 1918?

View Through German Eyes.

Those who ask these questions cannot see through German eyes. They need to remember that in 1914 things would have gone well for Germany had she not encountered unexpected German resistance, had not Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien's division held up the Prussian guards at Le Cateau, and had not the French, with the help of Sir John French, thus gained time to win the battle of the Marne. It was a very near thing. The German general staff was nearly right in thinking that Paris would be taken in a few weeks, the British driven back to the channel ports, the war won and the German mastery of Europe be assured. Next time, luck might be on the German side.

In 1914, Germany was not prepared for a long war. By adaptation and improvisation, her people and her forces withstood the greater part of the world in arms for more than four years in a way of which any nation might be proud. The Germans look back with pride on so great an achievement. Their standpoint today cannot be understood unless this pride be taken into account.

Question of War Guilt.

They feel resentment, too. Ninety-nine Germans out of every hundred are persuaded that their country was totally guiltless of having brought on the war, that it was encircled by a ring of foes and was obliged, in the German Imperial Chancellor's words to the Reichstag on Aug. 4, 1914, to hack its way through." The accusation of "war guilt" and the demand for reparations, together with the cutting up of German territory by the peace treaty, strike patriotic Germans as so many instances of iniquitous hypocrisy inspired by hatred, envy and every sort of malice on the part of their enemies.

Moreover, think these same Germans, their country was not really beaten at all. It was stabbed in the back by traitors—Jews, Pacifists, Socialists and others in league with the enemy. These traitors assented to the disarmament of Germany and to the whole oppressive system, with the League of Nations as its instrument, which was ordained for the sole object of holding down a militant people of which, even in defeat, its enemies were so afraid.

The duty of true Germans was, and is, therefore, plain: To get rid of foreign troops by hook or crook, to punish and suppress the "traitors," to arm themselves in secret, and to prepare in every way for a new "war of liberation," just as their forefathers did between the disaster at Jena in 1806 and the triumph at Leipzig in 1813.

"Right to Rule World."

As their heaven-sent leader, Hitler, has reminded them, the Germans possess the virtues inherent in Nordic Aryan blood, which, by reason of its superior quality, has a right to rule the world, to establish its supremacy over lesser and feebler breeds, and to give mankind the priceless blessing of the uplifting form of German civilization known as Kultur.

These are the beliefs of most Germans today. Translated into military terms they may be expressed as follows:

War is the supreme test of racial strength. It is a good in itself. To abolish it would be a crime or, rather, impious folly. When ruthlessly waged it may be short, and therefore humane. Long-drawn-out destruction, suffering and impoverishment, such as were brought on the world by German ill-luck in 1914, are, indeed, inhuman. The new German war of liberation must be short, sharp and victorious.

To this end a new strategy is needed. The mechanization of warfare and the possession of approximately equal weapons by most nations have rendered obsolete the old ideas of strategy. Unless they be superseded, war, with its beneficent effects on human character, cannot be preserved as a means of attaining political ends by other than politician means. The enemy must be taken by surprise and overwhelmed from the outset, not with the object of destroying him utterly, but in order to disarm him and to compel him to surrender.

There is only one way to do this. Infantry attacks must fail against modern fortifications, and attack by artillery is not much better. But against attack by air there is no defense; and if it be made, without declaration of war, in sufficient strength against the military and industrial centers of the enemy and, above all, against the civilian population of his large cities, he will be unable to organize reprisals. Clouds of poison gas and a thick rain of the most deadly germs which science can breed in large quantities will utterly paralyze enemy peoples when they least expect it and will knock them out overnight. Then victorious Germany will dictate peace to them on her own terms and for their ultimate good.

The Chief Enemy.

Who is the chief enemy? According to Hitler it is France. Were France subdued, Great Britain would hardly be dangerous, though it might be imprudent to leave Britain untouched lest, in her own interests, she attempt to aid the French. Therefore sound strategy requires that London and Southern England at least should be knocked out simultaneously with France. With these two foes at her mercy, Germany could deal without fear of interference, and the world would be safe for Kultur.

I am not exaggerating, nor am I writing ironically. I know that these ideas prevail in Berlin, and are cherished by Nazi Germany. Many of them have been published. I know, besides, that for some years past the application of them to France and Great Britain has been carefully and scientifically studied.

And, if I look on the world through German eyes, I find much to substantiate and to recommend these ideas. They are thoroughly consistent with what has been said and written by authorized exponents of German political thought in the recent past. The "new strategy" was publicly

Mexico's Six-Year Program to Improve the Lot of Its Workers

What the National Revolutionary Party Is Planning to Spend to Put Free Lands Into the Hands of Farmers, Build Roads and Schools—Future Mineral Wealth to Be Property of Nation—Labor Unions Encouraged but Forbidden to Be Oppressive.

This is the second of two articles on political, economic and social conditions in Mexico. The first, which was published in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, dealt with what the leaders of the National Revolutionary Party regard as the chief accomplishments of the Revolution to date. The present article deals with the plans for the future.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

MEXICO, D. F.

THE Government of Mexico believes in the principles of Socialism and is confident that the evolution of Mexican society and economics is in the direction of complete collectivism. Authorized spokesmen of the Government and the National Revolutionary Party have made this plain both by the general tenor of their public utterances and in answer to specific questions. Moreover, the more outstanding projects of the Government, such as the land and educational programs, are socialistic in purpose and effect.

Mexican Socialism, however, does not proceed according to the book.

"We are not socialistic in a Marxian sense," one is told. There is very little discussion of "surplus value" and the theory of the class struggle. All the emphasis is apparently on practical measures which are already in process or which the Government believes can be put into effect within the existing set-up.

In short the socialistic plans of the Government are admittedly conditioned by the realities of the situation—realities which arise out of the nation's internal economy and its foreign relations. The Government, for instance, has a constitution—the Constitution of 1917—which, if interpreted literally, would permit the seizure of all sub-soil deposits, solid, liquid and gaseous. But the Constitution has already been interpreted in such a way as to continue, in effect, the privileges of foreign investors who already operate mines and petroleum fields, no matter how much the theory of ownership may have changed.

This means that a great deal of the nation's natural wealth will continue to flow out of the country.

Mexico's Small Profit in Silver.

"Mexico mines more silver than all the other countries in the world," said Dr. Ramon Beteta, Chief of the Department of Statistics. "And virtually all that we have got out of it is tuberculosis—that and a few unsightly and unprofitable holes in the ground. In 1932 silver to the amount of 61,000,000 pesos was mined in Mexico. Of that amount all that remained in the country was some 7,000,000 pesos in taxes, 10,000,000 pesos in wages and a negligible sum paid for transportation."

Nevertheless there have been no indications from Government sources that the situation will be changed, even though it is freely predicted that General Cardenas, the incoming President, will move "farther to the left" and even though the present public sentiment in the United States is regarded as favorable to radical experiments by the Mexican people. On the contrary, Revolutionary Party leaders such as Luis Leon, insist that the "rights of foreign investors" will be respected.

The Government plans for the immediate future then are concerned with the increase of the national wealth chiefly through the improvement of agricultural and grazing lands, through the further extension of the agrarian program by continuing the distribution of lands, the building up of the educational system and the increase in the number of rural schools, increasing the efficiency of the public health department, further safeguarding the rights of labor, extending the rail and automobile routes, and the throwing of rigid safeguards around such mineral and oil land as have not yet been pre-empted.

The agenda for the incoming Cardenas administration is contained in the Mexican Government's "Six Year Plan," which was drawn up under the personal supervision of General Plutarco Elias Calles—still the "strong man" of the National Revolutionary Party—and inaugurated by the retiring President, General Abelardo L. Rodriguez.

In this document the National Revolutionary Party renews its devotion to the agrarian program and declares that it constitutes the chief social problem of the country.

Prosperity of Farmers Chief Aim.

"Therefore," it says, "the party will continue the struggle of converting them (the farmers) into free and property-owning agriculturists enabling them to obtain and enjoy the harvest of their labor.

"Consequently the agrarian ideal embodied in Article 27 of the Constitution will continue to be the axis of Mexico's social problems so long as the needs of land and water for the farmers of the country have not been completely satisfied"....

To expedite the agrarian work the National Agrarian Commission will be raised to the rank of an "Autonomous Department" and will be so called, during the first year of the plan. Not less than four million pesos—a budgetary increase of 81 per cent—will be spent by the Federal Government during the year, the present Local Agrarian Commissions will be dissolved and Mixed Agrarian Commissions will be established in every state; laws will be changed so that the "ejidos" or communal lands attached to the free villages may be enlarged where necessary, measures will be adopted to accelerate the land division and any land owner who attempts to retard the program will face the penalty of having all his lands taken immediately, and steps will be taken as soon as possible looking toward redistribution of rural populations so that dwellers in hopelessly arid regions may be given better agricultural opportunities.

After the divisions of lands "means should be sought to increase production through organizing the new producers, introducing new methods of cultivation (improvements and changes recommended by agricultural technicians) selection of seeds, industrialization of farm work, introducing and generalizing the use of machines to increase and facilitate the work, the use of fertilizer, teaching the advantages of by-products as well as direct products of the soil, etc."

Scientific Cultivation and Irrigation Plans.

In brief "the State shall develop agriculture for the purpose of raising the economic and technical standards of farmers and rudimentary methods of farm planting and cultivation shall be replaced by modern ones."

The intensive cultivation of the land, promoted through the education and supervision of the individual farmer, is therefore the first step in the enhancement of the Nation's wealth. But the Government will also tackle the problem from the other end and attempt to modify the sometimes formidable opposition of nature through its irrigation program. In fact it contemplates the time when Mexican agriculture will depend principally on irrigation.

Five irrigation projects are already finished and the completion of the following is called for by the plan: "Rio Tula" in the State of Hidalgo; "Rio Salada," Coahuila and Nuevo Leon; "Rio Conchas," Chihuahua; "Rio San Diego," Coahuila; "Valle de Juarez-Rio Bravo," Chihuahua; "Canal Rosales-Rio Culiacan," Sinaloa, and "Pre Sa Rodriguez-Rio Tijuan," Lower California.

Work will also be begun on the following projects: "El Cuchillo-Rio San Juan," Nuevo Leon; "Rio Bravo," Tamaulipas; "Rio Yaqui," Sonora; "Alto Lerma," Guanajuato; "Valle de Valsequillo," Puebla and Rio Nazas.

The Government "will take steps to develop these projects during the six-year period and fifty million pesos will be the minimum to be set aside for this work with the understanding that funds from irrigable lands sold will be placed at the disposal of regional agrarian banks and be used by these banks in developing the irrigated farming areas."

On the subject of labor the Plan lays down the following fundamental principle:

Labor Unions Must Not Be Oppressive.

"Every individual has a right to such work as enables him to satisfy his necessities and honest pleasures, work imposed upon him by society to contribute his share of energy toward the general good." From that point it goes on to announce that the State will intervene, directly or indirectly in guaranteeing the individual his right to work, that the State will encourage the formation of labor unions but will at the same time keep a careful watch on such organizations to see that they do not become "oppressive" and that the Federal and State governments will be subject to the same responsibilities imposed on other employers when they execute work that could be done by individuals.

The Plan contents itself with amplifying principles already implied in the Constitution of 1917 and concludes by promising that a special council will be set up as an adjunct of the Labor Department for the purpose of studying social labor legislation both in Mexico and foreign countries.

The State's promise to intervene in order to guarantee work to the individual is not construed as meaning that either the State or Federal governments will take over any public utilities now operated by private owners. Leaders of the party, in fact, specifically disclaim any such immediate intention.

In respect to the Education Program, which with the distribution of lands, forms the crux of the Revolution so far, the Plan declares that "the functions of educational work depend principally, on the amount of economic resources devoted to it." Therefore "the Federal, State and Municipal govern-

New National Archives Building First Ever Built for Sole Purpose Of Preserving Historic Documents

After Century and Half of Neglect, Famous Records Will Be Kept as Safe as Science Can Make Them.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.

THERE is nearing completion on Independence avenue, next door to the huge new Department of Justice building, a handsome classic structure that is to be a warehouse for America's past. In the new National Archives building the documents of American history will be as safe from the ravages of time as modern science can make them.

The Declaration of Independence, the early drafts of the Constitution, the memorable messages of Washington and the Presidents who have followed him are to be put, literally, into cold storage. Here, too, as facetious columnists have pointed out, the eighteenth amendment will find a most appropriate niche.

After a century and a half of neglect of the past, the Government has created an archives building such as no other nation possesses. Never before has any country designed a building for the express purpose of preserving historic documents and invaluable records.

The entire building is to be air-conditioned by the most modern engineering methods so that the temperature and humidity will not vary even a fraction of a degree from winter to summer. Tons of moisture will be absorbed out of Washington's damp air before it is allowed to circulate in this treasury of the past.

"Educated" Instruments.

What engineers call "educated" instruments will provide automatic control of the climate within the archives building. Normal air-conditioning, such as is found in the average movie theater, will be provided for the offices of the archivist and his assistants, but the air which is to circulate through the great stacks will be exceptionally dry.

Only one large exhibition hall will be open to the public. Here in hermetically sealed cases will be the documents especially significant to America's past. These cases will be supplied with treated air changed at regular intervals and it is possible that preservative gases will be introduced. Although these documents will be on display, no daylight will be allowed to reach them. That is true throughout the entire building. Since daylight is considered particularly destructive, only artificial light will be used in the document rooms. There are virtually no windows in the archives building which is one reason that it offered such a difficult architectural problem.

The storage capacity of the building, as originally designed, was approximately 1,007,000 cubic feet. But the architect left a court in the center of the building which was to be used for future stacks when they were needed. It was realized not long after construction was begun that the original storage space would be wholly inadequate to care for the records that are now distributed among a dozen different departments in innumerable buildings. Therefore the Public Works Administration made immediately available $3,610,000 to install the stacks in the interior court. This is in addition to the $8,500,000 that the original building cost.

Provision of Scholars.

Generous provision is made for scholars and historians who will come to examine original documents. They will go to a central desk on the second floor. There they will consult the catalogue and request on a written slip the document or book they want to see. An attendant will dispatch this slip by a system of pneumatic tubes to the proper section and a messenger will deliver the desired document to one of the research rooms with which the building is provided.

For every three tiers of stacks there will be a section chief with his suite of offices in charge. Altogether there will be 21 tiers which is the equivalent of about a 10-story building.

Below the ground floor is a receiving room into which trucks will drive with records to be stored. All documents will pass, before they are sent upstairs, through a routine process of disinfection, rebinding and repair, and preliminary classification. Experts will make every effort to preserve fading ink and crumbling paper.

Madison's Concern.

All this is in marked contrast to the presistent neglect of the archives which has been the policy, if it could be called a policy, up to the present time. The country was too much occupied with the future to give even brief consideration to the past. President James Madison was deeply concerned over the fate of the papers of the founding fathers and persuaded Congress to name a committee to look into the matter. On March 27, 1810, this committee reported:

"The committee directed to inquire into the state of the ancient public records and archives of the United States and to consider whether any and what provision be necessary for a more safe and orderly preservation of them, have attended that service. They find the public records and papers belonging to the period, antecedent to the adoption of the present state Constitution of the United States, in a state of great disorder and exposure; and in a situation neither safe nor convenient nor honorable to the nation. Your committee, therefore, are of opinion that provision ought to be made, without delay, for their preservation and orderly arrangement."

Attached were the statements of various heads of departments. They were almost all crowded into one building with so little space that naturally records, even current records, were piled in great confusion in the attic. The public postoffice was in the same building and the Postmaster-General complained that his papers were not even protected from petty thievery on the part of loiterers and persons who came into his rooms on the pretext of buying stamps. The head of the Patent Office said that he would require "at least three additional fireproof rooms."

In Trunks and Boxes.

The Secretary of State complained: "Most of the ancient records and papers deposited in this department are kept, as you have seen, in small rooms in the garret of this building, and in the trunks and boxes in which they were brought from Philadelphia, and, it is believed, from New York. . . . I would therefore recommend that provision be made for the erection of a fireproof building, for the safekeeping of these papers, and of such as may, from time to time, be removed from the files of this department, and also for the employment of a person to arrange them in proper order."

That is exactly where the matter rested for 124 years. It was not that dozens of other committees, public and private, did not urge the need on successive administrations. They employed every kind of persuasion. At least three Presidents worked to secure an archives building to no avail. Historians pointed out the impossibility of doing any important research in the face of confusion that grew as the Government grew.

Instead of one small attic filled with dusty piles of uncatalogued

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

Virtues of the Profit System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE National Council of Congregational and Christian Churches, at a recent meeting at Oberlin, O., resolved that the economic system of competitive profit seeking should be abolished. That means plain Socialism. In the succeeding paragraph, the Council attempted to recede from such a drastic position by saying that the genuinely co-operative social economy should be "democratically planned." That means that such economy should be the orderly product of the people. It means nothing more. The words "democratically planned," therefore, do not alter the purpose and intent of the Council's resolution to work toward a Socialistic regime in this country, and these words in quotation marks are mere dust in the eyes of the reader.

If the people want Socialism, the nth degree of which is Communism, they should have it. But only one horn of a dilemma may be grasped. The profit system, with its inspiration to private achievement, has forged this great country into the leadership of the world in the arts, the sciences, "the cultural and educational opportunities of our people" and the highest standard of living ever known. Three generations of enfeebling Socialism would reduce us to the level of Soviet Russia. Our complex life has given rise to many problems, but their solution does not lie in the path of thralldom for men's hearts and souls.

HIRAM B. MORSE.

Mr. Rose-v'lt.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I RECENTLY attended a Socialist meeting addressed by a candidate for one of the highest offices in the nation. At its close, a gentleman asked me what I thought of the speech and the speaker. I told him I thought any man in any party big enough to hold the high office that candidate sought should be able to pronounce correctly the name of the President of his country.

I now apologize to my Socialist friend. I have just returned from the great Democratic rally at Flat River and Desloge where the State campaign started off with a boom—and it was a boom, and a great meeting and a great rally. But, to my surprise, several of the most prominent Democrats who made addresses on this occasion, also incorrectly pronounced Mr. Roosevelt's name. I believe that everybody, and especially Democrats, and more especially those Democrats who are making campaign speeches, should learn to pronounce correctly the name of the President.

ALBERT S. ENNIS.

Festus, Mo.

(The President himself pronounces it like this: Rose-v'lt, with the accent on the first syllable.—Editor's note.)

Balancing the Budget.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

GENTLEMEN of finance, business and industry want to know of the President: "When and how is it proposed to balance the Federal budget?"

Ask almost any worker (jobless or otherwise) and he will tell you that the Federal budget will be balanced soon as possible after industry begins to function in its plain duty of supplying all the needs of all the people in the matters of employment at fair wages, goods and services at fair prices. He will tell you that high prices, which kill demand and cancel the good effects of shorter hours and better wages, will balance no budgets, private or public.

The man with the old market basket will tell you that high prices, which curtail production and employment, are the well-known road to ruin; that full production and employment, with fair prices, will result in such a volume of business that the people will profit thereby.

Then, when the people are able to balance their personal budgets, the public budget will not long be a problem to worry about. Only those gentlemen who persist in searching for the mote in the President's eye, while refusing to remove the beams which obstruct their own vision, fail to see that balancing the budget is not so much a matter of presidential power as it is a matter of industrial responsibility.

DEMOCRACY.

Lawyers and the Constitution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE United States Constitution, when properly interpreted, becomes functional and no longer remains rigid, arbitrary or historic. Its spiritual preamble was intended to guide subsequent interpreters, and it was foreseen that the legal fraternity might produce some astute minds which, cold to every human consideration, would contend for the letter of the law.

When reactionary lawyers shall have been booted from bar associations, when great corporations give legal touts the proverbial gate, when business executives renounce commercial expediency and validate decent, manly behavior, President Roosevelt's doctrine of unselfishness will not appear so quixotic. The President is dynamic, practical and history-minded. He is trying to make America realize its true destiny.

LESSONS FROM A TRIAL.

The urgent need for criminal code reform in Missouri—a need to which the Post-Dispatch has repeatedly called attention—is effectively illustrated by the procedure in the first of the court trials growing out of the Kelley kidnaping. We have no opinion to express as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant. That was the function of the jury, and the jury has spoken. Nor do we say that the attorneys for the defense in any way exceeded their legal rights. The point is simply that the trial throws light on certain of the faults inherent in the present system of criminal justice.

After the State, in a criminal trial, has outlined its case, the defense has the option of telling immediately what it expects to prove or of withholding this outline until after the testimony of the State's witnesses. In the case under review, the defense elected to make its statement immediately after that of the prosecution. It was fully within its rights in so doing. By this method, the defense was able at the outset of the trial to get before the jury not only a total disclaimer of the guilt of the defendant, but also certain prejudicial allegations without any bearing on the sole question before the jury, namely, the guilt or innocence of the defendant. An attorney, speaking for the defense, said:

> It will be shown that the prosecuting witness, Dr. Kelley, will take the witness stand counseled by the biggest and best lawyers in the State of Missouri. It will be shown that Dr. Kelley's every move since he disappeared and claimed to be kidnaped has been counseled by the best and biggest lawyers in the State of Missouri.

What possible connection, it is pertinent to ask, could there be between the kind of lawyers employed by the prosecuting witness and the question of the guilt or innocence of the defendant?

In effect, the lawyer for the defense in this opening statement to the jury placed on trial a reputable citizen who had been the victim of an atrocious crime—a crime for which the State, not the victim individually, was seeking to exact a penalty. The defense was able to implant in the minds of the jury the insinuation carried in the language, "claimed to be kidnaped." This insinuation was directed at a man who, as the evidence subsequently showed, had been lured from his home at night by an appeal for medical aid, who had been seized and held captive for eight days, who had been threatened with unspeakable mistreatment and death by his captors.

He "claimed" to have been kidnaped, and in support of that claim he was being counseled "by the biggest and best lawyers in the State of Missouri." But that was not all. Further calculated to make Dr. Kelley the defendant in the minds of the jury was this:

> It will be shown that during the time Dr. Kelley was away his name was advertised all over St. Louis as the most eminent specialist in his profession. The publicity he got could not have been bought for any man's money.

Here is the preposterous insinuation that Dr. Kelley "claimed" to have been kidnaped in order to advertise himself as a physician. It shocks one's sense of justice to realize that a citizen doing his duty by the State, seeking on behalf of the State to bring to justice the perpetrators of a crime, can be held up in a court of law, without any evidence whatever, as himself a malefactor deserving of contempt. The insinuation had no shadow of substantiation in the evidence submitted by the defense.

Again, the lawyer for the defendant said:

> It will be claimed, and the evidence of the prosecution will show, that not one dollar was paid to anybody for the return of Dr. Kelley.

In point of fact, no such evidence was introduced by the State.

Again, the defense lawyer said:

> It will be shown that not a living being in the world entitled to the respect of respectable persons will corroborate Dr. Kelley's statement that he was held prisoner as is claimed. No man in the world except Dr. Kelley will testify that he was forcibly detained.

Here again is the insinuation that the kidnaping was faked—and all this, be it remembered, before a word of testimony as to the facts. It is a lawyer for the defense, not a witness under oath, talking to the jury—a lawyer who said in his opening remarks that he had never laid eyes on Dr. Kelley.

"No man in the world except Dr. Kelley," said the lawyer, "will testify that he was forcibly detained." The lawyer was more than safe in that assertion. For only the guilty captors themselves could corroborate Dr. Kelley's statement that he was held prisoner. And of these, the only one the police were able to arrest, a man who would have corroborated Dr. Kelley, had been murdered by machine gunners before he could do so. Assassination had put the stamp of complete truth upon the lawyer's statement, in advance.

The lawyer for the defense said that Dr. Kelley was "found" by a reporter for the Post-Dispatch. Dr. Kelley was not found by a reporter or anyone else. The circumstances of Dr. Kelley's release and his return to his family have been fully printed time and again. The lawyer said that Kelley was found "in some indefinable place." Photographs and maps have been printed of the exact spot where he was released by the kidnapers.

The defense sought also to place the Post-Dispatch on trial. In examining prospective jurors, one of the defense lawyers asked:

> Are you conscious that the Post-Dispatch is a commercial enterprise, organized for profit, and that hence its news is frequently colored and generally unreliable?

As to this, the Post-Dispatch submits its record during the 56 years of its existence.

Prospective jurors were asked whether they would consider evidence tending to show "that the Post-Dispatch caused the prosecution to be instituted for the sole purpose of printing a news story." They were asked whether they would give weight to "the fact that they (the Post-Dispatch) paid the witness (Fiedler) to testify falsely."

The Post-Dispatch paid Fiedler for certain information after it had satisfied itself of the substantial truth of that information. It turned the information and the witness Fiedler over to the proper authorities. It printed none of this material until assured by them that such publication would in no way interfere with the processes of justice. The Post-Dispatch, as the facts show, acted at all times in the public interest.

The trial brought into sharp relief the rule of procedure whereby the defense is permitted to take the depositions of the State's witnesses in advance, while a similar right is denied the State. Manifestly, the defense is thus given an immense advantage in the preparation of its case. The Post-Dispatch, in common with numerous advocates of reform in criminal procedure, has urged that in respect to depositions the State be placed on an equal footing with the defense.

In the case under review, after the deposition mill had done its work and the jurymen to try the case were being selected, the defense moved that the entire panel be discharged because of the publication of the high points in the State's case against the four defendants in the Kelley kidnaping. Thus, the defense sought to delay the trial because of the publication of the very evidence which the defense itself had publicly adduced in bail bond hearings and the depositions it had taken. The defense, of course, had a right to make the motion, but its making is an illuminating commentary on the procedure by which the judicial process can be delayed in the interest of a defendant.

The tactics of the defense in this kidnaping case, as we have said, were fully within its legal rights. They were not unique. It is precisely because they were not unique, but were characteristic of the procedure permitted under archaic laws, that they warrant thoughtful examination.

The system cries for reform.

TO THE SOUTH.

Gov. Futrell of Arkansas, baseball enthusiast, is watching the world series games from a seat of inescapable neutrality. His State is imperially represented in the personnel of both teams. "Schoolboy" Rowe, hope and expectancy of the Detroit Tigers, is a native of that incomparable commonwealth, and the Governor also insists that the Dean brothers are constituents of his. This latter assertion will be contested, we surmise, by Oklahoma, and both claimants may be silenced by an Aeolian blast from Texas.

The controversy is one from which we shall remain prudently aloof. What may be observed, however, in the interest of truth, justice and historical accuracy, is this: Southward the star of baseball empire has taken its way. The luminaries of the diamond hail, mostly, from the Southland.

As autumn annually stills the guns of baseball wars, "Pepper" Martin rambles back to Oklahoma, along with the Waner brothers of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Jackson of the Giants and Dickey of the Yankees find a happy hunting ground in Arkansas.

And only yesterday, Texas beamed upon a nation that toasted her two illustrious sons—Hornsby of the whaling bludgeon and that winged Mercury, Tris Speaker, who roamed the domain of centerfield like a particularly agile streak of lightning. From the deep South comes the voice of Georgia calling out from the past the name of that meteoric immortal, Tyrus Cobb. And all the cities "green-walled by the hills of Maryland" are proud to say that the greatest of the great, the Richard, the Raymond, the Goeffrey of baseball, is their own Babe Ruth.

Raise your glass, Mr. Baseball Fan, to the South!

TOUGH ON THE YOUNGSTERS.

Contrary to the practice in Missouri, the Kansas law setting aside the birth date of Frances E. Willard (Sept. 28) for compulsory instruction in the public schools in temperance and abstinence from alcoholic drink, tobacco and narcotics, is generally observed. Vast quantities of material—lectures, song parodies, dialogues—are sent out by the State Department of Public Instruction and temperance societies for the occasion. One-quarter of the school day is consumed by the procedure.

The Emporia Gazette thus describes the reaction of young Kansas minds: "To hundreds of children, the affair is the bunk; they despise it." The Gazette, which never has had a kind word for the Demon Rum, analyzes the canned programs in its best unabashed manner: "They are all terrible, not just bad, but fierce—terrible." And the editor removes all doubts as to his attitude by concluding: "Frances Willard day is but an example of how insidious propaganda groups would dominate the school curriculum."

Sensible training in temperance is obviously a fine thing for the youth of the land. But it is much more effective when imparted in the home or the church, not to mention the waste of school hours in furthering the interests of a special group. It is tactics of this kind that have brought the temperance movement, with its great possibilities, into disrepute. Kansas school children have little voice in protesting against such pabulum, but a few more blasts from the Gazette editor's trumpet, and Kansas will wake up to the misuse of its educational facilities.

GRADE CROSSINGS AND THE SUPREME COURT.

Among the cases of the United States Supreme Court reported in the most recent preliminary print is one arising from an accident at a railroad grade crossing in Ohio. Justice Sutherland's 10-page opinion shows that he and his colleagues on the bench had to balance the negligence of the engineer who approached the grade crossing without sounding the whistle or ringing the bell against that of the injured person, who failed to stop at the crossing although the train was in plain view. The obvious reflection on this is that a branch of the national Government so important as the Supreme Court should not find it necessary to spend time on the long-since-outmoded grade crossing.

When one recalls how horse-drawn vehicles were frequently hit by trains, it becomes questionable whether grade crossings ever had their place. Certainly, there is no place for them in the age of the automobile, as the ever-increasing number of overheads and underpasses indicates. The recently completed CWA survey of the St. Louis regional area calls attention to the fact that a great many grade crossings remain in and about St. Louis. Many of them constitute a serious menace to life and continuously delay traffic, thus exacting a heavy economic toll from the community. These hazards, which lie on both sides of the river, should be removed without further delay. It is a sorry comment on our slowness in doing necessary things that the United States Supreme Court in 1934 should be forced to weigh carelessness at a grade crossing.

A Labor of Love

THE SOUL OF AMERICA: An Oregon Iliad. By Eva Emery Dye. (The Press of the Pioneers, Inc., New York City.)

ANY sustained labor of love is likely to result in something worthy of respect, and it is clear that this circumstantial account of the great westward migration, beginning in 1844, and the building of Oregon was written with a genuine love for, and a thorough knowledge of, the subject matter.

Eva Emery Dye, who was born in Illinois, moved to Oregon when many of the old-timers, who had crossed the plains and mountains and deserts in the '40s and '50s, were still living. She must have spent years in accumulating the wealth of detail to be found in her narrative, and, of equal if not greater importance, she has undoubtedly succeeded in realizing the mood of one of the greatest mass adventures in all history.

It was not the author's purpose to create a romance with the usual emphasis upon a hero and heroine destined to wed after many vicissitudes. The westward moving mass itself is perhaps, in the last analysis, the hero, and the new land the heroine. But there are scores of characters with whom the reader becomes intimately acquainted, and heroism is common to all of them; for when a great mass moves upon a high adventure, the individuals thereof, by virtue of the ancient race inheritance, will commonly rise to the greatness of spirit that the adventure demands.

The story is told in a cinematographic manner, with many sudden shiftings of attention—much as though the author were above the tremendous moving picture, noting now this detail and now that, but never forgetting the steady onward flow of the river of men in that June rise of the human spirit.

It is of no importance to ask if "The Soul of America" be literature, in any high artistic sense. It reproduces the spirit of the time with a fidelity not to be doubted. Nor does it matter that the use of "Iliad" in the title is in no way justified. Perhaps it was used in lieu of the word "epic," which has been ridiculously overworked of late years by gentlemen evidently under the impression that if it's violent and there's a lot of it, why then it's "epic."

There is no need, for that matter, of attempting to dignify any account of so tremendous an adventure by giving it a Homeric tag. The greatness involved was old when the "singers of the stitched song" were born.

THE CITY MANAGER PROFESSION. By Clarence E. Ridley and Orin F. Nolting. (University of Chicago Press, Chicago.)

THIS latest addition to the rapidly growing literature on the city manager plan of municipal government is by the director and assistant director, respectively, of the International City Managers' Association. It does not treat the subject in its more numerous aspects, as the larger works on the subject do, but, as its title indicates, concerns itself with the rise of the city manager as a professional occupation.

After discussing the idea of an appointive executive in municipal government, the authors take up the position of the city manager, his qualifications, training for the post and selection. Louis Brownlow, director of the Public Administration Clearing House, Chicago, says in the foreword: "It is the peculiar significance of this volume that it presents in concise and compact form the achievements and aspirations of a new profession devoted to the social well-being of the inhabitants of the American city." SALT OF THE SEA. By "Sinbad." (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)
PIRATE WENCH. By Frank Shay. (Ives Washburn, New York City.)

FOR those men whose spirits sometimes droop and sicken with longing for escape from the constant struggle to remain alive (in the limited sense of merely not dying), these two tales might yield some hours of happy release. They are both well calculated to appeal to whatever remnant of the undomesticated male may have managed to survive in such readers.

Both tales are said to be based upon fact. "Salt of the Sea" is the story of one Kenneth Beauclerc Saunders, a red-headed giant, who, during his years of adventuring in Asiatic waters and the South Seas before the war, became something of a legendary character in the tales of deep-water sailors.

Saunders was an English gentleman, educated at Eton and Oxford. Having broken the back of a man who had spoken slightingly of a woman he loved, Saunders left England, never to return. He was next heard of as "Red" Saunders, captain of a sailing vessel engaged in business of a questionable character anywhere "east of Suez."

It appears to have been true, in keeping with the poet's famous lines, that some of the commandments were rather in abeyance in Red's adventurous life; and that he could and frequently did "raise a thirst" is certain; but it could scarcely be said that "the best were like the worst" to Red, for even in his wildest escapades, he seems never to have lost his gentlemanly morale.

"Sinbad," who tells the story, states that he served as first mate under Red for a while, and that he learned much of the man's life story "during a sojourn of 11 weeks upon a remote island in the Indian Ocean following complete shipwreck." After Red's tragic death, more was learned from Admiral Napier of the British Navy and the late Admiral Bob Evans of the U. S. N.

In "Pirate Wench," Frank Shay, founder of the Provincetown Theater and for some years a deep-water sailor, has novelized the career of Mary Read, presumably the only woman who ever became a pirate captain. It's a whale of a story, told with a fine "fling" and "go"; a quite flabbergasting tale on the whole, but nevertheless somehow always convincing.

THE TWILIGHT OF PARENTHOOD. By Enid Charles, M. A., Ph. D. (W. W. Norton & Co., New York City.)

THIS exhaustive study of population growth, based upon new statistical methods and described by Julian Huxley as the most important work on the subject in recent years, arrives at the conclusion that "in place of the Malthusian menace of over-population, there is now a real danger of under-population." Apparently cogent reasons are given for the alleged trend toward a population decrease, and these are summed up in the following general statement:

"The acquisitive society cannot create the conditions for developing or applying knowledge of man's inborn nature. Its ultimate condemnation is that it has now ceased to be able to accommodate the biological machinery by which any form of society can be perpetuated."

Some who read the volume may, without the slightest cynicism, wonder why "under-population" is to be feared. "Under" what? And what would be deplorable about the fact of a relatively small population throughout the world? Would it be necessarily unintelligent to venture the suggestion that conceivably the effective wisdom of the human race may prove insufficient for the solution of our problems, and that perhaps nothing but a great general reduction of population will solve them?

DEW ON THE GRASS. By Eiluned Lewis. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

THE relatively few—and they are fortunate—who have read with sympathetic understanding a book called "Bevis," by Richard Jefferies, will agree that as a story of boy life it holds a high and lonely place, remote, by virtue of its unique quality, from the literature of boyhood in general. Many other stories about boys are true and wholly lovable, but they move upon a lower general level of consciousness.

It is literally true, and not a matter of sentimentally distorted reminiscence, that childhood may be aware of a glorious phase of reality that is forgotten by most people in the process of growing up. Wordsworth was not merely poetizing, but actually trying to say something vital, when he wrote about "trailing clouds of glory" and "shades of the prison house." Most adults, if they can remember at all the world as they once knew it, are likely to assume a tenderly patronizing attitude of superiority in commenting thereon; for has not life made them "practical"? It has indeed; but the term might require a more careful definition.

At any rate, the best possible companions are either unspoiled children or very wise old people—the reason in each case being the same—the latter having succeeded in living past the obfuscations of self-consciousness, and the former having not yet felt the burden thereof. Richard Jefferies never forgot, and that is why his "Bevis" is such a thing.

But, the reader of these oblique remarks may object, according to the title listed above, "Dew on the Grass," by one Eiluned Lewis, should be the subject under consideration. It is; but such is the character and quality of the book that direct description is inadequate, and the only other book the present writer knows that can be compared with it in lieu of description is "Bevis." Only "Dew on the Grass" is about girlhood. Jefferies was remembering his own childhood, and so was Eiluned Lewis, who must be the "Lucy" of her own story.

The scene is a farm in Wales, on "the young Severn," where the author grew up, and if the reader happens to be hopelessly factual-minded, it will seem to him that nothing much happens. But many others will agree that it is nothing less than the wonder of the world that is constantly happening. And it is all so simply and beautifully told, so gloriously true.

This seems to be the first book of Eiluned Lewis, who is literary editor of a London newspaper.

GRAND OPERA SERIES OPENS MONDAY NIGHT

St. Louis Company to Be First Major Organization to Begin Fall Season.

The St. Louis Grand Opera Company, opening its fall series with 'La Rondine' tomorrow night at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House, will be the first major operatic organization in the country to open the 1934 fall and winter season.

Consequently, its casts for Puccini's operatic comedy and seven other presentations to follow are notable.

Lucrezia Bori, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, and Mario Chamlee, who arrived yesterday, will sing the leading roles in La Rondine, which never has been produced in St. Louis. Its first American presentation was at the Metropolitan in 1926.

Miss Bori and Chamlee appeared in the closing performance of the inaugural grand opera season here last spring. They will be supported by Marek Windheim, Polish tenor of the Metropolitan, and Florence Macbeth, soprano of the Chicago Opera Company.

Rehearsing for Several Days.

Most of the secondary singers have been in St. Louis for several days rehearsing daily with the chorus ballet and orchestra and a full dress rehearsal will be held tonight.

Harold McCormick, patron of the Chicago Grand Opera Company will attend tomorrow night as the guest of Walter W. Head, chairman of the Grand Opera Founders, the sponsoring organization for the St. Louis Opera.

Advance ticket sales for the second series of grand opera here within five months, following the plan of Guy Golterman, general director, to arrange short semiannual seasons, indicate possibility of greater box-office success than that of last spring.

As for the spring season, Gennaro Papi will be conductor; Armando F. Agnini, stage director, and Rita de Leporte, premier danseuse and ballet mistress.

List of Other Operas.

The other operas to be produced are: Carmen, Wednesday; Madame Butterfly, Saturday; La Boheme, Oct. 15; La Forza Del Destino, Oct. 17; Lohengrin, Oct. 20; Tosca, Oct. 22, and Andrea Chenier, Oct. 26.

With the exception of Wagner's Lohengrin, in German, and Carmen, by the French composer, Georges Bizet, the operas are by Italian composers.

Others who appeared at the spring season, including Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan tenor; Elizabeth Rethberg, Metropolitan soprano, and Hizi Koyke, Japanese soprano, will have parts in the later productions.

Among the newcomers will be Maria Jeritza, Viennese soprano, formerly with the Metropolitan; Alfredo Gandolfi, baritone, and Kathryn Meisle, contralto, of the Metropolitan, and Coe Glade, contralto, of the Chicago company.

350 St. Louisans Participating.

More than 350 St. Louis singers, dancers and instrumental musicians are engaged in the chorus, orchestra and ballet. A special German chorus of 80 voices will sing in Lohengrin.

The Grand Opera Founders, incorporated since the spring series, with Head as chairman, Frank M. Mayfield, Davis R. Calhoun and Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord as vice-chairmen, and David L. Grey as treasurer, was organized to furnish a financial foundation.

The performance will start promptly at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night. Tickets will remain on sale at the Aeolian box office all day tomorrow, and at 7 o'clock tomorrow night the box office at the Auditorium will open.

MRS. ANNA SUMMERS DIES

E. St. Louis Woman, 82, Was Widow of Civil War Veteran.

Mrs. Anna Summers, 82 years old, died last night of pneumonia at her home, 1611 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis. She was the widow of Charles Summers, who served in the Sixty-ninth New York Regiment during the Civil War. She resided in Washington, D. C., during the war and has lived in East St. Louis since 1892, the year of her husband's death.

Surviving are two daughters, four sons, a brother, five grandchildren and one great grandchild. Funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow at 10:15 a. m. to St. Paul's Episcopal Church with burial in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mexico's 6-Year Program To Help Its Workers

ments in formulating their budgets for public education, will not assign to them amounts less than those of 1933." Furthermore "the National Revolutionary Party declares that any increase in budgets, be this ever so small, will signify adherence to the solemn revolutionary principles."

Larger Expenditures for Educating Masses.

Expenditures on public education will be increased in every year that the Plan operates starting with a 15 per cent increase and progressively rising to 20 per cent in 1939. All educational activities will be co-ordinated and the primary schools, rural and urban, "will provide truthful answers—scientific and rational—to every question not clear in the minds of students. Consequently the National Revolutionary Party will employ means to have Article 30 of the Constitution reformed to the effect that public instruction will be dependent directly on the State and, under its direction, based on the orientations and postulates of the socialistic doctrine upheld by the Mexican revolution."

Urban schools will be established through co-ordinate action of the municipal, State and Federal governments, in a sufficient number to accommodate all children of school ages; rural Federal schools will be increased at the rate of 2000 a year through the year 1939 and a Counsel of Rural Education will be established within the Department of public Education.

Private education is not ruled out but "individuals with false and exaggerated concepts of personal liberty, will be denied the right to organize and direct educational centers independent of the State's control. The freedom of instruction shall be understood as a right granted to everyone provided he abides by the requirements laid down by the law." In other words any school whose instruction contravenes the ideology of the Revolution will not be allowed to operate.

Although the Government is in the position of recognizing petroleum and mineral concessions granted to foreigners prior to 1917 the Six Year Plan outlines a course of procedure designed to reserve for the nation the as yet undetermined wealth of this character which has not been exploited. Proven mining regions will await the operation by the State or of individuals who would operate them under an arrangement beneficial to the State. An official exploration service will be established which will specify what mining regions shall be placed on reserve, direct the opening of new mining districts and decide (for technical and national reasons) what zones shall not be worked by private mining companies. Monopoly of land holding rights will be prevented.

Future Mineral Wealth for Nation.

The Government plans an increasingly strict regulation of commercial enterprise operating in the mineral and oil fields. "This must be done," says the plan, "in such a manner as to obtain for our country the greatest possible per cent of wealth produced." The plan, in general, involves the encouragement of mining companies backed by Mexican capital, the attempt to prevent the shipping of concentrates to foreign countries through the levying of export taxes, the encouragement of mining mill and foundry construction and an attempt to effect an equilibrium by stimulating activities of national companies.

As can be seen, this plan does not rule out the further introduction of private capital into the situation, but hopes to limit such investment to nationals.

Under the head of "Communications and Public Works," the plan announces the completion of the automobile highway from Nuevo Laredo, on the American border, to Acapulco, on the Pacific Coast, and of the Sonora-Chiapas highway extending from Nogales, on the American border, through the State of Chiapas to the Guatemalan border. These two highways cross each other at Mexico City and are considered to have a social as well as an economic importance.

In the State of Chiapas, for instance, where the peons have been but little affected by the agrarian plan and where working conditions on the haciendas are declared by the Government to be the worst in Mexico due to the competition offered by Guatemalan peons who are still under the domination of the hacienda system, good roads are looked upon as an imperative preliminary step to the Government's socialization plans. There are no railways in Chiapas and most of the dirt roads are just primitive trails.

Plans for Building New Rairoad Lines.

"The railway system," the plan continues, "shall open to communication fertile regions isolated from the rest of its track net. With that end in view, during the six-year period, at least 60,000,000 pesos will be spent in construction of the following railway lines:

"I—From Ejutla, Oaxaca, to a Pacific coast port (unnamed).

"II—From Uruapam, Michoacan, to a point on the Balsas River, with the object of later prolonging it to the Pacific coast.

"III—From Santa Lucrecia, Oaxaca, to the capital of Campeche.

"IV—From Mazatlan to Durango city."

In the matter of public health, the text of the plan concedes that special conditions in Mexico—specifically the rudimentary sanitary methods still prevalent in the rural districts—make fundamental health service such as the purification of water supplies and the stamping out of sources of infection, the first matters of consideration. For "so long as the general unhealthy conditions are not changed medical aid will be inefficient and will continue to direct its energies against a secondary evil without results."

Up to the present, it is stated, "the Public Health Department has been granted, in the division of Mexico's general expense budget, only 1.93 per cent in 1926 and 3.03 per cent in 1933."

The National Revolutionary party considers that an increase in the budget allowance for public health is imperative and calls for an expanding allotment beginning at 3.40 per cent for 1934 and rising to 5.50 per cent during 1939.

Such are the main provisions of Mexico's Six-Year Plan. Its success will admittedly be conditioned by the Government's ability to increase its national wealth, thereby increasing the funds diverted to purely governmental services. Moreover, the Government is not unaware of the possibility that its complete or partial success may involve psychological changes in the population which will in turn raise new problems.

The Peon's Place in the New Life.

For the agricultural workers and their dependents, who constitute 70 per cent of the nation's population, the industrial revolution has hardly begun. Their way of life is constructed without reference to the mechanical accessories of modern civilization. To some observers—mostly foreign—this freedom from a complication of 'artificially stimulated desires has enabled these agricultural workers to evolve a rhythm of living which is tranquil, satisfying and beautiful.

Their work is hard, but not beyond their capacity; their means are small but adequate to their needs—and their creative and social impulses are expressed in their native arts and handicrafts, their contacts in the market place and in the peculiar emotional releases involved in the fiesta. They are regionally and individually self-sufficient and therefore exempt from all harrowing effects of industrial depressions.

Opposed to this view is the one which holds that because the peon has seemed to resign himself to this "simple rhythm" is no sure indication that he is satisfied with it. Moreover his handicrafts have steadily declined during the period of bondage and can only be recaptured through an improvement in his material condition. As for the fiesta which Stuart Chase defined as the "spirit of play released on a vast and authentic scale," it may be just as logically regarded as a temporary escape from intolerable monotony. The social and psychological dangers of mechanization are many, but they are not impossible to avoid if the introduction of the machine is accompanied by its proper social adaptation.

But whatever the risks, Mexico wants to become a modern state. That much is evident in everything that its present leaders say and in all their plans for the future.

P. J. BACHELOR ESTATE TAX

$3833 Paid in to State Treasury by Executors.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—A State inheritance tax of $3833.14 on estate of Prentiss J. Bachelor, who died in St. Louis on Dec. 12, 1933, was paid to the State Treasurer today by executors of the estate.

The gross value of Bachelor's estate was appraised at $151,308, of which $102,632 was in bonds. Deductions for outstanding obligations taxes and expenses of administering the estate totaled $26,508, leaving a net estate of $124,800 subject to the tax. The estate was distributed among 11 first cousins and four second cousins.

New U. S. Archives Building First of Kind in the World

papers, there were a dozen, 20, large attics. Experts pointed out that under the burning sun of Washington, papers deteriorated rapidly and were subject to great fire hazard. There were innumerable fires. One fire destroyed records of a geological survey that had cost the Government $200,000 to make, records that had become priceless with the passage of years. Papers essential to the protection of Government claims were lost or destroyed and in court Government attorneys appeared with the excuse of a bad housekeeper.

Depression Does Trick.

Hardly a session of Congress went by without some effort to get an appropriation for an archives building. The late Senator George W. Vest of Missouri introduced bills calling for an archives appropriation in seven different Congresses. They all passed the Senate but failed in the House. Sites were selected and one by one were taken by other departments of the Government for other purposes.

It was the depression that finally did the trick. The new archives building was one of the forms of public work, to stimulate industry, initiated under former President Hoover.

Congress has created the job of official archivist, at a salary of $10,000 a year, but as yet no one has been appointed to fill the office. The candidate most frequently mentioned is James D. Preston, librarian to the Senate.

Preston's work during the last two years has served as much as anything in the past to call attention to the great need for restoring and preserving the first-hand records on which the whole structure of American government is based. Until Preston took the job, the position of Senate librarian had never been regarded as one to overtax the capacities, physical or mental, of the officeholder. In certain respects it was a sinecure.

Examines Ancient Files.

But Preston began to examine ancient files and what he found was so interesting that he dug deeper and deeper in an untouched field. No one with an historical curiosity had ever gone into those files. Amendments to the Constitution rejected by the convention that framed it in its original form were there. Sections cut out of the original document with a cross drawn through their provisions to indicate that they had been discarded were in one bundle. Many of them bore the signatures of the framers of the Constitution.

Preston found all of Washington's messages to Congress, several of them written entirely in the first President's hand, others bearing only his signature. There were the handwritten messages of Madison, Adams, Monroe, original grants and charters, maps and drafts of bills, all bearing directly upon the origins of government in this country.

A great many of these papers had been folded in narrow files for so many years that they were dark brown and creased, threatening to crumble at the touch. Preston set himself to the difficult task of preserving them. He learned everything that he could about this touchy business. A man deft and skillful with his hands, he worked out a technique that was in part his own. He covered manuscript pages that were in bad conditions with a kind of gauze called mousseline de soie. It strengthened the page and protected it but did not make it any more difficult to read.

Studies British System.

This work absorbed more and more of his time. He could be found at almost any hour of the day or night in his small workroom above the Senate dome. During the past summer, in pursuit of his interest, he went abroad to observe at first hand how other librarians and archives protect the treasures under their care. He spent many days in the British Record Office and in the British Museum.

In Aberystwith at the Welsh national museum he discovered an expert who could take a frayed, worm-eaten manuscript, from the twelfth or thirteenth centuries, split it and mount the two halves separately on a kind of tough paper. Preston learned a great many tricks of the trade in the month and a half that he spent in the British Isles. He is now at work directing the rescue of Senate records partly destroyed by mold and damp in the basement of the capital.

Whoever is named to the office of archivist will have a man-sized job. Each department of the government will be eager to get rid of mountains of papers in order to gain more space for current use. It will be the archivist's task not only to find room for this but to put it in such order that it will be accessible on a moment's notice. He will have to discover by experiment how to put to greatest advantage the facilities of the remarkable new building which will be turned over to him. He will have to guard not only documents and records, but photographic film and phonograph records in the explosion-proof vaults on the fifth floor. Many of the final details as to interior arrangement will be left to his decision.

Originally it was thought that the archives building would be complete by the first of the year. Now the date has been put forward. It will perhaps be March 1 before the archivist begins to gather within the walls of this unique building the records of our past.

advocated by the organ of the German general staff in August, 1932.

If I were a Prussian staff officer in Nazi Germany, I should probably reason as Prussian staff officers are reasoning, and should prepare for a war of liberation as they have been and are preparing for it.

But as I am an Englishman I reason otherwise. And I wonder sometimes how the members of the National Government are reasoning (for they had opportunities of knowing the facts as I know them) and what they propose to do.

TIGER SHOT AFTER KILLING TWO INDO-CHINA TRIBESMEN

H. C. Foster Bags 500-Pound Beast That Has Terrorized Villages for Years.

By the Associated Press.

FOOCHOW, China, Oct. 6. — A man-eating tiger, which terrorized Indo-China villages for years, has been killed by Henry Clay Foster, New York sportsman and associate editor of Field and Stream Magazine.

The animal was 11½ feet long and weighed 500 pounds. Shortly before it was shot it had waylaid and killed two Moi tribesmen.

Foster was tracking elephants with Albert Plas, Saigon guide, when relatives of the tribesmen appealed to the hunters to run down and kill the tiger.

Foster and Plas were led to the scene of the tiger's kill. They placed bait. After a two-day wait the animal appeared and Foster shot it.

Before going to Indo-China, Foster and his wife penetrated the jungle-covered mountains of Fukien Province in search of the famous Fukien blue tiger. They were unsuccessful. In Indo-China, however, they bagged two tigers, a rare species of black bear, a wild boar and many deer. The Fosters now are on their way home.

SAYS CITY'S TRANSPORTATION POSITION IS IN JEOPARDY

Thomas N. Dysart Asserts Mergers and Other Changes Threaten to Remake Carrier Scheme.

Drastic freight rate adjustments and realignments and consolidations which have threatened to remake the transportation scheme of the country, have jeopardized the position of St. Louis as a dominent transportation center, Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, told a meeting of about 300 business men at Hotel Statler yesterday.

He declared business was more vitally concerned in actions of legislative bodies now than ever before, with particular reference to the opening of Congress and the State Legislature next January. In times like the present, he added, there is constant danger of loss of civic idealism, but "to allow many of our unsolved problems to remain unsolved until times get better is to hamstring recovery and stultify future progress."

The chamber, Dysart announced, will ask the next Legislature to legalize purchase by the Federal Government of sufficient land in Missouri to establish adequate national forests, parks, wild life sanctuaries and propagation grounds. The chamber also has planned to revitalize its foreign trade bureau to take advantage of any upturn in foreign trade.

HORSE SHOW OPENS TOMORROW NIGHT

800 Entries to Compete for $15,300 in Prize Money at Six-Day Meeting.

The St. Louis National Horse Show, with 800 entries competing for $15,300 in prize money, will open a six-day meeting tomorrow night at the Arena. The entry list includes horses of every classification, owned by leading exhibitors from all parts of the country.

Each of the nights will be featured by titular stakes and important money classes, according to Dan C. Kerckhoff, president of the show. In past years the major events frequently were saved for the concluding performances.

Five nationally known horsemen, Henry S. Caywood of North Middleton, Ky.; Charles W. Green, Sedalia, Mo.; Earl Pemberton, Elizabethtown, Ky.; Charles Barrie, East Brookfield, Mass., and C. Harvey Moore, Brookline, Mass., will be the judges of the nine championship stakes, 50 money classes and other events. Caywood, Green and Pemberton will officiate in the three and five-gaited and roadster events; Barrie in the harness horse and harness pony divisions, and Moore in the hunter and jumper classes.

Championship events will include three and five-gaited, hunter, jumper, junior, Shetland pony, heavy harness, harness pony and roadster stakes.

Among the other classes expected to provide thrills for St. Louis enthusiasts are the Corinthian and hunt team events and the roadster-to-bike class, in which the drivers, clad in racing colors, race their horses at top speed. In the tandem class are entered 12 Shetland ponies, none exceeding 46 inches in height.

Several classes will feature draft animals, pulling commercial vehicles. Several local firms have entered teams. An exhibition in the boys' and girls' three-gaited event will be given by Betty Butler, Harrison Barnes, Billy Laufer, Harriet Burkart and Ruth Deibel, all under 15 years of age.

St. Louis firemen will provide part of the entertainment, with fire drills and life-saving demonstrations. Profits from the show will go to the St. Louis Firemen's Pension Fund. Performances will begin at 7:45 p. m.

Zonta Club to Hear Mrs. Gellhorn.

Mrs. George Gellhorn will speak on "Things of St. Louis" at the regular meeting of the Zonta Club, an organization of business women, at 12:15 p. m. Thursday at the Missouri Athletic Association.

GRAND OPERA SERIES OPENS MONDAY NIGHT

St. Louis Company to Be First Major Organization to Begin Fall Season.

The St. Louis Grand Opera Company, opening its fall series with 'La Rondine' tomorrow night at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House, will be the first major operatic organization in the country to open the 1934 fall and winter season.

Consequently, its casts for Puccini's operatic comedy and seven other presentations to follow are notable.

Lucrezia Bori, leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, and Mario Chamlee, who arrived yesterday, will sing the leading roles in La Rondine, which never has been produced in St. Louis. Its first American presentation was at the Metropolitan in 1926.

Miss Bori and Chamlee appeared in the closing performance of the inaugural grand opera season here last spring. They will be supported by Marek Windheim, Polish tenor of the Metropolitan, and Florence Macbeth, soprano of the Chicago Opera Company.

Rehearsing for Several Days.

Most of the secondary singers have been in St. Louis for several days rehearsing daily with the chorus ballet and orchestra and a full dress rehearsal will be held tonight.

Harold McCormick, patron of the Chicago Grand Opera Company will attend tomorrow night as the guest of Walter W. Head, chairman of the Grand Opera Founders, the sponsoring organization for the St. Louis Opera.

Advance ticket sales for the second series of grand opera here within five months, following the plan of Guy Golterman, general director, to arrange short semiannual seasons, indicate possibility of greater box-office success than that of last spring.

As for the spring season, Gennaro Papi will be conductor; Armando F. Agnini, stage director, and Rita de Leporte, premier danseuse and ballet mistress.

List of Other Operas.

The other operas to be produced are: Carmen, Wednesday; Madame Butterfly, Saturday; La Boheme, Oct. 15; La Forza Del Destino, Oct. 17; Lohengrin, Oct. 20; Tosca, Oct. 22, and Andrea Chenier, Oct. 26.

With the exception of Wagner's Lohengrin, in German, and Carmen," by the French composer, Georges Bizet, the operas are by Italian composers.

Others who appeared at the spring season, including Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan tenor; Elizabeth Rethberg, Metropolitan soprano, and Hizi Koyke, Japanese soprano, will have parts in the later productions.

Among the newcomers will be Maria Jeritza, Viennese soprano, formerly with the Metropolitan; Alfredo Gandolfi, baritone, and Kathryn Meisle, contralto, of the Metropolitan, and Coe Glade, contralto, of the Chicago company.

350 St. Louisans Participating.

More than 350 St. Louis singers, dancers and instrumental musicians are engaged in the chorus, orchestra and ballet. A special German chorus of 80 voices will sing in Lohengrin.

The Grand Opera Founders, incorporated since the spring series, with Head as chairman, Frank M. Mayfield, Davis R. Calhoun and Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord as vice-chairmen, and David L. Grey as treasurer, was organized to furnish a financial foundation.

The performance will start promptly at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night. Tickets will remain on sale at the Aeolian box office all day tomorrow, and at 7 o'clock tomorrow night the box office at the Auditorium will open.

MRS. ANNA SUMMERS DIES

E. St. Louis Woman, 82, Was Widow of Civil War Veteran.

Mrs. Anna Summers, 82 years old, died last night of pneumonia at her home, 1611 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis. She was the widow of Charles Summers, who served in the Sixty-ninth New York Regiment during the Civil War. She resided in Washington, D. C., during the war and has lived in East St. Louis since 1892, the year of her husband's death.

Surviving are two daughters, four sons, a brother, five grandchildren and one great grandchild. Funeral services will be held at the residence tomorrow at 10:15 a. m. to St. Paul's Episcopal Church with burial in Holy Cross Cemetery.

Mexico's 6-Year Program To Help Its Workers

ments in formulating their budgets for public education, will not assign to them amounts less than those of 1933." Furthermore "the National Revolutionary Party declares that any increase in budgets, be this ever so small, will signify adherence to the solemn revolutionary principles."

Larger Expenditures for Educating Masses.

Expenditures on public education will be increased in every year that the Plan operates starting with a 15 per cent increase and progressively rising to 20 per cent in 1939. All educational activities will be co-ordinated and the primary schools, rural and urban, "will provide truthful answers—scientific and rational—to every question not clear in the minds of students. Consequently the National Revolutionary Party will employ means to have Article 30 of the Constitution reformed to the effect that public instruction will be dependent directly on the State and, under its direction, based on the orientations and postulates of the socialistic doctrine upheld by the Mexican revolution."

Urban schools will be established through co-ordinate action of the municipal, State and Federal governments, in a sufficient number to accommodate all children of school ages; rural Federal schools will be increased at the rate of 2000 a year through the year 1939 and a Counsel of Rural Education will be established within the Department of public Education.

Private education is not ruled out but "individuals with false and exaggerated concepts of personal liberty, will be denied the right to organize and direct educational centers independent of the State's control. The freedom of instruction shall be understood as a right granted to everyone provided he abides by the requirements laid down by the law." In other words any school whose instruction contravenes the ideology of the Revolution will not be allowed to operate.

Although the Government is in the position of recognizing petroleum and mineral concessions granted to foreigners prior to 1917 the Six Year Plan outlines a course of procedure designed to reserve for the nation the as yet undetermined wealth of this character which has not been exploited. Proven mining regions will await the operation by the State or of individuals who would operate them under an arrangement beneficial to the State. An official exploration service will be established which will specify what mining regions shall be placed on reserve, direct the opening of new mining districts and decide (for technical and national reasons) what zones shall not be worked by private mining companies. Monopoly of land holding rights will be prevented.

Future Mineral Wealth for Nation.

The Government plans an increasingly strict regulation of commercial enterprise operating in the mineral and oil fields. "This must be done," says the plan, "in such a manner as to obtain for our country the greatest possible per cent of wealth produced." The plan, in general, involves the encouragement of mining companies backed by Mexican capital, the attempt to prevent the shipping of concentrates to foreign countries through the levying of export taxes, the encouragement of mining mill and foundry construction and an attempt to effect an equilibrium by stimulating activities of national companies.

As can be seen, this plan does not rule out the further introduction of private capital into the situation, but hopes to limit such investment to nationals.

Under the head of "Communications and Public Works," the plan announces the completion of the automobile highway from Nuevo Laredo, on the American border, to Acapulco, on the Pacific Coast, and of the Sonora-Chiapas highway extending from Nogales, on the American border, through the State of Chiapas to the Guatemalan border. These two highways cross each other at Mexico City and are considered to have a social as well as an economic importance.

In the State of Chiapas, for instance, where the peons have been but little affected by the agrarian plan and where working conditions on the haciendas are declared by the Government to be the worst in Mexico due to the competition offered by Guatemalan peons who are still under the domination of the hacienda system, good roads are looked upon as an imperative preliminary step to the Government's socialization plans. There are no railways in Chiapas and most of the dirt roads are just primitive trails.

Plans for Building New Rairoad Lines.

"The railway system," the plan continues, "shall open to communication fertile regions isolated from the rest of its track net. With that end in view, during the six-year period, at least 60,000,000 pesos will be spent in construction of the following railway lines:

"I—From Ejutla, Oaxaca, to a Pacific coast port (unnamed).

"II—From Uruapam, Michoacan, to a point on the Balsas River, with the object of later prolonging it to the Pacific coast.

"III—From Santa Lucrecia, Oaxaca, to the capital of Campeche.

"IV—From Mazatlan to Durango city."

In the matter of public health, the text of the plan concedes that special conditions in Mexico—specifically the rudimentary sanitary methods still prevalent in the rural districts—make fundamental health service such as the purification of water supplies and the stamping out of sources of infection, the first matters of consideration. For "so long as the general unhealthy conditions are not changed medical aid will be inefficient and will continue to direct its energies against a secondary evil without results."

Up to the present, it is stated, "the Public Health Department has been granted, in the division of Mexico's general expense budget, only 1.93 per cent in 1926 and 3.03 per cent in 1933."

The National Revolutionary party considers that an increase in the budget allowance for public health is imperative and calls for an expanding allotment beginning at 3.40 per cent for 1934 and rising to 5.50 per cent during 1939.

Such are the main provisions of Mexico's Six-Year Plan. Its success will admittedly be conditioned by the Government's ability to increase its national wealth, thereby increasing the funds diverted to purely governmental services. Moreover, the Government is not unaware of the possibility that its complete or partial success may involve psychological changes in the population which will in turn raise new problems.

The Peon's Place in the New Life.

For the agricultural workers and their dependents, who constitute 70 per cent of the nation's population, the industrial revolution has hardly begun. Their way of life is constructed without reference to the mechanical accessories of modern civilization. To some observers—mostly foreign—this freedom from a complication of artificially stimulated desires has enabled these agricultural workers to evolve a rhythm of living which is tranquil, satisfying and beautiful.

Their work is hard, but not beyond their capacity; their means are small but adequate to their needs—and their creative and social impulses are expressed in their native arts and handicrafts, their contacts in the market place and in the peculiar emotional releases involved in the fiesta. They are regionally and individually self-sufficient and therefore exempt from all harrowing effects of industrial depressions.

Opposed to this view is the one which holds that because the peon has seemed to resign himself to this "simple rhythm" is no sure indication that he is satisfied with it. Moreover his handicrafts have steadily declined during the period of bondage and can only be recaptured through an improvement in his material condition. As for the fiesta which Stuart Chase defined as the "spirit of play released on a vast and authentic scale," it may be just as logically regarded as a temporary escape from intolerable monotony. The social and psychological dangers of mechanization are many, but they are not impossible to avoid if the introduction of the machine is accompanied by its proper social adaptation.

But whatever the risks, Mexico wants to become a modern state. That much is evident in everything that its present leaders say and in all their plans for the future.

P. J. BACHELOR ESTATE TAX

$3833 Paid in to State Treasury by Executors.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—A State inheritance tax of $3833.14 on estate of Prentiss J. Bachelor, who died in St. Louis on Dec. 12, 1933, was paid to the State Treasurer today by executors of the estate.

The gross value of Bachelor's estate was appraised at $151,308, of which $102,632 was in bonds. Deductions for outstanding obligations taxes and expenses of administering the estate totaled $26,508, leaving a net estate of $124,800 subject to the tax. The estate was distributed among 11 first cousins and four second cousins.

Papers essential to the protection of Government claims were lost or destroyed and in court Government attorneys appeared with the excuse of a bad housekeeper.

Depression Does Trick.

Hardly a session of Congress went by without some effort to get an appropriation for an archives building. The late Senator George W. Vest of Missouri introduced bills calling for an archives appropriation in seven different Congresses. They all passed the Senate but failed in the House. Sites were selected and one by one were taken by other departments of the Government for other purposes.

It was the depression that finally did the trick. The new archives building was one of the forms of public work, to stimulate industry, initiated under former President Hoover.

Congress has created the job of official archivist, at a salary of $10,000 a year, but as yet no one has been appointed to fill the office. The candidate most frequently mentioned is James D. Preston, librarian to the Senate.

Preston's work during the last two years has served as much as anything in the past to call attention to the great need for restoring and preserving the first-hand records on which the whole structure of American government is based. Until Preston took the job, the position of Senate librarian had never been regarded as one to overtax the capacities, physical or mental, of the officeholder. In certain respects it was a sinecure.

Examines Ancient Files.

But Preston began to examine ancient files and what he found was so interesting that he dug deeper and deeper in an untouched field. No one with an historical curiosity had ever gone into those files. Amendments to the Constitution rejected by the convention that framed it in its original form were there. Sections cut out of the original document with a cross drawn through their provisions to indicate that they had been discarded were in one bundle. Many of them bore the signatures of the framers of the Constitution.

Preston found all of Washington's messages to Congress, several of them written entirely in the first President's hand, others bearing only his signature. There were the handwritten messages of Madison, Adams, Monroe, original grants and charters, maps and drafts of bills, all bearing directly upon the origins of government in this country.

A great many of these papers had been folded in narrow files for so many years that they were dark brown and creased, threatening to crumble at the touch. Preston set himself to the difficult task of preserving them. He learned everything that he could about this touchy business. A man deft and skillful with his hands, he worked out a technique that was in part his own. He covered manuscript pages that were in bad conditions with a kind of gauze called mousseline de soie. It strengthened the page and protected it but did not make it any more difficult to read.

Studies British System.

This work absorbed more and more of his time. He could be found at almost any hour of the day or night in his small workroom above the Senate dome. During the past summer, in pursuit of his interest, he went abroad to observe at first hand how other librarians and archives protect the treasures under their care. He spent many days in the British Record Office and in the British Museum.

In Aberystwith at the Welsh national museum he discovered an expert who could take a frayed, worm-eaten manuscript, from the twelfth or thirteenth centuries, split it and mount the two halves separately on a kind of tough paper. Preston learned a great many tricks of the trade in the month and a half that he spent in the British Isles. He is now at work directing the rescue of Senate records partly destroyed by mold and damp in the basement of the capital.

Whoever is named to the office of archivist will have a man-sized job. Each department of the government will be eager to get rid of mountains of papers in order to gain more space for current use. It will be the archivist's task not only to find room for this but to put it in such order that it will be accessible on a moment's notice. He will have to discover by experiment how to put to greatest advantage the facilities of the remarkable new building which will be turned over to him. He will have to guard not only documents and records, but photographic film and phonograph records in the explosion-proof vaults on the fifth floor. Many of the final details as to interior arrangement will be left to his decision.

Originally it was thought that the archives building would be complete by the first of the year. Now the date has been put forward. It will perhaps be March 1 before the archivist begins to gather within the walls of this unique building the records of our past.

advocated by the organ of the German general staff in August, 1932.

If I were a Prussian staff officer in Nazi Germany, I should probably reason as Prussian staff officers are reasoning, and should prepare for a war of liberation as they have been and are preparing for it.

But as I am an Englishman I reason otherwise. And I wonder sometimes how the members of the National Government are reasoning (for they had opportunities of knowing the facts as I know them) and what they propose to do.

TIGER SHOT AFTER KILLING TWO INDO-CHINA TRIBESMEN

H. C. Foster Bags 500-Pound Beast That Has Terrorized Villages for Years.

By the Associated Press.

FOOCHOW, China, Oct. 6. — A man-eating tiger, which terrorized Indo-China villages for years, has been killed by Henry Clay Foster, New York sportsman and associate editor of Field and Stream Magazine.

The animal was 11½ feet long and weighed 500 pounds. Shortly before it was shot it had waylaid and killed two Moi tribesmen.

Foster was tracking elephants with Albert Plas, Saigon guide, when relatives of the tribesmen appealed to the hunters to run down and kill the tiger.

Foster and Plas were led to the scene of the tiger's kill. They placed bait. After a two-day wait the animal appeared and Foster shot it.

Before going to Indo-China, Foster and his wife penetrated the jungle-covered mountains of Fukien Province in search of the famous Fukien blue tiger. They were unsuccessful. In Indo-China, however, they bagged two tigers, a rare species of black bear, a wild boar and many deer. The Fosters now are on their way home.

SAYS CITY'S TRANSPORTATION POSITION IS IN JEOPARDY

Thomas N. Dysart Asserts Mergers and Other Changes Threaten to Remake Carrier Scheme.

Drastic freight rate adjustments and realignments and consolidations which have threatened to remake the transportation scheme of the country, have jeopardized the position of St. Louis as a dominent transportation center, Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, told a meeting of about 300 business men at Hotel Statler yesterday.

He declared business was more vitally concerned in actions of legislative bodies now than ever before, with particular reference to the opening of Congress and the State Legislature next January. In times like the present, he added, there is constant danger of loss of civic idealism, but "to allow many of our unsolved problems to remain unsolved until times get better is to hamstring recovery and stultify future progress."

The chamber, Dysart announced, will ask the next Legislature to legalize purchase by the Federal Government of sufficient land in Missouri to establish adequate national forests, parks, wild life sanctuaries and propagation grounds. The chamber also has planned to revitalize its foreign trade bureau to take advantage of any upturn in foreign trade.

HORSE SHOW OPENS TOMORROW NIGHT

800 Entries to Compete for $15,300 in Prize Money at Six-Day Meeting.

The St. Louis National Horse Show, with 800 entries competing for $15,300 in prize money, will open a six-day meeting tomorrow night at the Arena. The entry list includes horses of every classification, owned by leading exhibitors from all parts of the country.

Each of the nights will be featured by titular stakes and important money classes, according to Dan C. Kerckhoff, president of the show. In past years the major events frequently were saved for the concluding performances.

Five nationally known horsemen, Henry S. Caywood of North Middleton, Ky.; Charles W. Green, Sedalia, Mo.; Earl Pemberton, Elizabethtown, Ky.; Charles Barrie, East Brookfield, Mass., and C. Harvey Moore, Brookline, Mass., will be the judges of the nine championship stakes, 50 money classes and other events. Caywood, Green and Pemberton will officiate in the three and five-gaited and roadster events; Barrie in the harness horse and harness pony divisions, and Moore in the hunter and jumper classes.

Championship events will include three and five-gaited, hunter, jumper, junior, Shetland pony, heavy harness, harness pony and roadster stakes.

Among the other classes expected to provide thrills for St. Louis enthusiasts are the Corinthian and hunt team events and the roadster-to-bike class, in which the drivers, clad in racing colors, race their horses at top speed. In the tandem class are entered 12 Shetland ponies, none exceeding 46 inches in height.

Several classes will feature draft animals, pulling commercial vehicles. Several local firms have entered teams. An exhibition in the boys' and girls' three-gaited event will be given by Betty Butler, Harrison Barnes, Billy Laufer, Harriet Burkart and Ruth Deibel, all under 15 years of age.

St. Louis firemen will provide part of the entertainment, with fire drills and life-saving demonstrations. Profits from the show will go to the St. Louis Firemen's Pension Fund. Performances will begin at 7:45 p. m.

Zonta Club to Hear Mrs. Gellhorn.

Mrs. George Gellhorn will speak on "Things of St. Louis" at the regular meeting of the Zonta Club, an organization of business women, at 12:15 p. m. Thursday at the Missouri Athletic Association.

Imitation Not Flattery To Hollywood Artists

At Least Many Movie Stars View It in That Light.—Ill-Advised Attempts to Set Up Duplicates in the Past Have Failed.

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.

OUTSIDE of Hollywood, imitation was always considered a pretty good form of flattery. But cinema stars think differently. They get no kick out of seeing amateur impersonations of themselves and when a professional attempts to do their own particular trademarked brand of acting they usually go red. Even Mae West, the most imitated person in the world today, is that way. As a usual thing Mae is easy to get along with and she pays no attention to the things which are said about her and the stories which are plotted upon her peculiarities. But she draws the line at rising artists who attempt to rise by the aid of her curves, her way of talking between her teeth when she wisecracks and her strut. The other night she dropped into a Hollywood showhouse and on the screen, in a two-reel [illegible], she saw a woman going through a series of Westian ways. Mae didn't like it. The part of her comment which can be printed was confined to the remark, "It wasn't even good imitation."

It all dated back, more or less, to the early days of the films when Charlie Chaplin was the screen's leading figure and every studio was trying to duplicate his success by imitation. Even Harold Lloyd started off his career by doing Charlie's stuff. But that wasn't Harold's fault. He had ideas of his own and didn't like to try and follow Chaplin. The early picture makers wanted another Chaplin, however, and thought Lloyd should do exactly the same things in exactly the same makeup. When Lloyd got to where he could do things his own way, he forgot all about Chaplin, shook off the baggy pants and big shoes and adopted the spectacles which became his trademark. His success dates from the time he went ahead with his original methods.

ALL the early stars went through the same thing. When Clara Bow was the biological bombshell of the films all the other studios other than the one she worked for, wanted, immediately, a Clara Bow. The imitators had to be "hot" and they just simply had to have red hair. Many a Hollywood beauty parlor made a good living in those days, making red heads and prospective Bows out of gals from all over the country.

It never worked very well. The imitators simply didn't have the "It" on which the Clara success was founded. Alice White, openly billed as "another Bow," had her career badly damaged that way right at the start, and by the time she took the bit in her teeth and went after success in her own way it was too late.

When Rudolph Valentino got into trouble with his own studio, his employers looked around for another matinee idol along the exact lines of their Latin best bet. Two or three were boosted for the job, but none of them got anywhere. After Valentino's untimely death, at the height of his glory, a more serious attempt was made to fill his shoes. But they always tried to fill 'em, not to make a new pair. George Raft, an excellent actor with a more than fancied resemblance to the dead hero, was brought forward for the job. It took Raft several years to overcome the handicap of being "another Valentino." Now, with success attained in his own way, the Valentino likeness is never commented upon by the studio. In fact, there is a strict order to that studio's publicity department never to mention it.

At least one actress was brought forward as another Mae West. She had nothing at all of Mae's mannerisms.

THE Great Garbo had plenty of imitators in an amateur sort of way but only one studio made the mistake of trying to put an exact copy in the field. Unquestionably Marlene Dietrich was brought over from Germany to out-Garbo Garbo. The studio which imported her saw their mistake almost immediately—it was the same studio which searched for another Valentino and frowned, after a bad start in that direction, about drawing comparisons. Fortunately Marlene had something of her own, an ability and a personality which were distinctive and she has gone far but she got her start, in this country at least, because they wanted an imitation of Garbo.

Like Mae West, W. C. Fields has several points of a complete personality, in fact, which lends itself to imitation—but, also like Mae, Fields has some physical attributes which the best mimickers can't substitute.

He has, besides his drawling speech, his cigar, his gloves and his juggling, a very large nose. The Fields nose is known wherever its owner goes, yet it does not nose out the different style of proboscis for which Jimmy Durante is known—along with the latter's ha-cha-cha-cha-chaaaa.

Ha-cha-chaers are popping up in films and on the radio, but Durante—the originator—continues as the No. 1 ha-cha-chaer.

Ben Bernie, before he made his movie debut in "Shoot the Works," went to Washington to see what could be done about protect[illegible] "yowsah" from imitation. "Christopher Bean" Casting Completed

Casting for "The Late Christopher Bean," one of the first two plays in the Little Theater's repertory for the winter, has been completed, after tryouts by more than 200 persons.

Mrs. Frances Feist will have the role of Abby, which was taken by Pauline Lord on the stage and the late Marie Dressler in the motion pictures. Gordon Sommers will play Dr. Haggett, Charity Grace Mrs. Haggett and Elmira Roessler Susan Haggett. Others in the cast are Dr. Downey L. Harris, John G. Cole Jr., Geraldine Schreiber and Archie W. Hall. Rehearsal will begin at once.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS

By Colvin McPherson

TO ENTER on any discussion of the movie version of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," at Loew's this week, is to become involved and take sides in an argument on stage and screen. With Rudolf Besier's play identified so personally with Katharine Cornell in the minds of theater-going Americans, I hesitate to say that the picture is better than the stage version. But, in my opinion, it is. Interest naturally centers around Norma Shearer as Elizabeth Barrett, the invalid poet whose romance with Robert Browning, and her escape from the father who kept her an invalid, form the story. Partisans of Cornell would naturally expect any Hollywood-bred actress to make Miss Barrett a kind of Edgar A. Guest in six petticoats. Shearer probably is too charming, too healthy and too young in the opening reels, but when the dramatic moments with Browning and her father come, she is nothing short of a superb actress. Fredric March's Robert Browning is dashing and exuberant, making the very most of the role. Charles Laughton, vocally, gives reality to the perverted character of the head of the Barrett household but, to put it broadly, is too portly to look severe. These arguments remain in favor of the screen entertainment: The atmosphere of Wimpole street is better created. Introduction to the story is gradual, graceful and charming, without merely a familiar block of asbestos moving skyward. The supporting cast (Maureen O'Sullivan, Marion Clayton, Una O'Connor and Flush) appear to greater advantage. Changes of scene from Elizabeth's room are welcome. And, not the least difference, balcony seats are as good as any.

Cleopatra

SHAKESPEARE and Shaw took their liberties with the Lady of the Nile and even the historians have not been able to work out a composite picture of the Egyptian, so we all have our own ideas. By way of confession, I hope Miss Mae West will tog herself up in amulets sometime and hold open house for all good Romans. But, in the picture at the Orpheum now, Cecil B. DeMille does put over his idea of Cleopatra and he does make his notion of B. C. years convincing. This time, Miss Ptolemy is a wide-eyed little girl who can offer only a few feminine weapons against a Roman Empire on the point of gobbling up her beloved native land—a forlorn little creature who finds the mixture of love and patriotism a strange thing, whose love-making is awkward (by intention or result) and who is quite pathetic in her voluntary departure from a world of bitter defeat. The ancient world, of course, is one of DeMille (or Ringling) splendor. The parade at 10 a. m. in the eternal city is a real show. Cleopatra, incidentally, seems more disposed to follow DeMille than the Romans did, and her costumes, although not likely to set any styles for the coming season, are something for the tourists. "Big-Hearted Herbert," the second film, is good only for those who want to relax. About a self-made man who cracked a whip for his family, and was cured of his meanness, it offers nothing new in plot. It is full of good, hearty laughter, however.

Gift of Gab

THE EDMUND LOWE picture at the Ambassador is true to the radio world. Not only does it offer some of the best talent from the glass cages but Lowe's bright cracks are so familiar as to make you homesick for a dial in your hand. The plot: An auctioneer (Lowe) gets a chance to become announcer for the "Trivers' Chicken Livers" program. He does some very clever things, even becomes a news figure. But he fakes an interview with a trans-Atlantic flyer, who happens to have been killed in a crash. So Lowe is out. He has ditched Gloria Stuart for Ruth Etting but when he needs her more than he does a place for empty whiskey bottles, she comes back. A transport plane has cracked up in the Alleghenies so why doesn't Edmund go over the spot in an airplane and broadcast? That's his chance to come back, you see. "Channel Crossing" is an English picture of the run-of-the-mill variety.

The Age of Innocence

COSTUMED to the point of surfeit, "The Age of Innocence," at the Shubert, almost overburdens a fine cast. It is worth considering therefore, whether the handicap of time is not too much. Fifty years ago, it may have been news for a woman (Irene Dunne) to leave her husband, and it may have been scandal for an engaged man (John Boles) to fall in love with her. There may even be a story in it today, if audiences can be made to see the why and wherefore. But that probably calls for genius and genius is not in "The Age of Innocence," even with the actors all doing their work well. Miss Dunne, Boles, and, in minor parts, Laura Hope Crews, who's Victorian mater to a micromillimeter, Julie Haydon pitifully appealing as John's wife, and Helen Westley (grandmother in "House of Rothschild") the same witty old philosopher. Most disappointing is that the story is set in a frame of 50 years, with John Boles a bearded and blotched old man at beginning and end of the picture. "The Lemon Drop Kid" is a Damon Runyon race-track story followed at several lengths.

Wake Up and Dream

"WAKE UP AND DREAM" is the picture which the late Russ Columbo completed just before the unhappy accident in which he was shot and killed. The picture, at the Missouri, is not one of the best. The feature song, "Too Beautiful for Words," is only passable, the story a ready-made garment for the principals. The lives of vaudeville performers, who manage to come through to success after many crackers and much milk; comedy in the form of a hungry Italian maestro and a love-mad fortune teller; two guys with a yen for the same gal and each very fond of making sacrifices—those are the materials. Sound equipment is just a little too good for hoof-beats in "The Dude Ranger." The earth, the theater, reverberates. The scenic background is good enough for a travelogue.

One Night of Love

IT restores order in the universe to see Grace Moore continuing on at the Fox until next Thursday in "One Night of Love." Something high-brow and the customers like it! It all goes to show that with an actress as lovely as Miss Moore, who can sing as she does and who can team up so well with a fine trouper like Tullio Carminati, nothing is too high-brow.

Action in New Play Moves Backward

"MERRILY WE ROLL ALONG," a new play by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, provided a distinct surprise to Broadway audiences a week ago last night when it opened at the Music Box Theater. Its action moves backward, rather than forward, with the first act timed in 1934 and the last in 1916. The story concerns a playwright (Kenneth MacKenna) who has begun his career as a brilliant radical in the theater, but has succumbed to the blandishments of producers who offered him more for witty farces. The play has 91 characters, 50 of them speaking roles.

"La Rondine" to Open Opera Tomorrow Night

Bori and Chamlee to Have Leading Roles in Puccini Piece, Being Presented in St. Louis for First Time; "Carmen" and "Butterfly" to Follow.

THE FALL season of grand opera in St. Louis will begin tomorrow night at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House with Puccini's "La Rondine," which is being presented in St. Louis for the first time.

Larger and more diverse than the opera season of last spring, the fall repertory will offer six Italian operas and one each in French and German. Those for the first week are "La Rondine" at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night; "Carmen" at 8:15 Wednesday night, and "Madame Butterfly" at 8:30 Saturday evening.

Several stars of the spring season are being brought back along with several artists who will be new to St. Louis operatic audiences. Most notable of these new importations are Maria Jeritza, Viennese soprano, in "Tosca" and Coe Glade, young contralto of the Chicago Grand Opera who will sing the title role in "Carmen."

Gennario Papi and Armando F. Agnini, who are under five-year contract with the St. Louis Grand Opera Company, will be conductor and stage director.

"La Rondine" was written in the later period of Puccini's career and was not produced in America until its Metropolitan premiere in 1936. Lucrezia Bori, the Magda for its St. Louis presentation, had the same role at the Metropolitan. Chamlee will sing the Ruggero part as leading tenor.

Judged purely on its box office popularity, Bizet's "Carmen," second piece on the fall schedule, is one of the greatest operas ever written. Its stirring toreador's song and march are known to opera lovers the world over, and this strain seems to pervade the whole piece. Giovanni Martinelli, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, as Don Jose, and Miss Glade as Carmen, will have the leads in the piece. Other stars will be Alfredo Gandolfi, Metropolitan baritone, as Escamillo, the toreador, and Lucy Monroe as Micaela. Don Jose will be Martinelli's first role here this fall.

"MADAME BUTTERFLY," another Puccini work, is one of the two spring operas being repeated. Hizi Koyke, Japanese soprano, as Madame Butterfly, Chamlee as Lieutenant Pinkerton and Gandolfi as baritone lead, will have the principal parts. Chamlee and Miss Koyke were the stars of its spring production.

"La Boheme," the second spring piece to be repeated, is also by Puccini. Chamlee and Miss Bori, its spring stars, will have their old roles, supported by Gandolfi as Marcello. "La Boheme" is the opening opera for the second week, on Oct. 15.

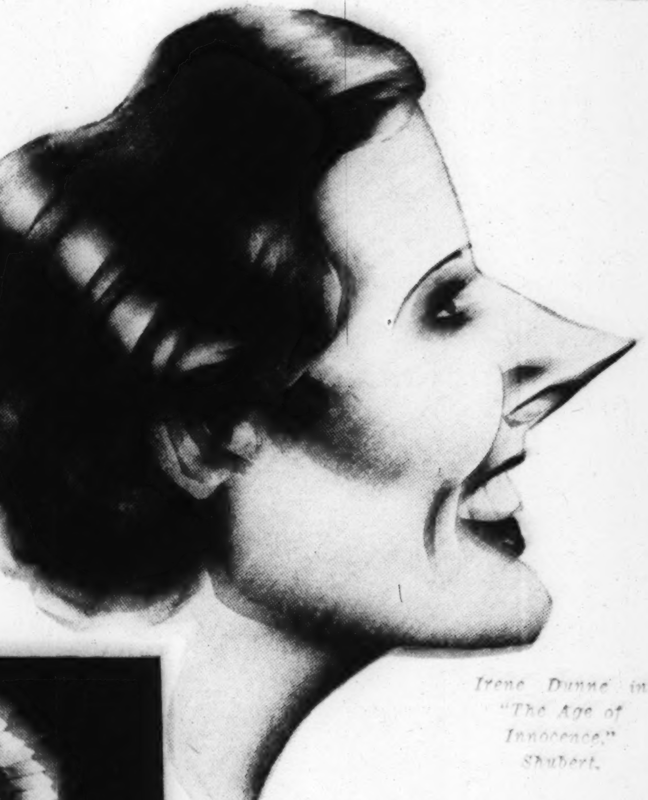
Elisabeth Rethberg, soprano of the Metropolitan, will sing her first fall role in "La Forza Del Destino" by Verdi, Oct. 17. Martinelli, as Don Alvaro, will be her leading tenor. This opera is new to St. Louis.

Miss Rethberg and Chamlee will be the stars in "Lohengrin," Oct. 20. Kathryn Meisle, a new contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will have the Ortrud role, and Gandolfi is cast as Telramund. "Lohengrin" was written by Wagner before he had definitely broken with the older operatic tradition. Hence, it is not so characteristically Wagnerian as his later operas, but it is one of the composer's most popular works.

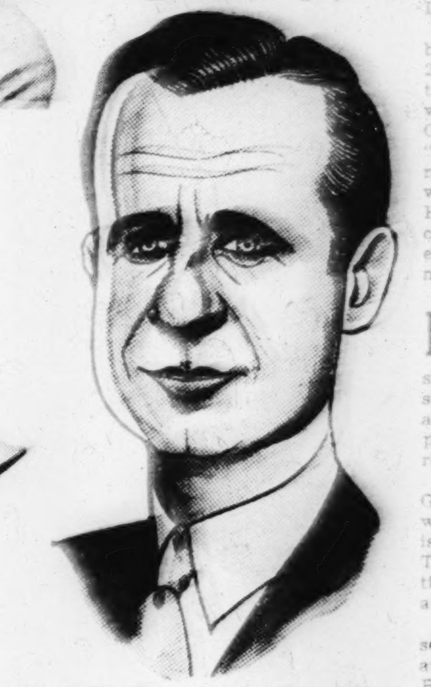
PUCCINI'S "Tosca," on Oct. 22, will mark the St. Louis debut of Mme. Jeritza, who will sing the title role. Chamlee will sing the tenor lead as Cavaradossi and Gandolfi will have the Scarpia part, one of the greatest baritone roles in opera.

The closing production will be Giordano's "Andrea Chenier," written in Italian, but its setting is France during the revolution. The stars will be Martinelli in the title role, Rethberg as Madeleine, and Glade.

Rita de Leporte, premier danseuse of the Metropolitan Opera, and her ballet will appear in "La Rondine," "Carmen" and "La Forza Del Destino."



Irene Dunne in "The Age of Innocence," Shubert.



Tullio Carminati in "One Night of Love," Fox.

Name of Star Actor Unknown to Studio

A motion picture actor has come into sudden fame and his name is not even known to the studio for which he was working. Several months ago the studio started going through its dusty film files. Several pictures, which had been in the files for years, were projected on a screen just for amusement. They were so amusing the studio decided to release parts of them under the title, "Goofy Movies."

In most of the films a certain high-collared gentleman has consistently enacted the "menace." He has gained such a following among movie-goers, the studio is receiving hundreds of "fan" letters each week, asking his name. But the studio so far has been unable to identify him.

Hampden Announces Program at American

Walter Hampden's repertory in his forthcoming appearance at the American Theater is announced as follows: Monday evening, Oct. 22, and Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, Bulwer-Lytton's "Richelieu"; Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, Shakespeare's "King Richard III," and Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 24, "Hamlet."

Appearing with Hampden in "Richelieu" and "King Richard III," in leading roles, will be Eleanor Goodrich, daughter of Arthur Goodrich, who is author of the new version of "Richelieu" that Hampden uses.

Miriam Hopkins In Color Picture

Miriam Hopkins will be starred in "Becky Sharp," the first full-length picture in the new Technicolor process. The story, naturally, is an adaptation of the Thackeray novel, "Vanity Fair."

Kenneth Macgowan will supervise the production and Robert Edmund Jones will have charge of color direction. Both were responsible for those phases of "La Cucaracha," highly successful short subject in color.

Hard Luck Picture, "The Captain Hates The Sea," Finished

"THE Captain Hates The Sea," has been finished by Director Lewis Milestone, after having established a Hollywood record for mishaps.

At the start the cast included Victor McLaglen, John Gilbert, Fred Keating, Florence Rice, Alison Skipworth, Wynne Gibson and Leon Errol, with 100 or so bit and extra players. Minor details caused a two-day delay at the beginning. It was decided to make the scenes actually at sea and a ship was chartered. Then the longshoremen's strike necessitated transportation of cast and crew by water taxis from Long Beach.

When Milestone tried to shoot scenes at anchor, other boats passed and repassed, some even trying to stop for a visit. Short cruises were decided on but the sun was blanketed by clouds. The ship chased from one sunlit patch of water to another. After three weeks the company headed back to the studio. Then Gilbert developed an infected foot. Miss Rice and Keating were taken to the hospital four times for minor ailments. Miss Rice's scenes had to be shot over. Even Millicent, a cat, developed temperament and delayed things.

MY most heartfelt thanks to relatives and friends for their sympathy and floral offerings tendered me in the hours of sadness caused by the death of my dear wife, Marie. PETER SCHIEBEL.

IN MEMORIAM

LEPPERT, BERNICE—In loving memory of my niece, who died Oct. 9, 1933.
Sadly missed by her aunt, MRS. LOUIS J. BENDER, and MRS. MILDRED AHLERT, her friend.

LEPPERT, BERNICE—In loving memory of my daughter, who died Oct. 9, 1933:
Sadly missed by
FATHER, HARRY LEPPERT.

LORENZ, CHARLES—In loving memory of our uncle, departed Oct. 6, 1931.
Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
From those who think of you.
Sadly missed by his NIECE, FRIEDA SCHNELL, AND FAMILY.

MONAGHAN, FELICIA E. — In loving memory of Felicia E. Monaghan, who passed away Oct. 11, 1933:
More and more each day we miss her;
Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.
Sadly missed by
SON, LES, and SISTERS, FANNIE AND JEANNETTE.

McBRIDE, BILLY—In sad but loving memory of our darling son, who passed away, Oct. 9, 1933:
Oh, what would we give to clasp his hand!
His dear, kind face to see;
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
That meant, oh, so much, to us.
Sadly missed by
HIS LONESOME MOTHER, DADDY AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

METTING, WILLIAM—In sad but loving memory of my darling husband, who departed this life Oct. 10, 1933.
Nothing can ever take away the love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day; remembrance keeps him near.
Sadly missed by loving wife, ELIZABETH METTING.

MUNSBERG, FRED H.—Who departed this life Oct. 10 1932:
Thoughts return to day long past,
Time rolls on but memories last.
Sadly missed by wife,
MRS. MINNIE MUNSBERG.

ROHLING, MARY E.—In memory of my dear sister, who died Oct. 11, 1933:
I often sit and think of you,
When I am all alone.
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Requiem mass at SS. Peter and Paul's Church, Oct. 10, at 8 o'clock a. m.
Sadly missed by your sister,
MRS. AGNES BOHRES.

VOGEL, MARGARET—In loving remembrance of Margaret Vogel, who died Oct. 6, 1931:
Three years ago she passed away,
What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, FATHER and ALL WHO LOVED HER.

SCHUAN, MRS. AMELIA—In loving remembrance of our dear mother and grandmother, who passed away Oct. 7, 1933.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

TAYLOR, WILLIAM F.—In memory of William F. Taylor, who died Oct. 7, 1929. Gone but not forgotten.
WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

Imitation Not Flattery To Hollywood Artists

At Least Many Movie Stars View It in That Light — Ill-Advised Attempts to Set Up Duplicates in the Past Have Failed.

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.

OUTSIDE of Hollywood, imitation was always considered a pretty good form of flattery. But cinema stars think differently. They get no kick out of seeing amateur impersonations of themselves and when a professional attempts to do their own particular trade-marked brand of acting they usually go red. Even Mae West, the most imitated person in the world today, is that way. As a usual thing Mae is easy to get along with and she pays no attention to the things which are said about her and the stories which are plotted upon her peculiarities. But she draws the line at rising artists who attempt to rise by the aid of her curves, her way of talking between her teeth when she wisecracks and her strut. The other night she dropped into a Hollywood showhouse and on the screen, in a two-reel "quickie," she saw a woman going through a series of Westian ways. Mae didn't like it. The part of her comment which can be printed was confined to the remark, "it wasn't even good imitation."

June Knight in "Wake Up and Dream," Ambassador.

It all dates back, more or less, to the early days of the films when Charlie Chaplin was the screens leading figure and every studio was trying to duplicate his success by imitation. Even Harold Lloyd started off his career by doing Charlie's stuff. But that wasn't Harold's fault. He had ideas of his own and didn't like to try and follow Chaplin. The early picture makers wanted another Chaplin, however, and thought Lloyd should do exactly the same things in exactly the same makeup. When Lloyd got to where he could do things his own way, he forgot all about Chaplin, shook off the baggy pants and big shoes and adopted the spectacles which became his trademark. His success dates from the time he went ahead with his original methods.

ALL the early stars went through the same thing. When Clara Bow was the biological bombshell of the films, all the other studios, other than the one she worked for, wanted, immediately, a Clara Bow. The imitators had to be "hot" and they just simply had to have red hair. Many a Hollywood beauty parlor made a good living, in those days, making red heads and prospective Bows out of gals from all over the country.

It never worked very well. The imitators simply didn't have the "It" on which the Clara success was founded. Alice White, openly billed as "another Bow," had her career badly damaged that way right at the start, and by the time she took the bit in her teeth and went after success in her own way, it was too late.

When Rudolph Valentino got into trouble with his own studio, his employers looked around for another matinee idol along the exact lines of their Latin best bet. Two or three were boosted for the job, but none of them got anywhere. After Valentino's untimely death, at the height of his glory, a more serious attempt was made to fill his shoes. But they always tried to fill 'em, not to make a new pair. George Raft, an excellent actor with a more than fancied resemblance to the dead hero, was brought forward for the job. It took Raft several years to overcome the handicap of being "another Valentino." Now, with success attained in his own way, the Valentino likeness is never commented upon by the studio. In fact, there is a strict order to that studio's publicity department never to mention it.

At least one actress was brought forward as another Mae West. She had nothing at all of Mae's mannerisms.

THE Great Garbo had plenty of imitators in an amateur sort of way but only one studio made the mistake of trying to put an exact copy in the field. Unquestionably Marlene Dietrich was brought over from Germany to out-Garbo Garbo. The studio which imported her saw their mistake almost immediately—it was the same studio which searched for another Valentino—and frowned, after a bad start in that direction, about drawing comparisons. Fortunately Marlene had something of her own, an ability and a personality which were distinctive and she has gone far but she got her start, in this country at least, because they wanted an imitation of Garbo.

Like May West, W. C. Fields has several points — a complete personality, in fact, which lends itself to imitation—but, also like Mae, Fields has some physical attributes which the best mimickers can't substitute.

He has, besides his drawling speech, his cigar, his gloves and his juggling, a very large nose. The Fields nose is known wherever its owner goes, yet it does not nose out the different style of proboscis for which Jimmy Durante is known—along with the latter's ha-cha-cha-cha-chaaaa.

Ha-cha-chaers are popping up in films and on the radio, but Durante—the originator—continues as the No. 1 ha-cha-chaer.

Ben Bernie, before he made his movie debut in "Shoot the Works," went to Washington to see what could be done about protecting his "yowsah" from imitation. He came away with a copyright paper—all legal, an' everything—but the "yowsahs" crackling through the air and ringing through theaters are legion.

"Christopher Bean" Casting Completed

Casting for "The Late Christopher Bean," one of the first two plays in the Little Theater's repertory for the winter, has been completed, after tryouts by more than 200 persons.

Mrs. Frances Feist will have the role of Abby, which was taken by Pauline Lord on the stage and the late Marie Dressler in the motion pictures. Gordon Sommers will play Dr. Haggett, Charity Grace Mrs. Haggett and Elmira Roessler Susan Haggett. Others in the cast are Dr. Downey L. Harris, John G. Cole Jr., Geraldine Schreiber and Archie W. Hall. Rehearsal will begin at once.

Mario Chamlee and Lucrezia Bori in "La Rondine," at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS :: :: By Colvin McPherson

TO ENTER on any discussion of the movie version of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," at Loew's this week, is to become involved and take sides in an argument on stage and screen. With Rudolf Besier's play identified so personally with Katharine Cornell in the minds of theater-going Americans, I hesitate to say that the picture is better than the stage version. But, in my opinion, it is. Interest naturally centers around Norma Shearer as Elizabeth Barrett, the invalid poet whose romance with Robert Browning, and her escape from the father who kept her an invalid, form the story. Partisans of Cornell would naturally expect any Hollywood-bred actress to make Miss Barrett a kind of Edgar A. Guest in six petticoats. Shearer probably is too charming, too healthy and too young in the opening reels, but when the dramatic moments with Browning and her father come, she is nothing short of a superb actress. Fredric March's Robert Browning is dashing and exuberant, making the very most of the role. Charles Laughton, vocally, gives reality to the perverted character of the head of the Barrett household but, to put it broadly, is too portly to look severe. These arguments remain in favor of the screen entertainment: The atmosphere of Wimpole street is better created. Introduction to the story is gradual, graceful and charming, without merely a familiar block of asbestos moving skyward. The supporting cast (Maureen O'Sullivan, Marion Clayton, Una O'Connor and Flush) appear to greater advantage. Changes of scene from Elizabeth's room are welcome. And, not the least difference, balcony seats are as good as any.

Cleopatra

SHAKESPEARE and Shaw took their liberties with the Lady of the Nile and even the historians have not been able to work out a composite picture of the Egyptian, so we all have our own ideas. By way of confession, I hope Miss Mae West will tog herself up in amulets sometime and hold open house for all good Romans. But, in the picture at the Orpheum now, Cecil B. DeMille does put over his idea of Cleopatra and he does make his notion of B. C. years convincing. This time, Miss Ptolemy is a wide-eyed little girl who can offer only a few feminine weapons against a Roman Empire on the point of gobbling up her beloved native land—a forlorn little creature who finds the mixture of love and patriotism a strange thing, whose love-making is awkward (by intention or result) and who is quite pathetic in her voluntary departure from a world of bitter defeat. The ancient world, of course, is one of DeMille (or Ringling) splendor. The parade at 10 a. m. in the eternal city is a real show. Cleopatra, incidentally, seems more disposed to follow DeMille than the Romans did, and her costumes, although not likely to set any styles for the coming season, are something for the tourists. "Big-Hearted Herbert," the second film, is good only for those who want to relax. About a self-made man who cracked a whip for his family, and was cured of his meanness, it offers nothing new in plot. It is full of good, hearty laughter, however.

Gift of Gab

THE EDMUND LOWE picture at the Ambassador is true to the radio world. Not only does it offer some of the best talent from the glass cages but Lowe's bright cracks are so familiar as to make you homesick for a dial in your hand. The plot: An auctioneer (Lowe) gets a chance to become announcer for the Trivers' Chicken Livers program. He does some very clever things, even becomes a news figure. But he fakes an interview with a trans-Atlantic flyer, who happens to have been killed in a crash. So Lowe is out. He has ditched Gloria Stuart for Ruth Etting but when he needs her more than he does a place for empty whiskey bottles, she comes back. A transport plane has cracked up in the Alleghenies so why doesn't Edmund go over the spot in an airplane and broadcast? That's his chance to come back, you see. "Channel Crossing" is an English picture of the run-of-the-mill variety.

The Age of Innocence

COSTUMED to the point of surfeit, "The Age of Innocence," at the Shubert, almost overburdens a fine cast. It is worth considering therefore, whether the handicap of time is not too much. Fifty years ago, it may have been news for a woman (Irene Dunne) to leave her husband, and it may have been scandal for an engaged man (John Boles) to fall in love with her. There may even be a story in it today, if audiences can be made to see the why and wherefore. But that probably calls for genius and genius is not in "The Age of Innocence," even with the actors all doing their work well. Miss Dunne, Boles, and, in minor parts, Laura Hope Crews, who's Victorian mater to a micromillimeter, Julie Haydon pitifully appealing as John's wife, and Helen Westley (grandmother in "House of Rothschild") the same witty old philosopher. Most disappointing is that the story is set in a frame of 50 years, with John Boles a bearded and blotched old man at beginning and end of the picture. "The Lemon Drop Kid" is a Damon Runyon race-track story followed at several lengths.

Wake Up and Dream

"WAKE UP AND DREAM" is the picture which the late Russ Columbo completed just before the unhappy accident in which he was shot and killed. The picture, at the Missouri, is not one of the best. The feature song, "Too Beautiful for Words," is only passable, the story a ready-made garment for the principals. The lives of vaudeville performers, who manage to come through to success after many crackers and much milk; comedy in the form of a hungry Italian maestro and a love-mad fortune teller; two guys with a yen for the same gal and each very fond of making sacrifices—those are the materials. Sound equipment is just a little too good for hoof-beats in "The Dude Ranger." The earth, the theater, reverberates. The scenic background is good enough for a travelogue.

One Night of Love

IT restores order in the universe to see Grace Moore continuing on at the Fox until next Thursday in "One Night of Love." Something high-brow and the customers like it! It all goes to show that with an actress as lovely as Miss Moore, who can sing as she does and who can team up so well with a fine trouper like Tullio Carminati, nothing is too high-brow.

Irene Dunne in "The Age of Innocence," Shubert.

Action in New Play Moves Backward

"MERRILY WE ROLL ALONG, a new play by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, provided a distinct surprise to Broadway audiences a week ago last night when it opened at the Music Box Theater. Its action moves backward, rather than forward, with the first act timed in 1934 and the last in 1916. The story concerns a playwright (Kenneth MacKenna) who has begun his career as a brilliant radical in the theater, but has succumbed to the blandishments of producers who offered him more for witty farces. The play has 91 characters, 50 of them speaking roles.

"La Rondine" to Open Opera Tomorrow Night

Bori and Chamlee to Have Leading Roles in Puccini Piece, Being Presented in St. Louis for First Time; "Carmen" and "Butterfly" to Follow.

THE FALL season of grand opera in St. Louis will begin tomorrow night at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House with Puccini's "La Rondine," which is being presented in St. Louis for the first time.

Larger and more diverse than the opera season of last spring, the fall repertory will offer six Italian operas and one each in French and German. Those for the first week are "La Rondine" at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night; "Carmen" at 8:15 Wednesday night, and "Madame Butterfly" at 8:30 Saturday evening.

Several stars of the spring season are being brought back, along with several artists who will be new to St. Louis operatic audiences. Most notable of these new importations are Maria Jeritza, Viennese soprano, in "Tosca" and Coe Glade, young contralto of the Chicago Grand Opera who will sing the title role in "Carmen."

Gennario Papi and Armando F. Agnini, who are under five-year contract with the St. Louis Grand Opera Company, will be conductor and stage director.

"La Rondine" was written in the later period of Puccini's life and was not produced in America until its Metropolitan premiere in 1926. Lucrezia Bori, the Magda for its St. Louis presentation, had the same role at the Metropolitan. Chamlee will sing the Ruggero part as leading tenor.

Judged purely on its box office popularity. Bizet's "Carmen," second piece on the fall schedule, is one of the greatest operas ever written. Its stirring toreador's song and march are known to opera lovers the world over, and this strain seems to pervade the whole piece. Giovanni Martinelli, leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, as Don Jose, and Miss Glade as Carmen, will have the leads in the piece. Other stars will be Alfredo Gandolfi, Metropolitan baritone, as Escamillo, the toreador, and Lucy Monroe as Micaela. Don Jose will be Martinelli's first role here this fall.

"MADAME BUTTERFLY" another Puccini work, is one of the two spring operas being repeated. Hizi Koyke, Japanese soprano, as Madame Butterfly, Chamlee as Lieutenant Pinkerton and Gandolfi as baritone lead, will have the principal parts. Chamlee and Miss Koyke were the stars of its spring production.

"La Boheme," the second spring piece to be repeated, is also by Puccini. Chamlee and Miss Bori, its spring stars, will have their old roles, supported by Gandolfi as Marcello. "La Boheme" is the opening opera for the second week, on Oct. 15.

Elisabeth Rethberg, soprano of the Metropolitan, will sing her first fall role in "La Forza Del Destino" by Verdi, Oct. 17. Martinelli, as Don Alvaro, will be her leading tenor. This opera is new to St. Louis.

Miss Rethberg and Chamlee will be the stars in "Lohengrin," Oct. 20. Kathryn Meisle, a new contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, will have the Ortrud role, and Gandolfi is cast as Telramund. "Lohengrin" was written by Wagner before he had definitely broken with the older operatic tradition. Hence, it is not so characteristically Wagnerian as his later operas, but it is one of the composer's most popular works.

PUCCINI'S "Tosca", on Oct. 22, will mark the St. Louis debut of Mme. Jeritza, who will sing the title role. Chamlee will sing the tenor lead as Cavaradossi and Gandolfi will have the Scarpia part, one of the greatest baritone roles in opera.

The closing production will be Giordano's "Andrea Chenier." It is written in Italian, but its setting is France during the revolution. The stars will be Martinelli in the title role, Rethberg as Madeleine, and Glade.

Rita de Leporte, premier danseuse of the Metropolitan Opera, and her ballet will appear in "La Rondine," "Carmen" and "La Forza Del Destino."

Tullio Carminati in "One Night of Love," Fox.

Hampden Announces Program at American

Walter Hampden's repertory in his forthcoming appearance at the American Theater is announced as follows: Monday evening, Oct. 22, and Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, Bulwer-Lytton's "Richelieu"; Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, Shakespeare's "King Richard III," and Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 24, "Hamlet."

Appearing with Hampden in "Richelieu" and "King Richard III," in leading roles, will be Eleanor Goodrich, daughter of Arthur Goodrich, who is author of the new version of "Richelieu" that Hampden uses.

Name of Star Actor Unknown to Studio

A motion picture actor has come into sudden fame and his name is not even known to the studio for which he was working. Several months ago the studio started going through its dusty film files. Several pictures, which had been in the files for years, were projected on a screen just for amusement. They were so amusing the studio decided to release parts of them under the title, "Goofy Movies."

In most of the films a certain high-collared gentleman has consistently enacted the "menace." He has gained such a following among movie-goers, the studio is receiving hundreds of "fan" letters each week, asking his name. But the studio so far has been unable to identify him.

Miriam Hopkins In Color Picture

Miriam Hopkins will be starred in "Becky Sharp," the first full-length picture in the new Technicolor process. The story, naturally, is an adaptation of the Thackeray novel, "Vanity Fair."

Kenneth Macgowan will supervise the production and Robert Edmund Jones will have charge of color direction. Both were responsible for those phases of "La Cucaracha," highly successful short subject in color.

Hard Luck Picture, "The Captain Hates The Sea," Finished

"THE Captain Hates The Sea" has been finished by Director Lewis Milestone, after having established a Hollywood record for mishaps.

At the start the cast included Victor McLaglen, John Gilbert, Fred Keating, Florence Rice, Alison Skipworth, Wynne Gibson and Leon Errol, with 100 or so bit and extra players. Minor details caused a two-day delay at the beginning. It was decided to make the scenes actually at sea and a ship was chartered. Then the longshoremen's strike necessitated transportation of cast and crew by water taxis from Long Beach.

When Milestone tried to shoot scenes at anchor, other boats passed and repassed, some even trying to stop for a visit. Short cruises were decided on but the sun was blanketed by clouds. The ship chased from one sunlit patch of water to another. After three weeks the company headed back to the studio. Then Gilbert developed an infected foot. Miss Rice and Keating were taken to the hospital four times for minor ailments. Miss Rice's scenes had to be shot over. Even Millicent, a cat, developed temperament and delayed things.

CARDS OF THANKS

To all our relatives and friends we wish to extend our sincerest thanks for their kind expressions of sympathy as well as the most beautiful floral offerings tendered us in the time of bereavement caused by the death of our beloved mother, Mrs. Phillipina Lassauer. Especially do we wish to thank Rev. T. J. Herrmann for his kind and consoling words, the St. Paul's Evangelical Church Ladies' Aid Society and the St. Louis Schwaben Verein for their attendance, the pallbearers for their assistance and Ziegenhein Bros., undertakers, for their friendly and excellent services.

The bereaved LASSAUER FAMILY.

I WISH to extend my sincere and most heartfelt thanks to all my relatives and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy as well as the most beautiful floral offerings tendered by them in the time of bereavement and sorrow caused by the death of my beloved wife, Della Vandenboom. Especially do I wish to thank the Rev. J. C. Needles for his kind words of consolation, the pallbearers for their assistance and Ziegenhein Bros., undertakers, for their friendly and efficient services.

ALFRED VANDENBOOM.

WE desire to thank all our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of our dear son, Henry Rohde. We especially thank Rev. Joseph Preuss for his words of consolation and other clergy for their prayers, the pallbearers for their service and our many friends for their beautiful floral offerings and spiritual bouquets.

MR. and MRS. JOHN H. ROHDE.

We desire to express our thanks to Rev. Father Lloyd of Saint Edward Church, pallbearers and to the many friends who showed sympathy and kindness during our late bereavement in the loss of wife and mother.

FRANK D. HALL.
JAMES C. DUGGAN.

MUMBOWER FAMILY.

MY most heartfelt thanks to relatives and friends for their sympathy and floral offerings tendered me in the hours of sadness caused by the death of my dear wife. Marie. PETER SCHIEBEL.

IN MEMORIAM

LEPPERT, BERNICE—In loving memory of my niece, who died Oct. 9, 1933.

Sadly missed by her aunt, MRS. LOUIS J. BENDER, and MRS. MILDRED AHLERT, her friend.

LEPPERT, BERNICE—In loving memory of my daughter, who died Oct. 9, 1933:

Sadly missed by
FATHER, HARRY LEPPERT.

LORENZ, CHARLES—In loving memory of our uncle, departed Oct. 6, 1931.

Just a thought of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory sad and true,
From those who think of you.

Sadly missed by his NIECE, FRIEDA SCHNELL, AND FAMILY.

MONAGHAN, FELICIA E. — In loving memory of Felicia E. Monaghan, who passed away Oct. 11, 1933:

More and more each day we miss her;
Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within our hearts concealed.

Sadly missed by
SON, LES, and SISTERS, FANNIE AND JEANNETTE.

McBRIDE, BILLY—In sad but loving memory of our darling son, who passed away, Oct. 9, 1933:

Oh, what would we give to clasp his hand!
His dear, kind face to see;
To hear his voice, to see his smile,
That meant, oh, so much, to us.

Sadly missed by
HIS LONESOME MOTHER, DADDY AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

METTING, WILLIAM—In sad but loving memory of my darling husband, who departed this life Oct. 10, 1933.

Nothing can ever take away the love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day; remembrance keeps him near.

Sadly missed by loving wife, ELIZABETH METTING.

MUNSBERG, FRED H.—Who departed this life Oct. 10 1932:

Thoughts return to day long past,
Time rolls on but memories last.

Sadly missed by wife,
MRS. MINNIE MUNSBERG.

ROHLING, MARY E.—In memory of my dear sister, who died Oct. 11, 1933:

I often sit and think of you,
When I am all alone.
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

Requiem mass at SS. Peter and Paul's Church, Oct. 10, at 8 o'clock a. m.

Sadly missed by your sister,
MRS. AGNES BOHRES.

VOGEL, MARGARET—In loving remembrance of Margaret Vogel, who died Oct. 6, 1931:

Three years ago she passed away,
What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.

Sadly missed by MOTHER, FATHER and ALL WHO LOVED HER.

SCHUAN, MRS. AMELIA—In loving remembrance of our dear mother and grandmother, who passed away Oct. 7, 1933.

Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

TAYLOR, WILLIAM F.—In memory of William F. Taylor, who died Oct. 7, 1929. Gone but not forgotten.

WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN

WE WILL TAKE ON 8 ADDITIONAL MEN WHO WISH TO TRY TO LEARN TO DO THIS WORK, AND WHO CAN GET ALONG ON EARNINGS OF $30.00 A WEEK WHILE STUDYING AND PRACTICING. WE WILL TRAIN SUCH MEN FREE. WE WILL FURNISH FULL EQUIPMENT WITH NO DEPOSIT REQUIRED. THERE IS NO EXPENSE.

No previous experience in any kind of selling is necessary. If you are capable of understanding and following instructions, if you are one who likes to practice to gain skill and judgment in what he does, and if you are a worker, willing to pay a working price for success, then we will give you a chance. We cannot guarantee you will be a star, but we do guarantee you opportunity with sincere, earnest, practical instruction and guidance.

This is a large national institution, operating from coast to coast. The world sales of our product lead all others. We are now introducing this extraordinary product and it already has a greater sale than any product in the world ever attempting any of its services (no device ever having attempted to render all of its services.)

One group of 14 men averaged over $70 per man for last week. Another group of 11 men averaged over $20 per man for a single day last week. A former mechanic, just starting, made over $17 his first day.

Do not misunderstand, this is no get-rich-quick scheme. You cannot make money here unless you earn it, and some men who apply to us fail to fulfill the requirements. But we have found also, that many men who never previously even thought they could do work of this kind have found it to be just the opportunity they sought for years, and are now making more money than they ever previously dreamed of making. We have men making up to $750.00 a month. Others $600, $500, $400, $300. For example, in our St. Louis branch, a former auto salesman, made well over $100 for his latest week reported, while F. Tringali, previously an opera singer, made over $75; B. J. Schwan, $67; H. D. Couch, a former salesman, $43; G. Gurney, formerly an electrical engineer, $65; C. W. Roberts, a former merchant, $92.

This is a genuine opportunity. It costs nothing to try. The training is free. If you can do the job, you can make real money and have the assurance of its permanence, together with splendid future possibilities.

In St. Louis our men will make more cash money than at any previous time. The coming year will be of unlimited possibilities to those who get at this business successfully now.

If you are of good reputation, active, alert, willing to learn and to work hard every day to make a genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and to get along, make your application Monday morning.

We have tried to state the facts and requirements clearly. This is a straightforward offer of sincere intent to worthy men who are in need of good, substantial positions. Please do not apply for these positions unless you feel you can meet the requirements. Applicants will be personally interviewed at 512 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th & Olive Sts., Monday morning, 9 to 1.

Mary Conway To Be Married to Archer O'Reilly

Engagement Is Announced at Tea Given by Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Harris — Wedding on Nov. 16.

THE engagement of Miss Mary Margaret Conway, daughter of Mrs. Mary Harris Conway, to Archer O'Reilly Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Archer O'Reilly, 6369 Pershing avenue, was announced yesterday at a tea given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Lee A. Harris, at the Harris home, 6 Beverly place.

The ceremony will take place Friday morning, Nov. 16, at St. Roch's Church, Rosedale and Waterman avenues. Mgr. John P. Spencer will officiate. Miss Judith Harris, cousin of the bride and a debutante of last season, will be maid of honor and Noel Sever O'Reilly will be best man for his brother.

The engagement is the culmination of a romance which began at the Little Theater where Miss Conway met her fiance while rehearsing for a play. Appropriately, the announcement was contained in exact duplicates of a Little Theater program with "The Stage Is Set," billed for production. Dan Cupid was listed as the author; and the scene synopsis was given as follows:

Prelude: "My Country 'Tis of Thee," St. Louis Little Theater, 1932.

Act 1: Time: Present. Place, 6 Beverly Place.

Act 2: Saint Roch's Church, 11 a. m. Nov. 16, 1934.

Act 3: Home, Sweet Home. Place unknown.

The cast was given with Miss Conway as the bride; Mr. O'Reilly the groom; Miss Harris the bridesmaid; Noel O'Reilly the best man; Mr. Harris the donor; Mgr. Spencer the master of ceremonies, and ladies and gentlemen of the ensemble.

At the end of the program were acknowledgments thanking Mr. and Mrs. Harris for refreshments; Mrs. Conway for the rehearsal room and Dr. and Mrs. O'Reilly for assistance in setting the stage.

Miss Conway's father was the late Dr. William T. Conway. She is a graduate of St. Mary's Academy in New Haven, Conn., and attended Carnegie University. Mr. O'Reilly is a graduate of the St. Louis Country Day School and Harvard University. He is a member of the Harvard Club of St. Louis and the Woodlawn Country Club.

Next week T. O. M. Sopwith, defeated challenger for the America's Cup, will be honored at a banquet of the Pilgrams, in London, England, with Lord Derby presiding. United States Ambassador Bingham, Mrs. Bingham and many members of the American colony will be present.

Miss Florence Curry To Make Her Debut

IN an atmosphere of the Old South, Miss Florence Warfield Curry will make her bow tonight at an old-fashioned supper to be given by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank La Motte Harney, and her grandmother, Mrs. Florence Warfield, at their home, "Black Oaks," in Ferguson. The guests will be ushered in the Big Gate by a uniformed Negro coachman, representing a family retainer of slave days. They will be greeted in the dining room of the Colonial mansion where gracious hospitality has been dispensed for many generations.

Even the gown worn by the guest of honor is reminiscent of early days. It is of ivory satin and point angleterre lace, copied from the wedding dress of her great-aunt, Mrs. John Mullanphy Harney, who was married in 1865. There is a deep pointed basque adorned in drop shoulder effect by a bertha of the lace, and full skirt ending in a train. She will carry an old-fashioned nosegay of flowers. Miss Frances Garneau Bates and Miss Louise Primm, also debutantes of the season, will stand in the receiving line. They, too, will wear gowns of the Civil War period.

Mrs. Whitney to Be Here for Steeplechase at Bridlespur Meeting

MRS. JOHN HAY WHITNEY, prominent in New York and Virginia society and second largest winner of steeplechase events for 1933 in the country, will come to St. Louis to participate in the annual running of the Bridlespur Hunt Club Steeplechase, Saturday, Oct. 20. She will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, Portland place.

Four horses from Mrs. Whitney's private stable on her estate, Llangollen, Upperville, Va., are being groomed for the trip to St. Louis. Mrs. Whitney will ride one of them in a special race in her honor, to be called the Equestrienne. Another will be entered in the Mississippi Gold Cup race, the chief event of steeplechase racing in St. Louis. The cup will become the permanent possession of the contestant who wins the race three times in succession.

Last year Mrs. Whitney was victorious in 11 races with 20 of her horses. She had entries in 47 steeplechase races. Among the races she won were the Carolina Cup, the United Hunts Meet and two races of the Aiken Hunters, both at Belmont Park; two races at Middleburg, Va., in the spring and one there in the fall; three races at Brookline, Mass., and one at Raceland, Mass. Mrs. Whitney's victories for the year were exceeded only by those of Mrs. T. H. Somerville.

Others prominent in the steeplechase field who will be here are Thomas W. (Tim) Durant, New York, who won the Mississippi Gold Cup last year ,and who will probably be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Percy J. Orthwein; Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Behr of Lake Forest, Ill., whose horse was second in the last Gold Cup race, who will be with Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gale Barstow; R. K. Mellon, master of the fox hounds of the Rolling Rock Hunt at Pittsburgh, who will be at the Racquet Club, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Nafziger of Kansas City and their daughter, Miss Natalie, who will be at the Park Plaza. Mr. Nafziger is master of the hounds of the Mission Valley Hunt.

Margaret C. Lamy Weds W. H. Averill

THE first large October wedding took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, when Miss Margaret Catherine Lamy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Oscar Lamy, 1 Forest Ridge, became the bride of Walter Hollis Averill, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hollis Averill.

Miss Genevieve Lamy was maid of honor for her sister. The bridesmaids were Miss Mabel Lamy of Chicago, a cousin; Miss Louise Averill, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jane Bayle. Alexander M. Averill of New Orleans was best man for his brother. The groomsmen were Charles Lamy, the bride's brother; Robert J. Lubbe and Edward Flanigan. John L. Porter and Sidney Kieselhorst were ushers. The bridal party stood before an altar adorned with Easter lilies and lighted by ivory tapers. The chancel was banked with baskets of white chrysanthemums against greenry. The Rev. Albert R. Wise, S. J., an uncle of the bridegroom, officiated.

Mr. Lamy gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin made simply on long,

Miss Grote Engaged To Charles Harting

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT EDWARD GROTE, 27 Windermere place, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Frances Grote, and Charles Rebstock Harting, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto F. Harting, 3438 Russell boulevard. The wedding will be early in January.

Miss Grote and Mr. Harting apprised their families of their engagement at the Queen's Supper following the Veiled Prophet ball Wednesday night. Although seated at a table not far from their parents, they sent telegrams to them by special messenger. One, worded as if addressed to a well-known writer on affairs of the heart, sought advice.

Miss Grote is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended the Chicago Art Institute. She has not made a formal debut but has traveled extensively. Last season she accompanied a group of friends on a South American cruise.

Mr. Harting and his family annually spend the winter season in Florida. He is a graduate of Miami University and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. In the spring he returned with his parents from a world cruise and they spent the summer at Cedar Lake, Wis., where Miss Grote was their guest. Mr. Harting is the grand nephew and namesake of Charles Rebstock, donor of the Charles Rebstock Hall of Science at Washington University.

Miss Florence Austin to Wed F. J. Bush Jr.

Invitations have been received for the marriage of Miss Florence Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Austin, 433 South Kirkwood road, to Frank J. Bush Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Bush, 430 West Swon avenue, Webster Groves, which will take place Saturday night, Oct. 20, at 8:30 o'clock at the Grace Episcopal Church.

Miss Austin will have as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Helen, and as bridesmaids Miss Julia Gehm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Gehm, 325 Plant avenue, Webster Groves, and Mr. Bush's sister, Miss Mildred Bush. The bridegroom's brother, Robert Bush, will be best man. Edmund Semple Allen, Russell Alt, Edward Blank and William Raith will be ushers.

A reception for the wedding guests at the Austin home will follow the ceremony.

'Little Season' Is on in London

LONDON, Oct. 6.

WITH the royal court at Buckingham Palace and the Prince of Wales also in London, the "little season" is in full swing. Among the festivities in connection with the wedding next month of Prince George and Princess Marina of Greece will be a house party at Buckingham Palace to which royalties, members of London society and the diplomatic corps have been invited. At Buckingham Palace the Prince and Princess will also give a pre-wedding reception to friends of their own age.

The restaurants and luxury hotels are taking the opportunity afforded by the royal wedding to organize galas. In many cases, accommodations are fully booked. All west end theaters are playing to crowded audiences, with the exception of two shows.

Miss Sylvia Rally Wed.

The wedding of Miss Sylvia Rally, daughter of Mrs. William G. Rally, 5582 Pershing avenue, to L. Lake Wientge, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. L. Weintge, 1170 North Kingshighway, took place Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Arnold H. Lowe officiating.

clinging lines. There was a high neckline both front and back and a row of tiny satin buttons trimmed the back of the bodice, which was designed with long satin sleeves. The normal waistline was marked by two rows of twisted satin and the skirt flared into a circular train. Two more rows of the twisted satin bands held the tulle veil in place and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor wore a gown of dull gold velvet fashioned with a high neckline and long, tight sleeves. A girdle of velvet gold lined was fastened in a bow at the back with gold lined velvet streamers reaching to the floor. She carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were attired alike in gowns of rust toned velvet. Their gowns were made with high necklines and a close fitting slit skirt that rippled into a short train. They carried bouquets of chrysanthemums shading from pale yellow to bronze. The bride's attendants all wore hats alike made of dark brown velvet with shallow crowns and tilting over the right eye. The bride's young sister, Betsy, in ankle length frock of ruffled yellow chiffon carried the ring in a basket of gardenias and yellow rose buds.

Mrs. Lamy was gowned in black crepe combined with white crepe striped with gold. She wore a black velvet hat and a corsage of yellow orchids. Mrs. Ignatius McMenamy, an aunt of the bridegroom, with whom he made his home, received with Mr. and Mrs. Lamy and the wedding party. She wore a gown of purple velvet and gold lame and a purple velvet hat. Her flowers were orchids worn in a shoulder corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Lamy home. The rooms were garlanded in smilax and decorated with chrysanthemums in autumn shades. The receiving line stood in the drawing room before a bower of large yellow chrysanthemums and small yellow pompoms. The bridal table was decorated with an elaborate centerpiece of white blossoms surrounded by crystal and silver cornucopias filled with lilies of the valley. Four silver candelabra holding ivory tapers illuminated the table. A second table for the families was arranged in the sunroom and was decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and other fall flowers.

Following the honeymoon, Mr. Averill and his bride will live at 7757 Davis drive, the new home and its furnishings being a gift from the bride's parents.

Miss Virginia Morse To Wed R. W. Sexton

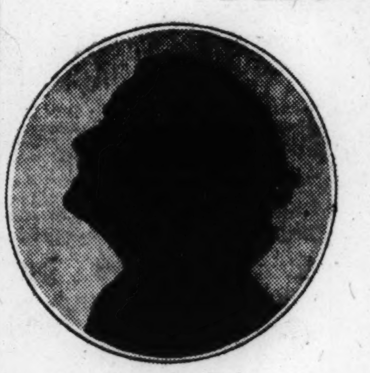
DEBUTANTE SILHOUETTES



Miss Dorothy Dobson

DOROTHY DOBSON, tall slender and blonde, decribed the Veiled Prophet ball as, thrilling. It was thrilling for "Dot" as all her friends call her, because in her lovely gown of silver tissue set off by several big purple and mauve orchids she was one of the most attractive debutantes summoned to the Veiled Prophet's Court of Love and Beauty.

Dot's greatest interest is music, which she has studied from childhood. A year ago in June, when she was graduated from Mary Institute she won the contest for the class song. It was her first attempt at composing and because it came so easily she hopes that it will not be the one and only inspiration of her musical career. At Miss Finch's School in New York, which she attended last winter, she majored in music. But not all of her time is given to the piano. She likes to swim and play tennis and because she is popular she has many social duties.

A debutante once said that the secret of social success was achieved by "being nice to the older women." If this is true then Dot will be a success for she is gracious to everyone. She is the daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Roy Calvin Dobson, 84 Arundel place.

MARY LOUISE TOBIN'S appearance before the throne of the Veiled Prophet at the ball Wednesday night was no novelty for at the age of six she served as a page at the ball and was in the same role three more years. His mysterious Majesty must have smiled behind his lace veil when he saw that one of his most faithful little subjects had discarded her abbreviated page's costume for a long party gown, to be a maid of honor at the ball.

Mary Louise's friends have shortened her last name by one letter to call her, "Toby."

She will make an informal debut for she has enrolled as a special student at Maryville College, where she is studying sewing, French conversation and art. Students plugging away at Latin and Greek may well envy Mary Louise her "college course," for between sewing, conversing in French and painting cigarette boxes and other gadgets she is going to lots of parties this winter.

The majority of the debutantes are described as, "tall and slender." "Toby," is slender but she lacks a quarter of inch being five feet and three inches tall. She has light brown hair and merry brown eyes. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. John C. Tobin, 5 Kingsbury place.

Junior League Fashion Show

THE first fashion show of the season at the Junior League clubroom, 4914 Maryland avenue, will take place Tuesday during the luncheon hours. The mannequins will be Mrs. James A. Seddon Jr., Mrs. Edgar Rand, Mrs. Donald Church Bixby, Mrs. Whipple Van Ness Jones, Miss Marion Foley, Miss Joan Pangman and Miss Frances O'Neill.

The Arts and Interests Committee, Mrs. Robert Saunders, chairman, is planning a series of informal talks and discussions on modern art, literature and architecture as its program for the season. The series will begin Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the clubroom, and is open only to members of the league. The first speaker will be Edgar Curtis Taylor, whose topic will be "Literature and Its Relation to Modern Life."

The St. Louis Junior League will send Mrs. Lawrence Post and Miss Mary Frances Day as delegates to the Welfare Conference of Junior Leagues of America to be held in Minneapolis, Oct. 15-19.

Miss Florence Curry To Make Her Debut

The pillared front gallery is inclosed in canvas to house the elaborate hors d'oeuvres table, presided over by a Negro mammy in bandana and kerchief, the cocktail service, and a band of Negro musicians in overalls, strumming on stringed instruments.

Plantation days will be recalled in the figures of cotton pickers and bales of cotton on the place cards for the six large tables set in the living room and adjoining veranda. Bowls of autumn flowers form the centerpiece and shining old silver candelabra filled with lighted tapers will give the illumination.

The dinner will be served by Negro mammies in calico dresses, white aprons and head cloths, to the strains of plantation melodies. Later in the evening the tables will be cleared away and the same musicians will play for dancing.

Eleanor K. Blood and Pittsburgh Man Wed

THE marriage of Miss Eleanor Katherine Blood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Blood, 31 South Rock Hill road, Webster Groves, and John Thomas Pollock, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Pollock of Pittsburgh, Pa., took place Friday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Dr. David M. Skilling officiating.

The bride was gowned in an informal afternoon dress of royal blue crepe cut high at the neck, with sleeves trimmed with gold lame and caught tightly at the wrist. Her shoes and brimmed hat matched her gown. A bouquet of Joanna Hill roses, with gold ribbon streamers completed the costume. Her sister, Mrs. H. C. Grosskop, who was matron of honor, wore a close-fitting gown of rust-colored crepe trimmed with mink, with brown hat and shoes. She carried crysanthemums and pom-poms in shades of orange. Charlotte Warrent, young niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a dress of yellow ruffled taffeta and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of mixed flowers.

Mr. Pollock had as best man Thomas E. Whiteman, and as ushers Charles S. Blood Jr., brother of the bride; Neil J. Clarke, Herbert C. Grosskop, Norman E. Wynn and Firmin Desloge Fusz.

Ferns and plumosa formed a background for tall baskets of crysanthemums and candelabra containing white tapers. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Neil J. Clarke, sister of the bride, sang "Oh, Promise Me," and Alfred Lee Booth played the wedding march and incidental music. A supper for the family and bridal party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Blood followed the ceremony.

Woman's Club Tea Tomorrow

THE St. Louis Woman's Club will open its social season tomorrow, when the Junior Committee will give the first of its series of Monday afternoon teas, from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock. These teas are for members of the club and their friends. A meeting of the board of governors will be held tomorrow morning.

The first card day of the season will be Thursday. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock followed by bridge under the direction of the chairman, Mrs. John S. Wood, and the Card Committee.

The Special Program Committee, Mrs. William S. McChesney, chairman, has announced a play, "Androcles and the Lion," by George Bernard Shaw, to be produced at the club Thursday night, Oct. 18, at 8:15 o'clock. The cast has been chosen from The Players and Little Theater groups. L. Avon Blue Jr. is the director.

Dinner at 7 o'clock will precede the performance.

Miss Helen Willman To Wed R. H. Bopp

THE engagement of Miss Helen Willman of St. Louis County, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Willman, and Roland H. Bopp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Bopp, 131 Argonne drive, Kirkwood, was announced at a dinner party given Wednesday night by Mr. and Mrs. Harley B. Hartzog, 7807 Walinca terrace, Clayton.

The wedding will take place Oct. 24, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Melvin Jacaty, in Creve Coeur, Mo.

Miss Mary Park Becomes Bride

MISS MARY PARK, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George M. Park of the Price road, became the bride of William H. Whitton Jr., son, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Whitton, 5167 Cabanne avenue, Friday night at 8:30 o'clock at a candlelight ceremony at the West Presbyterian Church. After the service, performed by the Rev. Dr. William B. Lampe, there was a reception for 350 guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Park.

The bride was gowned in white transparent velvet, fashioned on princesse lines, with long tight sleeves and a slight train. A circle of seed pearls was fastened at the V neckline in front and a court train of five yards in length fell from the shoulders. She wore her mother's wedding veil, which was floor length and was arranged from a coronet of rose point lace. Her flowers were lilies of the valley.

The bride's six attendants wore gowns of velvet of similar design and ranged in color from a deep red to rose. They were fashioned on princesse lines with a slight train and with modified dolman sleeves, which were tight-fitting at the wrists. The square necklines at the front were ornamented with clips of brilliants and the deep V necklines on the back were outlined with ruffles. They wore matching slippers.

Mrs. Henry P. Thym, as matron of honor, and Miss Alice Seidel, as maid of honor, were in deep red and carried Joanna Hill roses. Miss Arline Anderson and Miss Lilian Blakeslee wore a shade of opaline rose and their flowers were President Hoover roses. THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.

KATHARINE BRUSH recently accompanied her husband, Bobby Winans, on a business trip to Brazil. She wanted to see the green hell of the most distant tropical jungles, where planters kept a sharp eye for bushmasters under the bed, drank gin and ginger beer, and there were Mauser carbines all over the place. One of Mr. Winans' correspondents arranged that they should spend the week-end at a remote coffee plantation two days into the interior, and, armed to the teeth for protection against snakes, native uprisings, typhoid and other jungle menaces, they departed for the railway station.

Kay was a little startled when they were met by a special train consisting of four saloon coaches full of iced champagne, fresh caviar, valets, maid and a motion picture theater, but it was nothing to her dismay when they reached the remote plantation where they were to rough it in the depths of the Amazon wastes. There were seven bathrooms including two sunken marble pools, attached to their suite of rooms alone. The premises were staffed with English footmen and the garages filled with imported cars. White ties and tailcoats were the rule at dinner, and carrying rifles through the corridors was discouraged by the impeccable major domo of the estate. When she got back to New York Kay's first excursion was to the Bronx Zoo to see the new bushmaster there.

Hapsburg House, the fetching Vienna restaurant in deepest East Fifty-fifth street, has its directors' dining room in the cellarage. With the wine bins on one side of it and the kitchens on the other, there is a plain pine table with a drop light and a rope of sleigh bells hung from a beam for summoning the waiter. We lunched there last week with the Messrs. Collier Young and Edmund Patrick, schnitzel and hasenpfeffer barons. Later the party settled down to some constructive consideration of the 30-year house cognac and the sleigh bells rang with glad incessance.

The most spectacular of last week's first-night arrivals in the white-light reaches of Forty-fifth street was accomplished by Mrs. Henry Field, Chicago commuter and high-power chronicler of social didos. The night of the premiere in question it was raining cloudbursts, and Mrs. Field, in Tom Fisher's Lincoln, was stalled half a block from the Music Box. The puddles were inches deep and it was past curtain time, and there was every prospect of missing exciting moments in the play. Mrs. Field met the crisis by removing her evening sandals and stockings and wading through to the lobby with only a little damage to her red enameled dogs. Roach, the Fisher's chauffeur, while scandalized, reported that numerous dames of high degree from adjacent Minervas and Isottas followed her example and reached the theater shoes and stockings in hand, but almost on time.

Count Perdicaris is fond of telling about the Scotsman who was so parsimonious that when he took a drink of whisky he invariably held his nose for fear his mouth would water and dilute it.

News of St. Louisans Traveling in Europe

PARIS, France, Sept. 29.

MR. AND MRS. BARCLAY HUDSON are expected in Paris this next week and, according to present plans, will remain here during the winter. They have been occupying a villa on the Island of Corfu this summer, with occasional visits to Riviera resorts. Mrs. Hudson formerly was Jane Rule of St. Louis. She is the daughter of Mrs. Virgil Rule and the late Judge Rule. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson will take an apartment in Paris with friends of theirs, temporarily. Miss May Birkhead of the Rue Petrarque in Paris is a cousin of Mrs. Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Dean Jay, former St. Louisans, returned to Paris on the Europa from New York and are again at their residence on the Avenue d'Iena.

Bringing a number of fall and winter visitors to the Continent the Berengaria docked yesterday at Cherbourg. Among those on board were the following St. Louisans: Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Grin, Miss Judith Baird and Miss Martha Lestlake.

Mrs. Waler L. Russell returned to the Ritz in Paris Tuesday and will remain here until the end of October, when she will sail for America. With Mrs. Russell is her daughter, Miss Valerie Baker, who recently returned from a trip on the Dalmatian Coast with her sister Mrs. Hugh Lincoln Strong of London. Miss Baker will be in London with the Strongs for the season while her mother is in America.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Downey of St. Louis also are recent arrivals at the Ritz here. The Downeys have spent most of the summer in Cannes and along the Riviera, enjoying the galas and fetes which have been so numerous there this season. They will remain in Paris until Wednesday when they return home.

Edmond Taylor returned to Paris Wednesday, arriving from New York on the Lafayette. He spent the summer with his mother, Mrs. Rufus Lackland Taylor of the Park Plaza. Mr. Taylor's cousin, Miss Louise Lackland Bronaugh, is back in her Paris apartment after a two weeks' trip in Luxembourg, Germany, and Belgium.

Thomas H. Ryan Jr. of St. Louis was in Paris this last week. He has left here for an extensive trip which will take him to Belgium, Switzerland, Germany, Italy and Spain and will sail for home from Barcelona, Nov. 15.

SCHOOL and COLLEGE LIFE

EIGHT members of last June's graduating class of the St. Louis Country Day School have been awarded scholarships by various colleges. Claiborne Skinner, the president of the class, won the Princeton War Memorial scholarship for this district. He is the twelfth graduate of the school to receive the award.

Arthur Lieber Jr. was awarded the scholarship offered by the Yale Club of St. Louis, and Andrew Gunter received the Sterling Memorial scholarship.

Of those going from Country Day School to Washington and Lee, Samuel P. McChesney Jr. and Earl C. Thompson Jr. received scholarship awards. Haverford awards went to William H. Reaves Jr. and to Dwight D. Currie Jr. Hale Benton Jr. won an award from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Athletic Association at Country Day School recently elected Andrew J. Lindsay Jr. president, Robert Jones vice-president, Ross A. Woolsey Jr. secretary. Class representatives: Roderick W. Rombauer, Ross A. Woolsey Jr. Edwin T. Stanard Jr., George P. Whitelaw Jr., Carl S. Lawton Jr. and Ethan A. H. Shepley Jr. Edward G. Hotchkiss Jr. and Robert Jones were chosen marshals of the Red and White camps, respectively.

Elected to the Student Council were Hans Bebie, chairman; Tom K. Smith Jr., Robert Jones, Edward G. Hotchkiss Jr., Harry Baker Atwood, John Brodhead Jr. and David Galt.

The following class presidents were elected: Class I, Hans Bebie; Class II, Harry Baker Atwood; Class III, David Galt; Class IV, Alfred Clifford Jones; Class V, Elbert S. Brown; Class VI, Henry Kendall; Class VII, Charles C. Allen III.

A tabulation of results of the examinations given by the College Entrance Examination Board last June shows that 31 boys received honor grades of 80 or over in a total of 53 subjects.

Hosmer Hall French and German clubs held their annual elections of officers Monday and Tuesday. Le Cercle Francais elected Miss Sylvia Israel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. Israel, Clayton and Lay roads, president; Mitt Natalie Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Allen, 3823 Castleman avenue, vice-president; Miss Myra Jane Beckett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Beckett, 41 Ridgemoor drive, secretary, and Miss Nancy Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Miss Weltha Kelley, director of family case work, and Miss Irene Morris, director of medical social work, both members of the faculty of the School of Social Service of St. Louis University, have gone to Cincinnati to attend the national convention of Catholic Charities, which began yesterday and will continue until Friday.

Hazing of underclassmen has been abandoned at Lindenwood College, and in place of it the sophomores gave a "nursery party" for the freshmen Friday night. Miss Suzanne Perrin of St. Louis was the teacher. A number of the freshmen, who were arrayed in Mother Goose costumes, repeated the rhymes which went with their impersonations.

Lindenwood College is represented this week-end by Dr. Alice E. Gipson, dean of the college, at the Cottey College fiftieth anniversary celebration at Nevada, Mo.

The dean is also to be a participant Tuesday in the academic procession at Rockford College, Rockford, Ill., which will be a part of the exercises for the installation of the new president of that college.

Dr. Gipson has accepted a recent appointment to be state chairman of education for the American Association of University Women.

Miss Ita McCauley, a member of the senior class at Fontbonne College, was elected president of the Fontbonne Athletic Association for the scholastic year: Miss McCauley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McCauley, 1522 Tamm avenue, and is active in sports and dramatics at the college. Miss Ann Dolores McNamara was elected vice-president; Miss Helen Moran, secretary, and Miss Alma Tackaberry, treasurer. The Fontbonne Athletic Association annually sponsors a horse show, swimming meet, and tennis and golf tournaments.

Mrs. John E. Riley of 22 Ridgemoor drive, St. Louis County, chairman of the dinner committee of the Fontbonne Carnival Association, will be assisted by the following: Mrs. G. T. Higgins, Mrs. W. F. Englebreit, Mrs. A. L. Betz, Mrs. H. A. Kersting, Mrs. W. H. Perkinson, Mrs. Charles H. Hempel and Mrs. John E. Riley Jr.

This group of women will have complete charge of the planning and serving the dinner on both evenings of the carnival of Oct. 19 and 20.

A mixed tea for the freshman class at Webster College will be given by the Student Council in Loretto Hall this afternoon from 4 until 7 o'clock.

Webster College Woman's Club will give a bridge luncheon for the benefit of the college, in Loretto Hall tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Patrick O'Donnell Jr., 3011 Lafayette avenue, will be the hostess.

WEDDINGS and ENGAGEMENTS

MISS JOSEPHINE WOLFNER EDMONDS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Edmonds, and granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry L. Wolfner of 4563 Forest Park avenue, and Harold L. Steinfeld, East Orange (N. J.), son of Maurice Steinfeld of the Embassy Apartments, were married Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents. Because of the recent death of the bridegroom's mother, only members of the immediate family were present. Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of Temple Israel and Rabbi Julius Gordon of Temple Shaare Emeth officiated.

Miss Mary Betty Edmonds, sister of the bride, and Henry Wolfner Edmonds, her brother, were the only attendants. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown.

Following the ceremony the young couple departed for their new home in East Orange, where they will reside.

The marriage of Miss Frances Bollwerk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bollwerk, 3401 Utah avenue, to Paul Flamm of Cobdin, Ill., took place Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Pius' Church, the Rev. John Lyons officiating.

The bride was gowned in white satin made on pricess lines with neck and sleeve trimmed in Chantilly lace. Orange blossoms held her tulle veil in place, and she carried a bouquet of lilies. Miss Ottilia Bollwerk, sister of the bride, was maid-of-honor, wore a brown lace dress made on pricesse lines with a ruffle at the hips. She wore slippers, hat and gloves to match and carried yellow crysanthemums. Robert Flamm, brother of the bridegroom was best man, and Lawrence De Moor and Valentine Bollwerk, nephew of the bride, were ushers.

On their return from their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Flamm will occupy their new home in Cobdin, Ill.

Mrs. Edith R. Emmons, Jefferson street, St. Charles, Mo., announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Dorothy, to Dr. E. J. Canty, son of Mrs. M. A. Canty, 5319 Pershing avenue, St. Louis, at a tea Tuesday afternoon. Miss Canty is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Rauch and Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Emmons of St. Charles and is a graduate of Loretto Academy in Kansas City. She also attended Lindenwood College. Dr. Canty was graduated from St. Louis University.

The engagement of Miss Ruth Brody, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Brody, 4610 Vernon avenue, and Harry Enger, son of Mrs. Sarah Enger, 1399 Belt avenue, was announced Thursday night at a party at the home of the prospective bride. The wedding will take place this winter.

STORY HOURS FOR CHILDREN

To Begin at All Branches of St. Louis Public Library.

As in the past, children's librarians will tell stories for little children at all branches of the St. Louis Public Library beginning this month and continuing through April. The stories are taken from folk lore and fairy tales of all countries.

The Buder, Crunden, Divoll and Soulard branches are varying their programs this year by taking the children on literary tours of the world. At the Gravois branch the policy of having children enact the story told the previous week at each story hour will be continued.

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

CLEAN YOUR TEETH
your Dentist's way—
USE POWDER
DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER
■ 100% Cleansing Properties Twice that of tooth paste
■ Contains No Grit or Pumice Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
■ Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1
THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.
That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.
As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.
Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.
Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.
Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.
Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.
Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.
Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.
Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS

Social Items from the Army Post

COLONEL and Mrs. Walter Short have as their guests Mrs. Short's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Dean of Oklahoma City, Ok. They arrived on the post Thursday and will remain for several days.

Colonel and Mrs. Walter Short, Maj. and Mrs. William A. Smith, Maj. and Mrs. C. H. Glascock and Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Phillips attended the Veiled Prophet ball Wednesday evening.

An outstanding social event of the last week was the tea and miscellaneous shower given by Miss Maxine Cannon and Miss Carol Sims Saturday afternoon at the post Officer's Club, in honor of Miss Betty Ann Burney, whose marriage to Lieut. Andrew D. Stephenson will take place the latter part of this month. The club rooms were decorated with large vases filled with golden rod and autumn leaves.

The tea table, which was laid in the dining room of the club was attractive with white decorations. A filet cloth covered the table, and crystal jewel trees and white tapers completed the decorations.

Miss Cannon wore an afternoon frock of black satin, made with short puffed sleeves, and trimmed with a vest of peach satin. Miss Sim's dress was green taffeta with a dropped shoulder line, the neck and puffed sleeves being banded with ermine. The guest of honor wore a smart gown which had an ankle length skirt of black velvet, and a long tunic blouse of printed velvet, trimmed with bows of the black velvet at the neck and on the sleeves. A tiny black velvet turban completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Edwin T. Wheatley and Mrs. Glen L. Allen presided at the tea table, assisted by Mrs. George B. Van Zee, Miss Ida Johnston, Miss Betty Chappell, Miss Cannon and Miss Sims.

The guests included Mrs. Walter Short, Mrs. Irving M. Madison, Mrs. Glen L. Allen, Mrs. Perry L. Boyer, Mrs. Paul R. Brickey, Mrs. William L. Brown, Mrs. Mabel C. Burney, Mrs. Rufus A. Byers, Mrs. Charles M. Chamberlain, Mrs. Walden B. Coffey, Mrs. John D. Eason, Mrs. John D. Frederick, Mrs. C. H. Glascock, Mrs. R. S. Henderson, Mrs. Daniel H. Hundley, Mrs. Elizabeth Hundley, Mrs. Oren E. Hurlbut, Mrs. William H. Irvine, Mrs. O. R. Johnston, Mrs. Paul A. King, Mrs. Harry Kirsner, Mrs. B. Machrae, Mrs. Le Roy McGraw, Mrs. W. G. Muller, Mrs. John D' O'Connell, Mrs. W. C. Phillips, Mrs. Thomas H. Reagan, Mrs. J. C. Reed, Mrs. A. J. Regnier, Mrs. Leonard Sims, Mrs. W. A. Smith, Mrs. James R. Urquhart, Mrs. Edwin T. Wheatley, Mrs. Zimmerman, Miss Pearl Fisher, Miss Freemont, and Mrs. Frank Sharpless of Webster Groves.

Lieut. and Mrs. John T. Westermeier, who have been stationed at Jefferson Barracks for the last three years, following Lieut. Westermeier's graduation from the United States Military Academy in 1931, have received orders sending him to duty with the Hawaiian Department. They will sail from New York City Dec. 14.

Lieut. and Mrs. Westermeier are spending this week-end as the guests of Lieut. Westermeier's mother, Mrs. H. G. Westermeier of Carlinville, Ill.

Mrs. James A. Summersett and her young son and daughter left Wednesday to join Maj. Summersett, who has been detailed to permanent duty with the Civilian Conservation Corps at Camp Willow Springs, Willow Springs, Ill.

Lieut. and Mrs. Logan Clark, who are stationed in the Philippine Islands, and who were formerly members of the garrison at Jefferson Barracks, are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a son, Patrick Noble, born Sept. 23 at Detroit, Mich. Mrs. Clark is spending several weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noble Banks in Detroit.

Maj. and Mrs. Frank Sharpless were hosts at a buffet supper and dance at their quarters Saturday evening. The house was decorated with Halloween colors and jack-o-lanterns. The guests were Capt. and Mrs. LeRoy McGraw, Capt. and Mrs. Paul R. Brickey, Maj. and Mrs. Thomas H. Reagan, Capt. and Mrs. Leonard Sims, Miss Maxine Cannon, Lieut. Roscoe Huggins, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pascott, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Reynolds, Capt. and Mrs. P. Gray, Maj. and Mrs. Fred Spann, Maj. and Mrs. Glen Ross, Dr. and Mrs. Corley, Mr. and Mrs. James Cook, Miss Elizabeth and Miss Melita Cook and Miss Blanche Corley, Maj. H. Cresswell, Col. and Mrs. Carl Muller, Mr. and Mrs. A. Speigel and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Webster.

Miss Marjorie Madison, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Irving M. Madison, departed Sept. 1 to attend the Dr. Goodwall X-ray Laboratory School in St. Louis.

With the arrival of the troops from Fort Sheridan, Ill., Tuesday post activities have been resumed The officers and men of the garrison have been absent from the post since Aug. 1, during which time they were on summer maneuvers at Camp Custer, Mich. The officers who returned Tuesday were Col. Walter Short, Capt. Glen L. Allen, Capt. William L. Brown, Capt. Rufus A. Byers, Capt. J. M. Cochran, Lieut. John D. Eason Lieut. J. D. Frederick, Lieut. Charles A. Carrell, Lieut. William C. Hall, Lieut. Roscoe C. Huggins, Lieut. Daniel H. Hundley, Lieut. O. R. Johnston, Lieut. Herman Kaesser, Maj. Floyd Kilgore, Capt. Le Roy McGraw Capt. W. G. Wheatley, Lieut. Lawrence K. White and Lieut. C. E. Williams.

Lieut. Richardson and Lieut. Jenna, class of 1934, West Point, who joined the regiment Sept. 1 at Fort Sheridan, Ill., will remain at that post for the next month to attend the bakers' and cooks' school.

Capt. and Mrs. S. Hillon, who are on their way to Houston, Tex., were the guests Tuesday evening of Lieut. and Mrs. John D. Eason.

Mrs. John D. Frederick returned Sunday from Springfield, Ill., where she has been visiting Lieut. Frederick's mother for several weeks.

Capt. and Mrs. Guy Skinner, who have been spending the summer at the Marmaduke Hotel in St. Louis, following Capt. Skinner's retirement from the army, departed this week for San Francisco, Cal., where they will make their permanent home.

Mrs. Skinner will sail soon for the Hawaiian Islands, where she will visit her daughter.

Mrs. N. T. Coffey returned to her home in Niagara Falls, N. Y., Thursday, after spending the last week as the guest of her son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. W. B. Coffey.

Mrs. A. J. Regnier and her small son, Richard Adrian, arrived on the post last Friday, to join Lieut. Regnier, after spending the summer as the guests of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. John F. Howland of Portland, Me. Lieut. and Mrs. Regnier have taken quarters in the woods.

Mrss. Charles M. Chamberlain, Maj. and Mrs. Spann, Capt. and Mrs. Charles Henry, Lieut. and Mrs. Van Zee, and Charles P. Bobe attended the Veiled Prophet ball Wednesday evening.

Here and There On the Air

By J. L. S.

Cantor, Fritzi Scheff On KSD This Evening.

EDDIE CANTOR will return to KSD and the WEAF chain with Rubinoff at 7 o'clock tonight, succeeding Jimmy Durante as the star of the hour-long programs.

Because of the World Series broadcast, KSD's Stars of Tomorrow program will go on the air at 12:30 noon today. The St. Louis band concert will be broadcast at 1 o'clock. The baseball broadcast is scheduled to begin on KSD at 1:30.

Fritzi Scheff will sing "Kiss Me Again" and other songs from "Mlle. Modiste" during the Manhattan Merry-Go-Round period on KSD at 8 o'clock tonight. Raquel Carlay, star of the "Folies Bergere," and Pierre le Kreun, European tenor, are billed with her.

Ethel Waters, the Hall Johnson Choir and Ed Mallory's orchestra are billed on the WEAF Chain Hall of Fame program at 9 o'clock tonight.

RUTH LYON, soprano, will be the featured singer with Morgan L. Eastman's orchestra at 9 o'clock tomorrow night on KSD.

A SKETCH based on the life of Offenbach, composer of "The Tales of Hoffman" and the writing of the famous "Barcarolle" from that opera, will be a feature of Sigmund Romberg's program on KSD at 7 o'clock next Saturday night.

"Dick Steele, the Boy Reporter" is now a KSD feature at 5 o'clock daily except Saturday and Sunday.

A new KSD program is "The Whistler and His Dog," at 7:45 Monday nights. Pat Kennedy, tenor with Ben Bernie; Tom, Dick and Harry trio, and the King's Jesters are billed.

IDA BAILEY ALLEN has a new series, "Round the World Cooking School," on KSD at 9 a. m. Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays. She is assisted by Franz, "the international chef," who not only demonstrates dishes of the countries visited, but also sings their songs.

Grantland Rice, the sports writer, will discuss the next day's football games during the Jessica Dragonette programs at 7 o'clock Friday nights on KSD.

Carveth Wells, explorer, author and lecturer, begins a series of travel talks at 12 noon today on the WEAF chain.

ADVENTURES of a young Iowa beauty contest winner at Hollywood will be the basis of "Sallie of the Talkies," which will replace Talkie Picture Time at 2 o'clock Sundays, starting Oct. 14.

Judy and Jane will be back on the WEAF net at 1:45 daily except Saturday and Sunday, beginning Oct. 15.

The Saturday Jamboree will be broadcast at 6:15 Saturdays over the WEAF net and KSD instead of the WJZ net.

"The Student Prince" will be the KSD Light Opera Hour bill at Tuesday night. James Melton, John Barclay and Anne Jamison, the Canadian lyric coloratura soprano, will have the leading roles.

The Pickens Sisters, who won a spot on KSD's Show-Boat program the past week, may take Annette Henshaw's place on the program.

Radio Concerts And Recitals.

THREE symphony concerts of importance will be broadcast Sundays, starting today. From 2 to 4 o'clock the New York Philharmonic Orchestra will play over the CBS net and KMOX. Otto Klemperer, the German conductor, directing.

Unfortunately, the other two concerts will conflict, both being scheduled at 7 o'clock—the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Victor Kolar conducting, playing over the CBS net and KMOX until 8 o'clock, and Leopold Stokowski directing the first of 13 Sunday night hour-long concerts with Richard Crooks, the Metropolitan opera tenor, as soloist, on KWK and the WJZ net. Maria Jeritza will be the soloist with the Detroit orchestra.

Arturo Toscanini, Hans Lange, Werner Janssen, Artur Rodzinski and Bruno Walter will conduct most of the New York Philharmonic concerts, Toscanini directing 10 in January, February, March and April. Soloists engaged for these series include Ossip Gabrilowitsch and Vladimir Horowitz, pianists, and Jascha Heifetz, violinist. The Schola Cantorum will join the orchestra in a performance of Stravinsky's "Psalms" on Oct. 21.

Grace Moore, Geraldine Farrar, Lily Pons, Lucrezia Bori, Lawrence Tibbett, Jascha Heifetz, Albert Spalding, Jose Iturbi, Harold Bauer and Ruggiero Ricci, violinist, have been signed as soloists for the CBS network concerts. In addition to Stokowski, conductors engaged for this series include Otto Klemperer, Walter Damrosch, Hans Kindler, Fritz Reiner, Werner Janssen, Artur Rodzinski, Artur Bodanzky, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Karl Krueger, Louis Hasselmans and Eugene Goossens.

THE new Detroit Symphony Orchestra series is an outgrowth of the successful concerts broadcast from the Chicago Century of Progress Fair. They will come from Orchestra Hall in Detroit. The orchestra will be supported by a chorus and a notable array of "guest" artists. Kolar for 15 years has been assistant conductor of the orchestra. He scored a distinct success as conductor of the Philadelphia summer concerts. Conducting twice a day seven days a week, Kolar and the orchestra played more than 150 concerts, during which 600 different works were programmed, during their engagement this summer at the Chicago Fair. Of these concerts four hours weekly were carried by the CBS chain.

Next Sunday, at 3 o'clock, the WJZ net and KWK will carry the first of a series of half-hour concerts of light classical music by the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra, Karl Krueger conducting. De Wolf Hopper, noted actor, will be the narrator. Stanley Deacon, baritone, will be the first soloist.

JEANETTE MacDONALD, concert and film star, will be the soloist with Josef Pasternack's orchestra at 7 o'clock tomorrow night on KMOX and the CBS net.

Rosa Ponselle will sing "My Hero," the lullaby from "Jocelyn" and "Clavelitos" at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on KMOX.

Four concerts from Moscow are scheduled at 8:30 this morning and at the same time next Sunday and Nov. 4 and 11 on the WEAF chain.

The second concert by the Chicago Woman's Symphony Orchestra is set for 2:30 Tuesday on the CBS chain. Mrs. H. H. A. Beach's "Gaelic Symphony" will be featured.

Nino Martini, tenor, will sing Mattei's "Non e Ver" during his concert at 8 o'clock Wednesday night on KMOX.

Lawrence Tibbett will divide his program at 7:30 Tuesday night on KWK with the Children's Chorus of the Henry Street Settlement in New York.

Isador Philipp, former head of the piano department of the Paris Conservatory, will give four lecture recitals in the Great Composers periods on the WJZ net, at 12:45 noon Mondays, Oct. 15 and 22, and Thursdays, Oct. 18 and 25.

EAST SIDE BOARD SEEKS STATE RELIEF INQUIRY

St. Clair Supervisors Call for Investigation by Illinois Senate Committee.

The St. Clair County Board of Supervisors yesterday adopted a resolution calling for an investigation of relief conditions in the county by a committee of Illinois legislators. Gov. Horner was quoted at the meeting as having promised such an investigation and the prosecution of anyone found guilty of wrong-doing.

The resolution states there has been a great deal of criticism of the manner in which emergency relief has been administered, and that newspapers have published articles pertaining to abuses and irregularities.

The resolution, passed unanimously, adds that the State Senatorial Committee has never visited the county, but is requested to do so in order that the investigation may be thorough.

Fred Moore, former investigator of relief activities, was appointed for six months at a salary of $150 a month to work in conjunction with the committee.

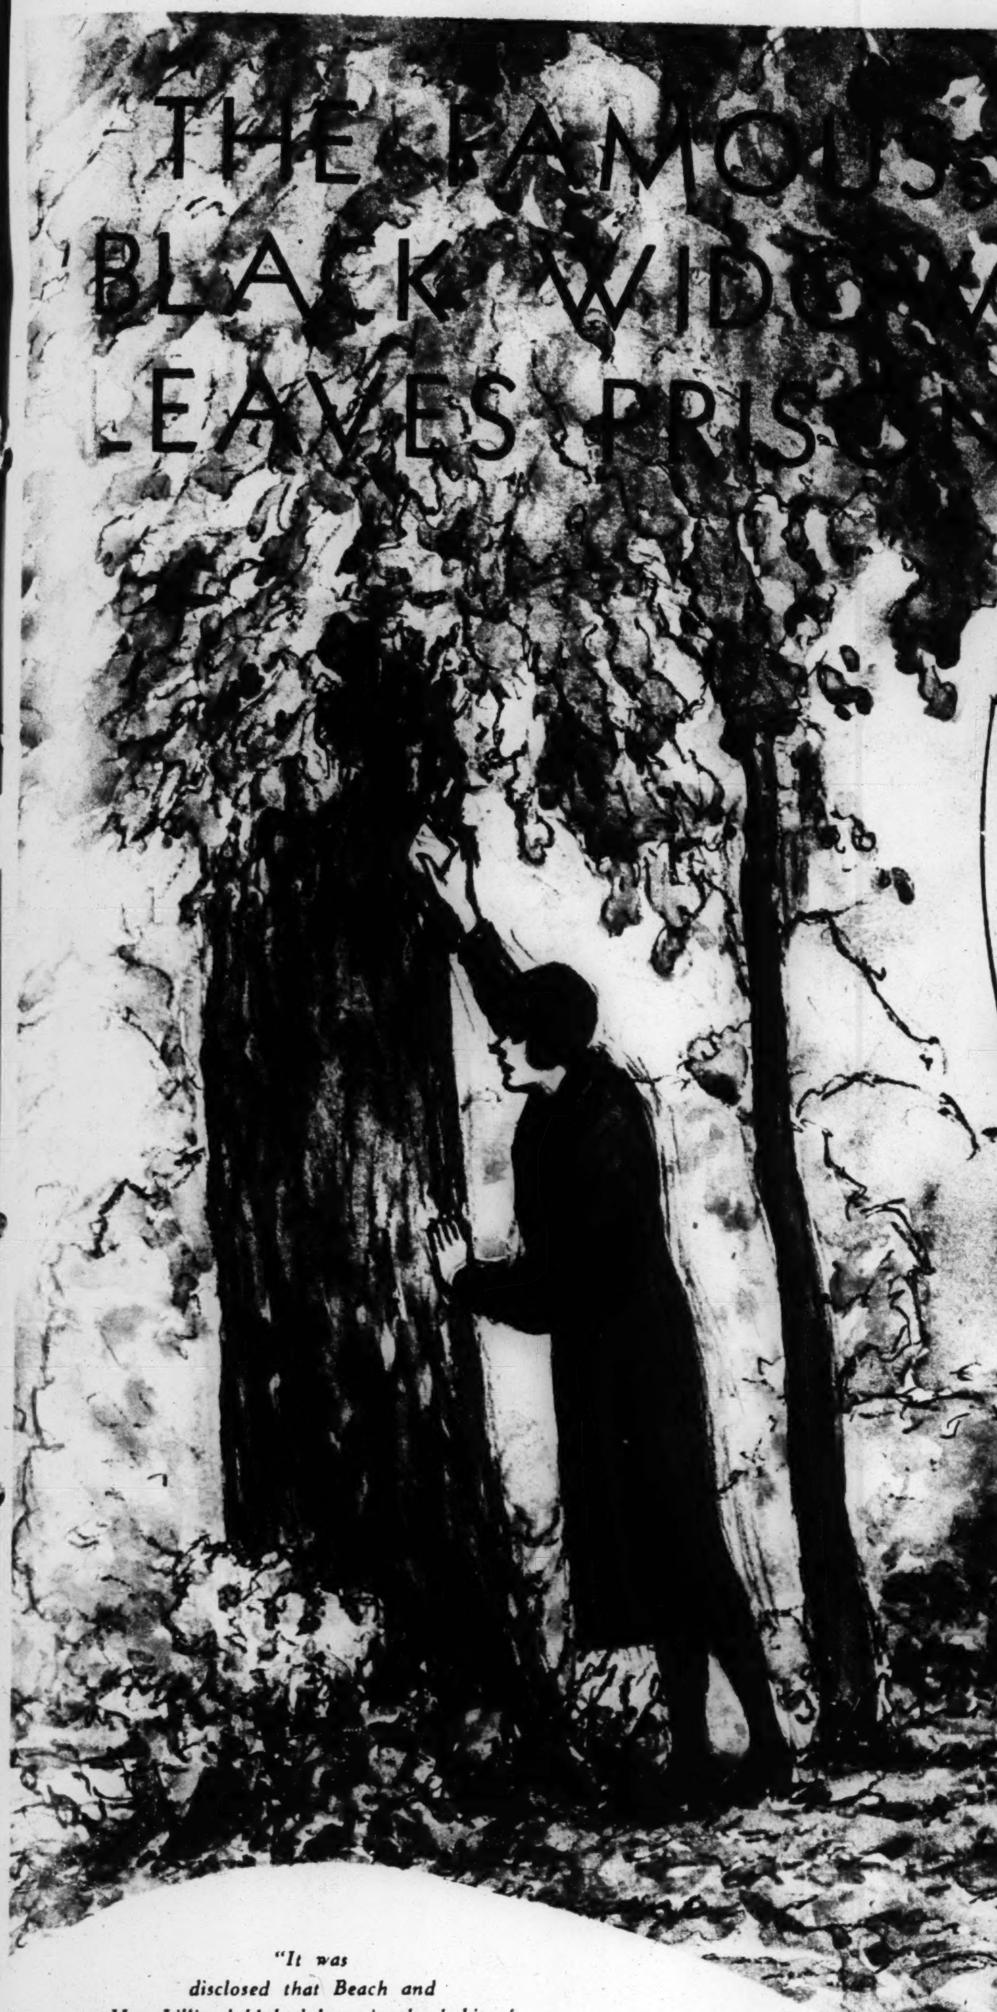
THE FAMOUS BLACK WIDOW LEAVES PRISON



"It was disclosed that Beach and Mrs. Lilliendahl had been in the habit of using a hollow oak as a clandestine postoffice."

Mrs. Margaret Thompson Lilliendahl, the "Black Widow," and her son, Alfred.

Once the Chief Figure in a Sensational Murder Triangle, Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl Is Now Free But With Another Kind of Doom Hanging Over Her.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

TRENTON, New Jersey.

NEITHER Dashiell Hammett nor James M. Cain nor any of the other spinners of horror yarns can hope to discover a plot that is more fantastic or tragic than the grim story which lurks behind the release of Mrs. Margaret Thompson Lilliendahl, who was recently paroled from the State Reformatory for Women at Clinton, New Jersey.

Known as the "Black Widow of South Vineland," this pale, worn, dark-eyed, tall and dignified woman of middle age is now in Bridgeport, Connecticut, reunited with her 15-year-old son, Alfred, and her brother, J. Sherwood Thompson, from whom she had been separated while serving a term for a crime of which she consistently protested she was entirely innocent.

But it is not only the years behind the bars which have lined Mrs. Lilliendahl's face and given her a ghastly pallor. It is also the fact that she is suffering from a cancer which, physicians assert, will lead to her death in the not distant future.

On June 30, when Governor A. Harry Moore signed the order for the 49-year-old widow's release, an official at the penitentiary said: "The parole was probably granted on account of Mrs. Lilliendahl's health. We believe her case is incurable, although she is still able to work. She was at work yesterday cutting out garments we make for use of inmates in other state institutions."

as Mrs. Lilliendahl faces her new-found, but apparently brief span of freedom, she expects to earn her living by sewing. For, though her family was prosperous when she went to prison almost seven years ago, they are poor today.

principal character in this weird story, which held nation-wide attention for months, was Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, a 72-year-old eccentric, called "Old Doc" by his fellow townfolk of South Vineland, New Jersey, the victim in a mysterious murder. was found dead, in the early fall of 1927, in his car in a lonely lane off the desolate Hammonton-Atsion Highway, killed by three leaden slugs fired into his head from a .32 caliber revolver. At the time of his death he had been driving with his wife, Margaret Lilliendahl. The fatal weapon was never discovered.

Indicted for the doctor's murder were his wife, 30 years his junior, and her alleged admirer, Willis Beach, a little bald-headed man of 57, whose chief interest had been chicken raising. The State asked for a verdict of first degree, but the jury of seven men and five women, after debating for 21 hours, brought in the unusual verdict of voluntary manslaughter with a penalty of 10 years' imprisonment for each.

Both vigorously protested their innocence before, during and after the trial. As the meek-mannered Beach walked into the State penitentiary, he told the world that he would not be there long. He was right, for he quickly withered away and three years later died. Now, with the release and illness of the "Black Widow," the final chapter is being written on this eerie case.

From the start, the police were baffled by the mystery. They never succeeded in gathering more than circumstantial evidence and they relied to a great extent on the gossip of the neighbors. Just who fired the fatal shots remains a mystery to this day and whether it will ever be satisfactorily solved, no one knows.

The police did know that "Old Doc," a man of failing health who had moved to South Vineland with his wife and their little son, Alfred, had conducted a sanatorium for drug addicts in New York, where he had had some trouble with the Federal authorities over dispensing too much dope. They also knew that the old physician seemed even more interested in raising poultry than he did in caring for the sick and that he had been wont to consult his neighbor, Beach, on such matters. Besides, they found out that Mrs. Lilliendahl had been in the habit of taking her husband on long, slow drives through the New Jersey country-side for his health.

Dr. A. William Lilliendahl.

On the afternoon of September 15, 1927, the Lilliendahls were catapulted on to the front page.

Louis Ricci and David Amato of Hammonton found Mrs. Lilliendahl, dazed and disheveled, wandering on the highway about two hours' ride from South Vineland. In hysterical tones she shouted to them that her husband had been murdered by two Negro thugs who had jumped on the running board of the car, attacked and robbed her, and then killed her husband.

Mrs. Lilliendahl then collapsed, and when she revived from a deep faint at the Hammonton Emergency Hospital she told the authorities a similar tale of how the men had ordered her to drive into a lonely sand lane, had then beaten her severely, had killed the doctor when he attempted to defend her and had robbed them. She said that she had collapsed and then revived sufficiently to run to the road for help.

The fire bell of Hammonton rang out that afternoon and a posse under the leadership of Captain William J. Carter was sent out to search the woods and guard all roads. It found neither the robbers nor the weapon used in the slaying.

Willis Beach, right, photographed in court with his lawyer.

At the State police barracks Mrs. Lilliendahl was examined but no signs of bruises or injuries were found on her body, nor was her clothing badly torn. At the scene of the murder, police found a ruby ring, a wrist watch and a pocketbook with $20 in it. The poultryman, Willis Beach, who had a wife and two grown children, called to see Mrs. Lilliendahl and offer her his assistance.

THE robbery motive seemed to break down rapidly as new developments followed. The postmaster at Vineland stated that Mrs. Lilliendahl had been receiving letters under the name of Peggy Anderson every day. He said he knew that Beach had written the letters. Beach later admitted this at the trial. The town florist declared that Beach had been in the habit of buying flowers for Mrs. Lilliendahl.

A piece of white cloth was discovered in the woods near the murder spot. Several passing motorists had seen a similar piece of cloth hanging on a tree at the entrance to the lonely lane before the time of the shooting, but it was not there any longer when Mrs. Lilliendahl gave the alarm.

The crime began to take on the appearance of premeditation when the investigators considered that possibly the cloth had been put up as a marker for the spot where the murder was to be committed. Fresh tire marks of a second car were found near the scene and a motorist told of having seen a blue sedan emerge from the woods at a terrific speed.

On September 19 Mrs. Lilliendahl was held in $25,000 bail as a material witness. Three days later she returned to her home.

As the detectives swarmed about, her 8-year-old son, Alfred, disclosed that he had often heard his father and mother quarreling over Beach.

"My mother often came to my bedside at night and when she knelt down beside me I could see she had been crying," Alfred said. "I would ask her what was the matter and she would say that she and daddy had been quarreling over Mr. Beach."

On September 24 it was disclosed that Beach and Mrs. Lilliendahl had been in the habit of using a hollow oak tree as a clandestine postoffice for the exchange of additional Peggy Anderson letters. Beach was placed under $5000 bail as a material witness.

Three days later Beach disappeared. Immediately Beach's attorney, Edison Hedges, was indicted on the ground of having advised Beach to leave the jurisdiction of the court. Hedges apologized, the indictment was quashed.

ON October 6 Beach surrendered to the police and was accused as an accessory in the murder. The next day Beach and the "Black Widow" were indicted for first-degree murder.

In jail, while awaiting trial, Beach said: "This will come out all right." And Mrs. Lilliendahl, clad in widow's weeds, calm and yawning, spoke to the press of her innocence and the hosts of friends upon whom she could depend for help.

The State opened its trial at Mays Landing with a surprise witness, Samuel Bark, a trick roper and circus man from Oklahoma, who said that Beach had confessed the murder to him October 1 in Baltimore when Beach had been a fugitive. According to Bark, Beach said:

"I had to do it. When I came up to him in the woods he started raising hell and I shot him. I had been ordered off his place and was in bad because I had taken some dope to New York for him and blew the money."

The prosecution produced 67 witnesses in all. It produced evidence of blood on the widow's handbag and showed that the murder scene had been marked on the maps in the automobile. As the State closed its case, Mrs. Lilliendahl's lawyer, Robert H. McCarter, asked for the dismissal of his client on the ground that nothing had been proved against her. He lost and the trial proceeded.

On the stand Mrs. Lilliendahl reasserted her utter innocence and retold the robbery story. Beach's defense was an alibi to prove that he had not been near the spot when the murder had been committed. He denied that there had been anything more than an innocent friendship between him and Mrs. Lilliendahl.

The jury, after casting eight ballots, came in with its verdict of voluntary manslaughter and 10 years in prison for each.

When less than one-third of his sentence had been served, the wispy little poultryman fell ill and died in the State Prison at Trenton on October 13, 1930.

Mrs. Lilliendahl kept on repeating that she was innocent, but showed no resentment against her confinement. She became a "student officer," an honorary title in prison, and attended the "mental stimulus" classes in which books, plays and ideas are discussed. She proved herself a capable and willing housekeeper and seamstress.

And now this sole survivor of a triangle murder case which was one of the most sensational in the crime history of New Jersey, is back with her family, broken in health—and still declaring that she is innocent of the crime for which she was sent to prison.

U S COAST GUARD

New Fokker type amphibian used by the Coast Guard.

How Coast Guard Airmen Take Cinders From Reddened Eyes, Give Tips to Fishermen, Save Mariners Adrift.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CAPE MAY, N. J.

THROUGH pelting rain driven by a high wind, the Acrux, one of the Coast Guard's five flying lifeboats, fought its way out to sea the other day on an errand of mercy. Threatening clouds swirled above and whitecapped waves danced below as the pilot of the twin-motored, 1000-horsepower amphibian searched for the ship that had sent out a call for medical attention for one of its crew.

Finally, 200 miles from the Coast Guard station here, the freighter Effingham, bound from Texas to France, was sighted. Lieutenant W. S. Burton expertly circled the freighter, as she lay hove to, and settled down on her lee side where there was some protection from the choppy waves. The Effingham lowered a small boat and the surgeon, Dr. William A. Weaver, was taken to the ship. He had to make his way up a ladder which swung perilously while the ship, without way, rolled from side to side. As the surgeon came over the side he heard someone mention that "Don Chase is sure gettin' a lot of service for a cinder in the eye." Doctor Weaver nearly lost some of his professional aplomb; he had understood that he had to deal with a man in need of an immediate operation.

However, he found his patient with both eyes seriously inflamed from the presence of a cinder in one. Treatment was administered that quite likely saved the sight and most certainly cut short the excruciating pain that Chase would have continued to suffer had he been forced to wait for treatment until he reached France.

It was 3:55 p. m. when the surgeon boarded the freighter. By the time he had treated his patient and had been ferried back to the tossing Acrux it was nearly dark and the storm was increasing. The plane, which had taken off at 12:45 that morning, returned at 5:45, thus traversing the 400 miles and rendering aid in exactly five hours.

"NCU" is the call that is recognized by all who go to sea as meaning that someone needs the help of the Coast Guard, for police or humanitarian work, and such a call gets the right of way until the Coast Guard has the position of the calling ship and all other necessary information.

The five flying lifeboats that answer these calls, all named for stars that guide navigators, were built in 1932. This is what the Coast Guard said it wanted: "An aerial eye capable of extended search, radio equipped to maintain constant contact with surface, thus saving hours and possibly days of search; an aerial ambulance capable of a speed of 100 miles an hour, able to land in rough water, equipped with hatches large enough to admit stretcher cases and to be able to take off in rough seas; a demolition outfit to effect the destruction at sea of derelicts and obstructions to navigation within a few hours after the report of location; a high speed flying patrol for observation, landing and returning with rescued crews of distressed small craft and capable of taking aboard 15 or more passengers from distressed craft and standing by for lengthy periods on the surface, maintaining in the meantime radio communication with surface craft until transfer can be made of its passengers."

Injured seaman being taken ashore in cabin of flying lifeboat.

The ships not only are excellent airplanes but also are surprisingly seaworthy boats equipped with radio telegraph and telephone, and direction-finding devices. The hull is a ship in itself, being 54 feet long, nine feet in height, and seven feet in beam. This body is divided into three compartments with watertight doors and bulkheads. The single wing has a spread of 74 feet. Each is equipped with a collapsible lifeboat, capable of holding up 25 persons, and stretchers.

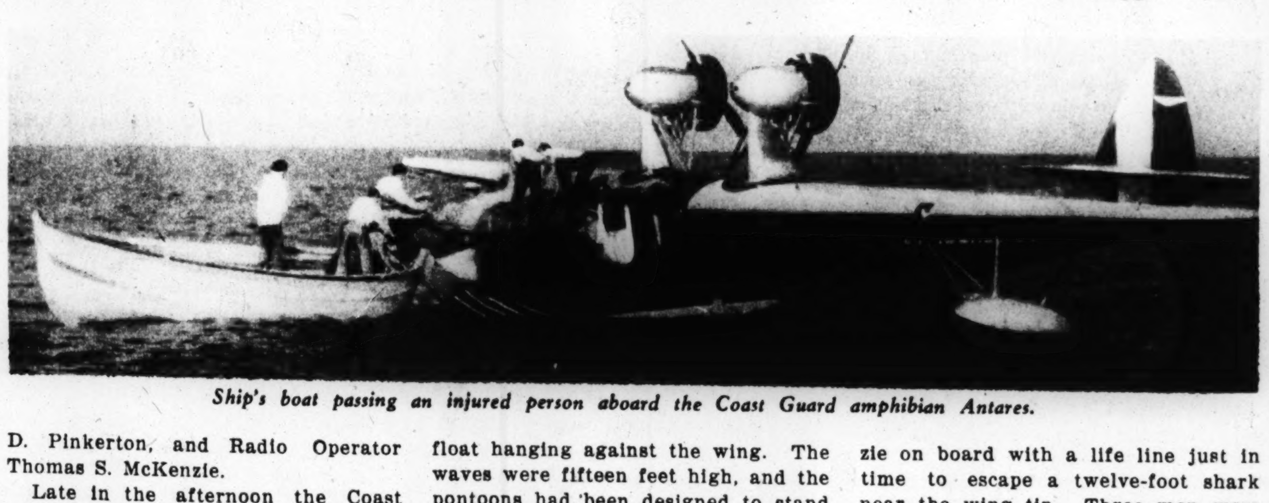
IT was in one of these flying lifeboats, the Arcturus, that a notable rescue feat was accomplished last year off Cape Canaveral, Florida. Shortly before noon one day, Lieutenant-Commander C. C. von Paulsen, in charge of the Coast Guard air station at Miami, was notified that a youth in a skiff had been blown off shore the night before just inside Cape Canaveral. He was told that two boats were fighting the northerly gale to seek the youth, and needed the seaplane to assist in the search. As the nearest Coast Guard ship was 85 miles away, it was imperative that the Arcturus give assistance at once.

The engines were started and in 30 minutes she was off. Besides Von Paulsen, the pilot, the Arcturus carried Lieutenant W. F. Foley, co-pilot; Chief Machinist's Mate James R. Orndorff Jr., Machinist's Mate William D. Pinkerton, and Radio Operator Thomas S. McKenzie.



Ship's boat passing an injured person aboard the Coast Guard amphibian Antares.

Late in the afternoon the Coast Guardsmen sighted the youth in a slowly sinking boat 30 miles off shore. Paulsen flew in wide circles, seeking the fishing boats or some other craft that could be directed to the skiff. None was in sight. Darkness would come on in about an hour. The wind had now shifted to onshore, and was increasing. The skiff was a small flat bottomed boat and no match for the rough seas of the Gulf Stream. The occupant, drenched and exhausted, was in imminent danger of death. If he was not to die, he must be rescued by the plane before dusk.

The Arcturus had been constructed primarily for rescue work at sea. The personnel operating her had the mission, among others, of rescuing those in peril at sea without regard to risk of their own lives.

It was decided to stake all on the chance of saving a life. Accordingly, all surplus gasoline was dropped. A normal landing was made in the rough seas, but the left wing tip float struts collapsed, leaving the float hanging against the wing. The waves were fifteen feet high, and the pontoons had been designed to stand waves no higher than six feet. The damaged float had to be cleared away or it would wreck the plane. The crew could see sharks hovering near.

Someone must jump overboard and clear away the damaged pontoon. Commander von Paulsen called for a volunteer. Promptly McKenzie, the radio operator, went over to clear the wing tip float.

In the investigation held eight days later, McKenzie, when asked if he at the time realized the danger attending his work, replied that he had every confidence in the pilot. Asked if he reposed any confidence in the sharks, he replied that although he saw sharks, he "did not figure on them."

Lieutenant Foley dragged McKenzie on board with a life line just in time to escape a twelve-foot shark near the wing tip. Three men were stationed along the wings of the plane to grab the youth in the skiff. Lieutenant Foley threw a heaving line to the boy, and instructed him to tie it around his waist and jump overboard, which he did. The crew hauled him aboard the plane through the cockpit. The members of the crew stationed along the wing tip were keeping the wing horizontal to permit the maneuvering of the plane, and after the youth had been taken from the water, the hatch of the forward cockpit was secured, and an attempt was made to take off.

Several times the amphibian raced over the tops of the great rolling waves only to be tossed about like a cork, or caught in a pocket. The three men on the partly disabled wing, still stationed there to help the plane keep its balance, hung on desperately, their lives depending on the strength of their hands. Finally, after several attempts, the pilot succeeded in getting the Arcturus into the air.

Then came the task of getting the men from the wing, as one misstep meant certain death by contact with the whirling propeller. As the crew congratulated itself that the takeoff was well executed, it was noted that the wing fabric was tearing and it became necessary to land again. In landing, the aluminum hull was wrinkled, but a less skillful handling in such a sea would have wrecked the plane, and all might have perished. Fumes from the battered fuel tanks of the plane, together with the fumes from fire extinguishers used to prevent the gasoline from igniting, were stifling the men within the compartment, and all but Commander von Paulsen climbed on the outside of the plane. The Commander, handling the controls, endeavored to head the boat for the shore. The seas were breaking over the men continuously.

An attempt was now made to taxi the plane in a northwesterly direction toward the coast, but new seas were making up from the eastward, and were confused and crossed, necessitating shutting down the motors. A sea anchor was made with the covers of the motors, but it very soon carried away. Another sea anchor was improvised, from a bucket, the radio operator's chair, and a seat cushion. The line to this sea anchor was led out from the door on the port side and the plane rode to this anchor easily. The men were then brought in from the wing, and the plane was allowed to drift.

The emergency radio set was put into commission, and a message was sent to the Florida East Coast Patrol Headquarters of the Coast Guard, advising of the position and plight of the Arcturus. A sounding was taken with a lead line, showing twelve fathoms.

THE anchor was dropped to head the plane into the wind. As darkness came on, and the seas increased, flares were sent up. The right wing tip broke off, but fortunately was washed clear without damage to the pontoon. This pontoon aided considerably in keeping the craft upright.

About 1 a. m., the wings of the plane seemed to be breaking up, and shortly thereafter, the breakers were entered. After passing through three lines of breakers, the Arcturus was beached about five miles south of Sebastian lighthouse. The crew reached shore, dragged the plane clear of the water, took all loose gear, emergency rations, and other equipment, and sent up flares. A fire was built on the beach, as all were suffering from cold and exposure, and within an hour, the men of the Customs Border Patrol from Fort Pierce arrived, and Paul Long, the rescued youth, was transported to safety.

A few weeks ago, while flying off Newark, New Jersey, the Adhara, piloted by Lieutenant R. L. Burke, intercepted a message from a trawler reporting that a small fishing boat, the Mao, had on board a sailor who was critically ill with blood poisoning from cutting a boil with a razor. The message described and gave the position of the Mao as 220 miles southeast of Boston in a dense fog with a heavy sea running.

After a blind search of two hours and intensive scouting over open patches here and there in the fog, the Mao was located. The Adhara landed in the rough seas close to the Mao and the sailor, suffering intense pain and with his right side paralyzed, was brought aboard in a dory. He was taken to the Boston station where a waiting ambulance took him [illegible] the hospital.

ALTHOUGH the Coast Guard used to devote much of its time to preventing the [illegible] liquor runners from landing, it never said much about this part of its duty. However, when it got seaplanes it began to make things exceedingly difficult for the runners.

WHEN the NARCOTIC SMUGGLERS KIDNAPED the FRENCH SAILOR

SAN FRANCISCO.

KIDNAPING, torture, smuggling played their parts in an international melodrama which has ended in the destruction of a powerful, flourishing dope ring whose ramifications reached from far-off Havre, in France, to San Francisco. Although the tenser scenes of this drama of dope smuggling and underworld intrigue were enacted in the East and in Havre, it was here that the first action occurred which was eventually to prove the prelude to an exciting sequence of events and lead ultimately to the solution of a serious crime.

One afternoon in July a Federal narcotic squad here arrested a man for peddling dope. The man had been under suspicion, was trailed for several days and finally was arrested in the act of selling several small capsules of heroin. Efforts were made to get this man to reveal the source of his supply, but, true to the underworld code, the peddler refused to talk. So far, it was the usual routine case, but for one little incident which the agents were quick to seize upon. While being booked at the police station, the man performed the apparently innocent act of throwing into a waste-paper basket some torn bits of paper that had been in his pocket. The agents collected the pieces, reassembled them and found a Brooklyn address. When asked to explain the address, the man shrugged his shoulders and dismissed the matter by saying merely, "Oh, that? That's just the address of a friend of mine back East. A guy named Allen."

After a few weeks of quiet investigation, a Government agent, posing as a visitor from San Francisco, appeared at the Brooklyn address. In the course of a conversation with the man who occupied the house, the visitor let it be known that he was visiting New York for the purpose of buying heroin, and that his "good friend," the San Francisco dope peddler, had sent him to that address.

Satisfied that the visitor was O K, the Brooklyn man arranged for the sale of $1500 worth of heroin and morphine. The sale was to take place at a designated spot on a Brooklyn street the next day. The purchaser was to be at a specified street corner at a certain time. He would be accosted by a young man who would give him a package and receive the money in return.

The appointment was kept. The transfer of money and dope took place in the effective obscurity of broad daylight on a public thoroughfare, and the salesman, who was later identified as Salvatore Mancuso, 28 years old, was promptly put under arrest and bundled into a nearby automobile.

Trapped, the usual procedure would have been for Mancuso to lapse into sullen silence or to become defiant. Instead, he seemed unusually excited, and the cause of his alarm was some cablegrams in his pocket.

"Listen," he finally blurted to the arresting agents. "You got me O K. I'll make you a proposition. I've got some cablegrams in my pocket. They're in code and don't mean anything to you, anyway. If you let me tear them up I'll take you to my joint, where I've got thousands of dollars worth of narcotics hidden away and turn 'em over to you. How about it?"

The Government agents agreed. Mancuso took the papers out of his pocket, tore them to tiny bits and let them flutter out of the car. With great relief he then directed the agents to his apartment in the Greenpoint section of Brooklyn, where they found more than $75,000 worth of heroin and morphine. Mancuso was then arraigned before the United States Commissioner and released in $20,000 bail on a narcotic-peddling charge.

MANCUSO'S smile of relief, as he tossed the fragments of paper out of the car, would hardly have appeared had he known that other Government agents had picked up the bits and put them together again. For their trouble, however, they got little satisfaction. Aside from strengthening their suspicion that Mancuso was an important link in the ring engaged in smuggling dope into this country, they learned absolutely nothing of value.

The cablegrams were in code. Nothing could be made of them and they were sent to the Narcotic Commissioner in Washington for deciphering. It was, of course, apparent that they were important. Otherwise Mancuso wouldn't have been so eager to turn over $75,000 worth of dope for the privilege of destroying them. But just what was their importance?

On August 1, just four days before Mancuso was arrested, the French liner Champlain docked at New York, bringing passengers, mails and merchandise from Havre and Plymouth. In a sedan parked near the pier were four men, waiting for an accomplice aboard the ship to bring them two packages containing narcotics valued by them at 40,000 francs, or $3000 in American money. In due time the accomplice appeared, but without the narcotics. The two packages of narcotics had been hidden in a ventilator aboard ship, all right, he told them, but a sailor on the ship, a member of the crew named Guillaume Rozen, had discovered them and taken them.

That night, in response to a note in French, Rozen left his vessel, was met by some men near the pier, seized and thrown into a waiting automobile and carried away. In the car he was bound and gagged, and after riding for about an hour, the car stopped in front of an apartment house. With a gun at his back, Rozen was marched inside.

With four grim-visaged men glowering at him, Rozen was asked what he had done with the two packages he had found hidden in the ship ventilator. To his captors, who had a smattering of French, Rozen, who speaks no English, said he had tossed the two packages overboard, thinking they might be bombs. They accused him of stealing the contraband for himself. Rozen stuck to his story, and they began to torture him.

They lashed his wrists and ankles with manila cord that cut into his flesh. They applied lighted cigarettes to his forehead, his ears and his eyelids and threatened to put out his eyes. They took a picture of his wife that he had been carrying in his pocket and ordered him to kiss it for the last time, the leader of the gang threatening to kill him with the pistol he held pressed against the sailor's chest. The torture continued for two and a half days until Rozen decided to change his story.

"I surrender," he said at last. "I sold it for $45 to a man I met. I don't know who he is."

"Do you know how much that stuff was worth?" the men said to Rozen. "Forty thousand francs."

"The only way for you to get off with your life," they warned him, "is to cable your wife to give up 40,000 francs to make it good."

They dictated a cablegram to Mrs. Rozen, who lived near Havre, and let her husband read it before they sent it off:

"I am in trouble. Cannot explain. Will have to have 40,000 francs. Will let you know later."

After sending the cablegram, his captors showed him more consideration. The woman in the place, who seemed to be the wife of the leader of the gang, went out and bought lotions and salves which she spread over his wounds. Then he was taken away by automobile to a house in Philadelphia. He was treated hospitably. The woman went along and cooked meals. The leader of the gang did not accompany them. Rozen was then moved from one place to another, apparently to avoid detection, the kidnapers finally taking him to Manhattan, where he was held in an uptown rooming house.

This went on for about four weeks. In the meantime, after Mrs. Rozen at Havre had received the message from her husband, she also received a visit from one of the sailors of the crew of the Champlain. His name was Pietro Guette. He told Mrs. Rozen that her husband was being held for ransom and advised her to have the money ready when the agent of the kidnapers should appear. He also urged the strictest secrecy upon her, telling her that her husband's life was at stake, and that the narcotic ring had a far-reaching hand.

When Guette departed Mrs. Rozen thought the matter over, came to the conclusion that her husband was probably already murdered and decided to notify the French police. They in turn notified the American authorities. Details of Mrs. Rozen's story were in turn given to the Commissioner of Narcotics in Washington, since the kidnaping was obviously intimately connected with dope-smuggling activities.

It was here that an obscure clerk in the Narcotic Commissioner's office did credit to the Government service by his alertness and sharp thinking. Mrs. Rozen's account mentioned the visit to her by the sailor named Pietro Guette. The clerk recalled that in one of the code cablegrams taken from the dope peddler Mancuso, the name of Pietro Guette appeared. Previously there had been nothing at all to connect the Mancuso case with the disappearance of the little French sailor. Now the two were seen to be definitely related.

Word finally reached Rozen's captors that the kidnaping was no longer a secret, and that the United States Government was looking for Rozen, now believed to be dead. Fearful of possible arrest for kidnaping, a far more serious crime than dope smuggling, his captors rushed him back to his original place of captivity, dressed him in a second-hand suit of clothes and told him he was to be turned loose. He was warned to say nothing of the kidnaping and torture and to explain, when questioned, that he had merely taken a holiday from his ship.

Exactly a month after he had been abducted, Rozen's captors dumped him at the pier from which the Champlain was about to sail on her third crossing since his disappearance. Officials of the French Line promptly turned him over to Government agents. At first Rozen was too frightened to talk, but he was finally prevailed upon to explain his absence. He described his captors and the places where they had secreted him, but who they were he was unable to say.

THE agents by this time had a strong suspicion as to who was behind the kidnaping, thanks to the alertness of the clerk at Washington. A picture of Mancuso was produced, and Rozen immediately identified it as that of the leader of the kidnapers. At last it was clear why Mancuso, when arrested, had been so eager to destroy the cablegrams. He was afraid they might involve him in the more serious offense of kidnaping Rozen, a crime which had not been discovered at the time of his arrest.

A raiding squad, accompanied by Rozen, suddenly descended upon Mancuso's Brooklyn apartment, where they found Mancuso and his wife hurriedly packing furniture in preparation for flight. Rozen identified Mancuso as leader of the kidnapers and Mrs. Mancuso as the woman who cooked for him and the gang during his captivity. He also identified Mancuso's Brooklyn apartment as the place where he was first held prisoner and tortured.

Additional arrests have since been made in Philadelphia and abroad. The dope-smuggling ring of which Mancuso was an important member has definitely been smashed, and many of the group, including Mancuso, face the possibility of life imprisonment for kidnaping and torturing Rozen.

Subjects in a sleep test at Colgate University, about to eat a bedtime lunch.

By DONALD A. LAIRD

Ph.D., Sci.D., Colgate University

FOOD for sleep? Certainly! Five months' steady investigation every night of the sleep of adults and of children has verified the popular notions and the scientific theories that some foods are bad for sleep.

The astonishing thing, however, was that the investigation, which was completed recently at Colgate University, showed that some foods help the quality of sleep just as greatly as others appear to harm it.

So science now can tell the troubled hostess what to serve her bridge guests as a midnight lunch without worrying that they may not sleep the remainder of the night. Or the average person, who is not a party-goer, can find from these studies made on other average people, who went to bed promptly at 10:30 each night, what he himself should watch in his eating that would help his sleep.

"Too hungry to sleep" is what people often say when they are going to bed later than usual. This may be more accurate than they suspect, for hunger pangs are a thief of good sleep. Anywhere from 6 per cent to 25 per cent of the bigger movements people make during sleep are caused by the stomach being hungry.

The average person moves from 10 to 12 times an hour while apparently sound asleep, although a few rare individuals move only six times an hour and a very few fidgety folk may move 24 times an hour during the night.

Some of these sleep movements are smallish ones, such as moving a hand a couple of inches or twisting the head slightly; these show themselves on the paper tape on the instrument for recording a sleeper's movements as little nicks and bends and jogs in an ink line drawn by a pen. When the person is sleeping soundly the inked line is straight and unbroken. When he turns his head, opens his mouth to talk in his sleep, or shifts a foot slightly, these jogs and nicks are automatically drawn by the sleep-movement-recording instrument.

A little more than half of the movements the typical person makes in his sleep are these small ones. But around five to seven times each hour the average sleeper turns over or threshes around in bed for a few seconds. These big movements are registered automatically by the pen, which draws large peaks and turns in the line, some of them two or three inches high.

These big sleep movements have been found to be due to hunger contractions of the stomach more than to any other one cause. As many as four or five of these large shifts of position the sleeper makes each hour are due to his being hungry.

IT IS an empty stomach which causes hunger pangs. When there is something in the stomach little ripples of contractions start at the liver end of the stomach and progress to the left end, like the little ripples on a pond when a stone is thrown in. These normal peristaltic ripples of the stomach keep its contents stirred up and help the chemical action of the digestive juices, just as stirring coffee helps dissolve the sugar in it.

About four to five hours after a meal, however, most of the food is out of the stomach and apparently a good healthy stomach does not relish the idea of being empty. So about every 15 or 20 minutes when it is empty these ripples disappear, and in their place is a peculiar tidal wave contraction from one end to the other.

This tidal wave is peculiar, since it starts at the left end of the stomach and heads toward the liver end. These violent contractions, which almost tie the stomach into a knot, reverse the usual direction of the stomach ripples in addition to being vastly more violent spasms.

That is what a hunger pang is like. So it is little wonder that they disturb people's sleep, although the diffuse autonomic nervous system serving our insides does not tell us directly what is exactly the matter inside. These hunger pangs, which take complete possession of the walls of an empty stomach four to five times an hour, are the greatest single cause of the big movements which show that one's sleep is being disturbed.

The practical application of delaying hunger pangs at least the first half of the night was tested in the five months' experiments. The only way to get rid of hunger pangs is to eat something so the stomach will no longer be empty. Just as soon as the stomach is empty it starts these strong reverse contractions, which are its language for saying it wants you to eat again.

So, on one-third of the test nights we had our adult sleepers eat a lunch of cornflakes and milk a few minutes before going to bed. They ate generous portions, because we wanted to be certain there was enough food in their stomachs to delay the otherwise inevitable hunger pangs for as long as possible.

Ordinarily they went to bed without eating anything after the evening meal. Usually their stomachs were empty and hunger pangs had started by the time they got into bed, as is the case with most persons. But when we gave them the big bowl of cornflakes and milk as a bedtime food the hunger pangs were delayed for at least the first half of the night's sleep. That this actually worked out to help sleep was shown when the inked record of sleep movements was tabulated from the tapes on the instrument.

During the first four hours of sleep the grown-ups moved 10 per cent less than average when they had eaten the bedtime snack. A light lunch at bedtime makes heavier sleep, in fact 10 per cent heavier, during the first part of the night.

Having something in the stomach also makes it easier to go to sleep, in addition to sounder sleep later. Every one has observed how the cat or dog curls up for a snooze after eating its meal. Human beings, too, feel drowsy and sleepy after eating, especially after a heavy Sunday dinner. Just what makes this after-meal drowsiness is not known definitely; it may be the increase in blood supplied to the stomach walls makes the brain anemic, and it may be for other reasons.

Those persons who have trouble going to sleep after they are in bed will likely find that eating a light but filling lunch before getting into bed will enable them to go to sleep sooner than usual, as well as making them sleep on the average 10 per cent sounder the first half of the night. When there is a serious disturbance that makes it difficult to go to sleep a bedtime lunch may not help, but, fortunately, most difficulty in going to sleep is due to hunger pangs rather than to anything especially serious, although the hunger pangs themselves, innocent as they are, may in the long run cause serious loss of sleep.

THEN consider those people who go to sleep promptly enough, but find they awaken at almost the same time in the middle of the night. A good, healthy hunger pang, tugging backward along the stomach walls, will awaken one at times just as less intense hunger pangs will make one shift his position in the bed without causing him to fully waken. The tick-tock that makes these human alarm clocks wake themselves up three or four hours before they want to is, as a rule, right in their stomachs.

While it would undoubtedly help many of those persons who wake during the night to eat something light, such as we used on our subjects, when they are awakened, it would probably be wiser for them to do their eating before they go to bed. It is, of course, much better for them to eat something and go promptly back to sleep, rather than toss around and worry about possibly acquiring insomnia. But if they start eating in the middle of the night they may soon become a slave to that habit, which would make it doubly certain for them to wake up. The rational thing is to eat generously of foods that are easily digested just before retiring to get better than average sleep and less likelihood of having hunger pangs the last part of the night that wake one up.

Although we just naturally feel drowsy and go to sleep more readily after filling up our stomach, we must be somewhat particular about what we load it up with if we want to have good sleep after a half hour or so. Any food in the stomach will keep hunger pangs from making their disturbing appearance. There are many foods, however, which might be called hard-to-digest foods, which might counteract hunger pangs but which add other troubles all of their own making. The joke books are full of stories about poor sleep and nightmares after eating welsh rarebit; we cannot tell whether this is true or not.

We do know definitely, as a result of experiments on both children and grown-ups, that fatty foods cause poor sleep in the long run, although it may be easier to go to sleep after eating them. Foods which have a tendency to ferment or cause gas in the intestines have also been found to make sleep worse.

ON ONE-THIRD of the nights of the five months of experiment our subjects ate a bedtime lunch of foods described in the preceding paragraph. The records show that they went to sleep just as rapidly as when they had the simple cereal and milk lunch. And, although hunger pangs were offset just as much by the hard-to-digest foods, still their sleep was worse than normal by 10 per cent, as shown by the sleep movement records for the first four hours of the night.

The part of the experiment with the bedtime dairy lunch showed that offsetting hunger pangs that way made sleep 10 per cent better, and the study of the hard-to-digest lunches showed that they caused gastric distress which made sleep worse by the same amount.

Light foods at bedtime for heavy sleep and heavy foods at bedtime if you really want light sleep. Depending upon what we take in our raid on the pantry and icebox around [illegible] night, we can sleep a total of [illegible] cent better if we choose wisely. [illegible] wisely, in this case, means lightly[illegible] can eat all we can hold if we want, but it should be some food that [illegible] light and not inclined to cause internal distress.

Eat the so-called hard-to-digest foods for their vitamins and minerals, but eat them during the daytime, [illegible] at night.

With children it is shown by experiments to be wise not to eat hard-to-digest foods at their evening meal. Young children less than [illegible] years old were studied. Children [illegible] this age, of course, go to bed shortly after they eat their evening meal. These normal children go to bed [illegible] their evening meal just about as quickly as the grown-ups went to [illegible] on their bedtime snack.

The children's sleep was found [illegible] be affected by foods just as [illegible] adults' sleep had been. They moved [illegible] least on those nights when their [illegible]per was made up mostly of a big [illegible] of corn flakes and milk with a [illegible] dessert, and they moved most when they had an evening meal of foods [illegible] would delay hunger pangs su[illegible] enough, but which unfortunately caused gastric distress.

An ELECTRIC TRAP that CAUGHT an EXTORTIONIST

How Federal Agents Outwitted 'Reds' Boyles, Who Tried to Victimize a Wealthy Manufacturer.

Odell Carlysle (Reds) Boyles.

ONE of a SERIES of DETECTIVE EXPLOITS by INVESTIGATORS of the UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT of JUSTICE

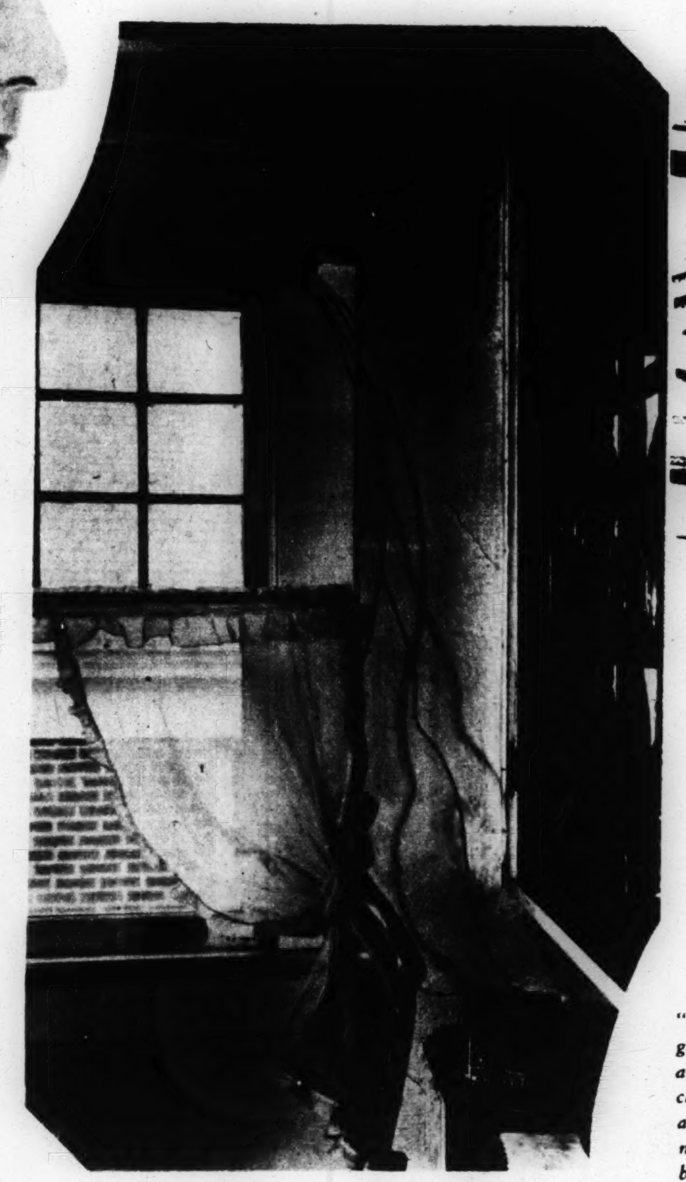
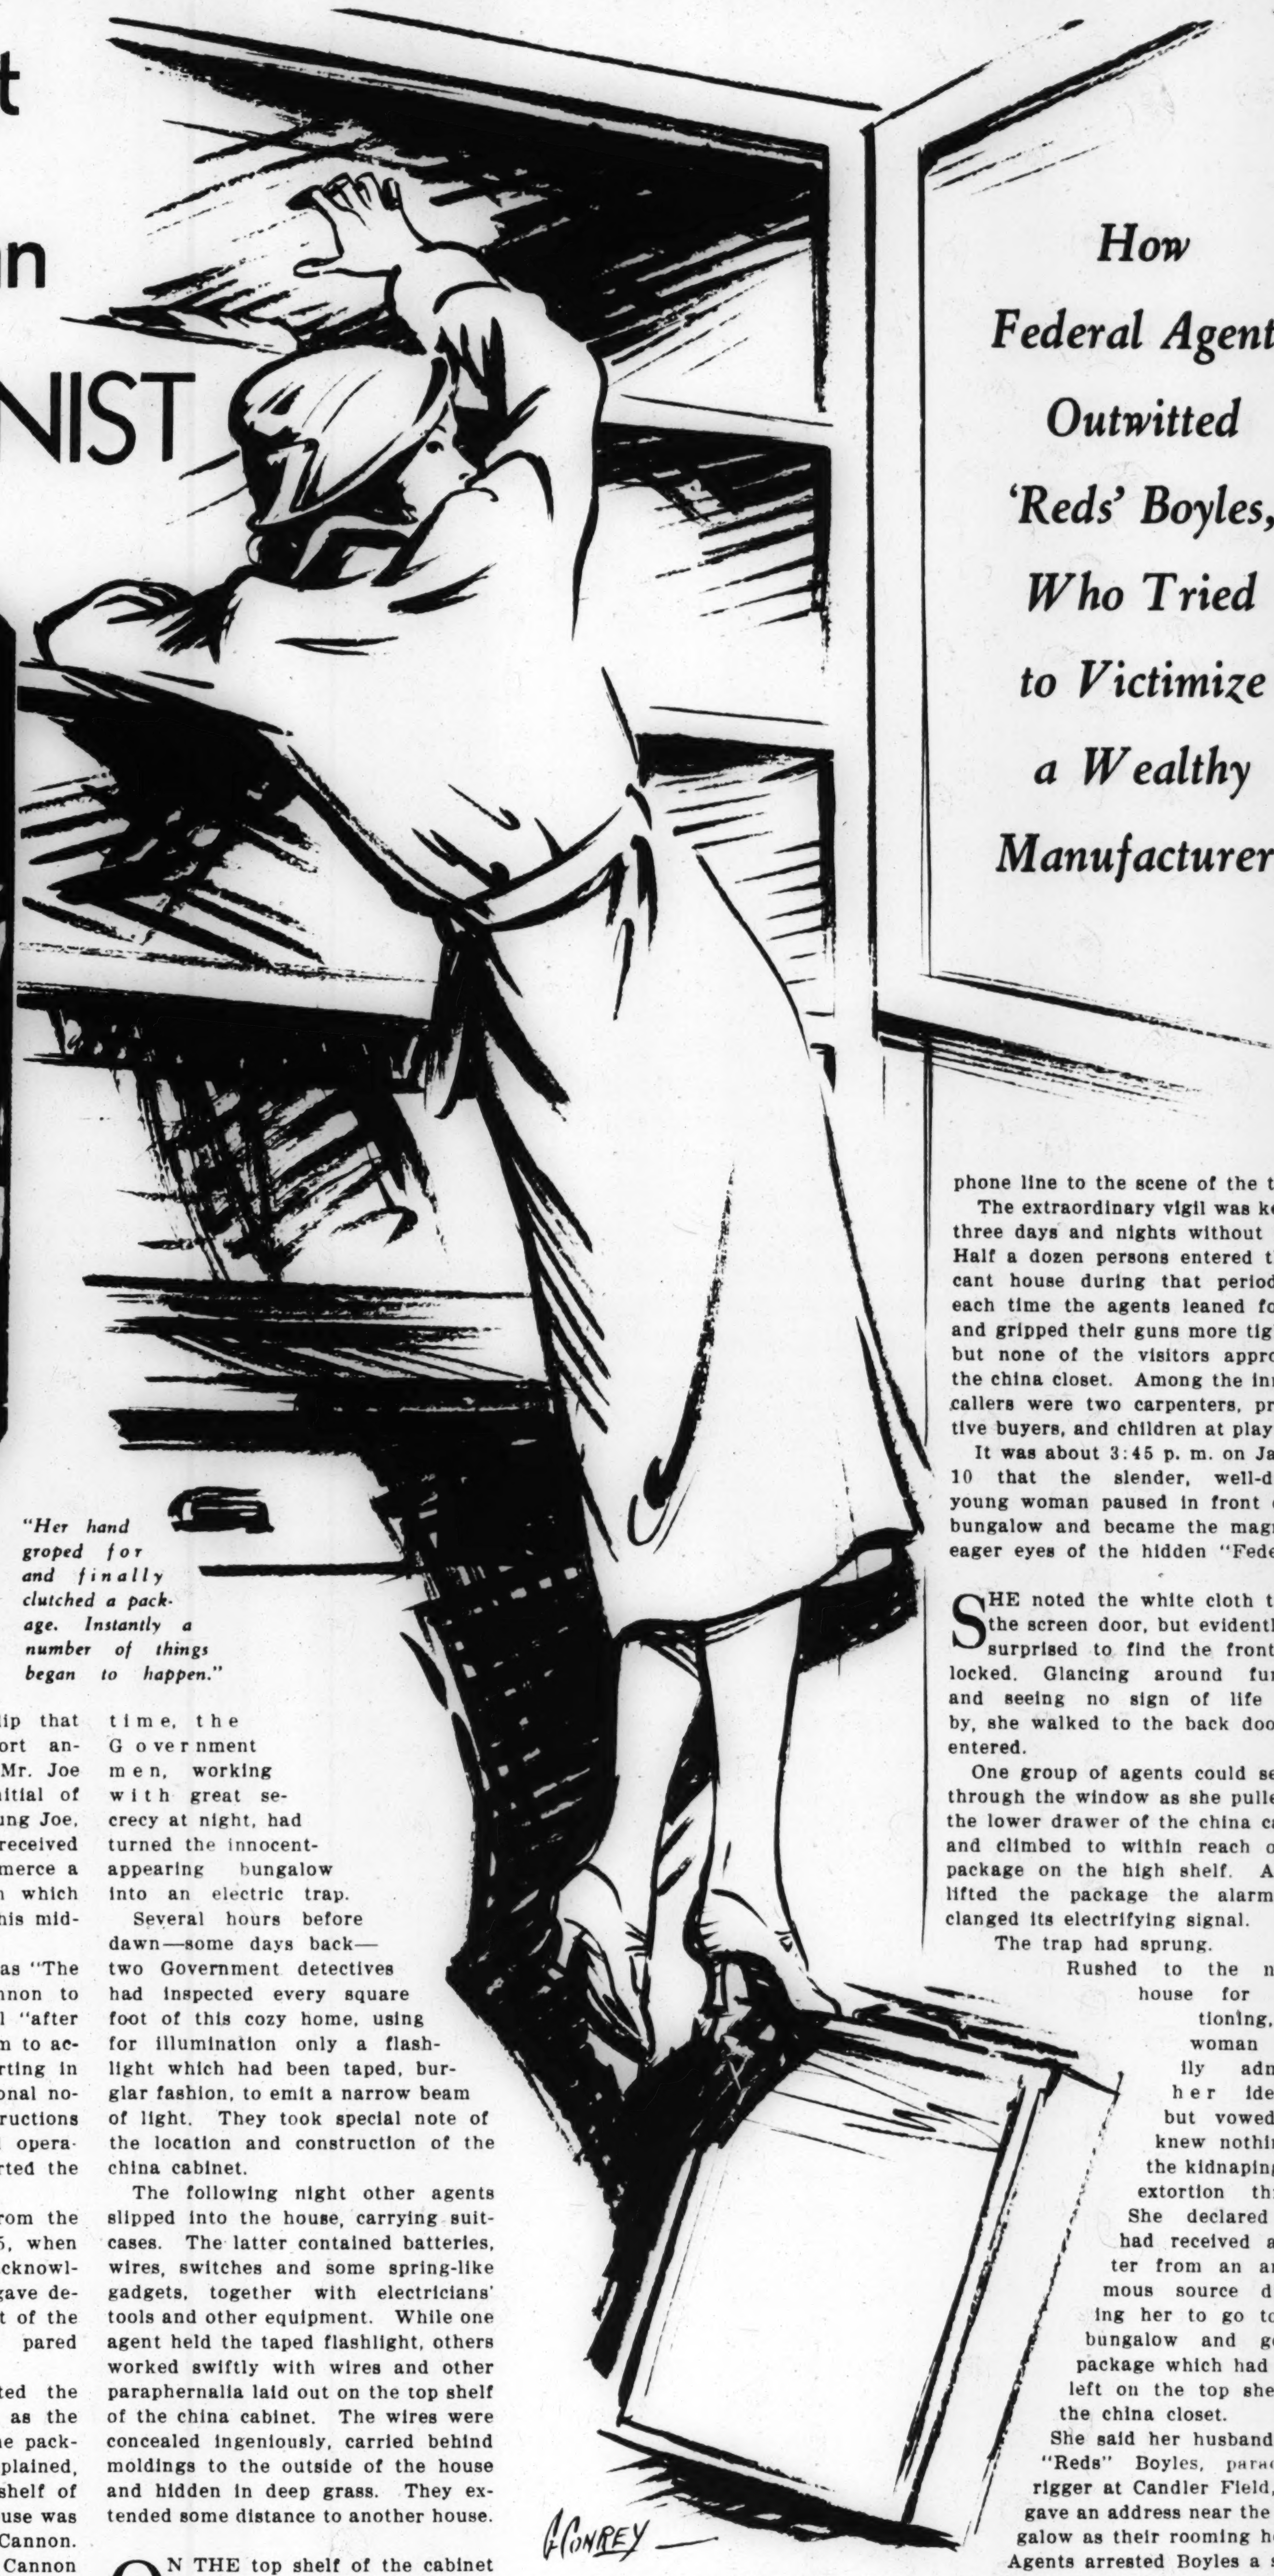
This is the third of a series dealing with the exploits of the Division of Investigation of the United States Department of Justice, written especially for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine from official records and information obtained from J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the division.



The alarm which sounded when the "ransom" package was removed.



"Her hand groped for and finally clutched a package. Instantly a number of things began to happen."

By REX COLLIER

THE slim young woman, fashionably dressed, hesitated a moment, saw that the street was deserted and then walked quickly to the front door of the vacant house.

The street was deserted—but a dozen pairs of eyes were watching the woman as she knocked at the door.

There was no answer to her knock. She tried the door, but it was locked.

Walking around to the rear, she turned the knob of the back door and pushed it open, as hidden eyes observed her every movement.

The young woman went direct to a built-in china cabinet. She pulled out a lower drawer and used it as a step ladder in order to reach into the top shelf of the cabinet.

Her hand groped for and finally clutched a package.

Instantly a number of things began to happen.

Armed men appeared and surrounded the house.

An automobile filled with more men, their guns ready for action, roared from a nearby hiding place and came to a stop in front of the cottage.

The woman rushed from the house and into the arms of two men who were running toward the back door.

The armed men who took shape seemingly out of thin air were special agents of the Division of Investigation, United States Department of Justice.

The woman was Mrs. Sue Zachary Boyles, wife of a parachute rigger at near Candler Airport, Atlanta, Georgia. Within half an hour her husband, Odell Carlysle (Reds) Boyles, also was in Federal custody. They were charged with "conspiracy to kidnap and extort," under the new "Lindbergh" law.

The intended victims of the alleged conspiracy were Joseph F. Cannon, wealthy manufacturer of Concord, North Carolina; his 18-year-old son, Joseph F. Cannon Jr., and his granddaughter, 2-year-old Ann Reynolds, daughter of Ann Cannon Reynolds and the late Z. Smith Reynolds of the tobacco family.

On November 1, 1932, Cannon had received through the mails a letter demanding "ransom" of $20,000 under threat of kidnaping little Ann Reynolds and young Joe Cannon. At first no attention was paid to the letters on the theory that it was the work of "just a crank." In a few days, however, another letter was received and after that another and another. The demands became more insistent. Cannon consulted the police of Charlotte, North Carolina. Several attempts were made to come in contact with the extortionists by following instructions given in the letters. A certain brick bungalow in Hapeville, Georgia, was designated in one of the communications as the payoff place. But the terrorists apparently were afraid to keep the rendezvous.

A letter was received which read, in part:

"You must think us dumb to fall into trap the law can set you. You should know by this time.

"I am doing this against the wishes of the other fellows. They are in favor of taking little Ann or Joe and then let you talk. And that will mean fifty grand sure and at once or we will send you one of their hands or feet. . . .

"Also don't be a damn fool with too much confidence in the law, for they are only trouble makers. . . How long would a car full of law last with two Thompsons spraying them in the face?

"I am giving you this last chance because I love kids."

The letter was signed, "The Four Musketeers."

BY THIS time the Cannon family was thoroughly alarmed. The son and grandchild were kept under constant guard. Police watched the Cannon home night and day. The threatening letters continued to come.

The case was referred to the Department of Justice on December 9, 1932, and the Division of Investigation assumed charge.

Agents of the Charlotte field office of the division were supplied with nearly a dozen threatening letters which had been mailed to Cannon. Some of the notes were printed in green ink, apparently with a fountain pen. A majority had come in envelopes bearing the postmark of a small suburb of Atlanta, near Candler Airport.

An agent was assigned to loiter around the airport for a day or so. He saw no suspicious persons, but he noted one fact that might be significant: green ink was used almost exclusively in the airport building.

From Cannon and from police who had worked on the case it was learned that a woman had entered the negotiations on two occasions. Once she had telephoned a representative of Cannon at an Atlanta hotel and later she had dictated by telephone to a telegraph office a message of instructions to be wired to Cannon's representative.

Examination of the letters showed that their author was quite familiar with conditions in the Cannon family. It was obvious he knew of Cannon's intense devotion to his son and granddaughter.

One letter contained a slip that pointed again to the airport angle. It was addressed to "Mr. Joe E. Cannon." The middle initial of father and son is "F.," but young Joe, an aviation enthusiast, had received from the Department of Commerce a temporary aviation license on which "E." was incorrectly used as his middle initial.

Several days before Christmas "The Four Musketeers" wrote Cannon to postpone all negotiations until "after the holidays," and directed him to acknowledge the letter by inserting in an Atlanta newspaper a "personal notice" stating that "further instructions are being awaited." Federal operatives, acting for Cannon, inserted the advertisement as directed.

Nothing more was heard from the "Musketeers" until January 5, when their final letter arrived. It acknowledged the advertisement and gave detailed instructions for payment of the "ransom"—which had been pared down to $12,000.

This letter again designated the brick bungalow in Hapeville as the place to leave the money. The package of currency, it was explained, should be placed on the top shelf of a built-in china closet. The house was unoccupied, the letter assured Cannon. After the package was placed, Cannon was advised, a white cloth should be tied to the screen door as a signal that all directions had been followed.

"We hope you had a nice Christmas and wish you many returns of the new year," the conspirators wrote in conclusion. The missive was signed, "The Four M."

The Federal investigators chuckled when they read the instructions in this letter. It seemed almost too good to be true that the "Musketeers" had chosen the vacant Hapeville house again.

In the almost forlorn hope that this house would be designated a second time, the Government men, working with great secrecy at night, had turned the innocent-appearing bungalow into an electric trap.

Several hours before dawn—some days back—two Government detectives had inspected every square foot of this cozy home, using for illumination only a flashlight which had been taped, burglar fashion, to emit a narrow beam of light. They took special note of the location and construction of the china cabinet.

The following night other agents slipped into the house, carrying suitcases. The latter contained batteries, wires, switches and some spring-like gadgets, together with electricians' tools and other equipment. While one agent held the taped flashlight, others worked swiftly with wires and other paraphernalia laid out on the top shelf of the china cabinet. The wires were concealed ingeniously, carried behind moldings to the outside of the house and hidden in deep grass. They extended some distance to another house.

ON THE top shelf of the cabinet only a tiny copper spring was visible to a person climbing up to the level of the shelf. The wires led from the spring to a dry cell battery and alarm bell in the other house.

Meanwhile, other Government experts were installing hidden searchlights about the grounds. At the throw of a switch these powerful lights would flood the house and surrounding territory with dazzling illumination, should it be necessary.

Direct telephonic communication was established between the Hapeville police headquarters and two hiding places arranged for the Federal men who were to watch the brick bungalow.

The brick bungalow in Hapeville, Georgia, where the trap was set. Federal agents were hidden in the adjoining house.

On January 7, in accordance with detailed directions, a representative of the Cannon family, accompanied by four Federal agents, drove to Atlanta. On the outskirts of the city the agents left the automobile and the Cannon representative drove on to a specified hotel and put up for the night.

The next day, following instructions, he drove slowly past the vacant bungalow in Hapeville, turned around and drove back to the house, parking across the street. He walked over to the house, bearing the fake ransom package in his left hand—as directed—entered the house and placed the package on the top shelf of the china closet. On leaving, he tied a piece of white cloth to the screen door.

Two groups of agents secreted themselves in the prearranged hiding places, from which they could watch the bungalow. One group was in the house where the bell of the alarm system had been installed and another group was in a nearby garage, seated in an automobile and ready to drive out on an instant's notice.

In an obscure place some distance away, another agent was assigned to scan all airplanes flying over the bungalow and, with the aid of binoculars, to note down identification numbers. License numbers of all automobiles whose movements were suspicious also were jotted down.

At police headquarters a Federal officer was stationed at the direct telephone line to the scene of the trap.

The extraordinary vigil was kept for three days and nights without result. Half a dozen persons entered the vacant house during that period, and each time the agents leaned forward and gripped their guns more tightly—but none of the visitors approached the china closet. Among the innocent callers were two carpenters, prospective buyers, and children at play.

It was about 3:45 p. m. on January 10 that the slender, well-dressed young woman paused in front of the bungalow and became the magnet of eager eyes of the hidden "Federals."

SHE noted the white cloth tied to the screen door, but evidently was surprised to find the front door locked. Glancing around furtively and seeing no sign of life nearby, she walked to the back door and entered.

One group of agents could see her through the window as she pulled out the lower drawer of the china cabinet and climbed to within reach of the package on the high shelf. As she lifted the package the alarm bell clanged its electrifying signal.

The trap had sprung.

Rushed to the nearby house for questioning, the woman readily admitted her identity, but vowed she knew nothing of the kidnaping and extortion threats. She declared she had received a letter from an anonymous source directing her to go to the bungalow and get a package which had been left on the top shelf of the china closet.

She said her husband was "Reds" Boyles, parachute rigger at Candler Field, and gave an address near the bungalow as their rooming house. Agents arrested Boyles a short while later, as he approached his home. He, too, denied knowledge of the extortion attempt.

But "Reds" Boyles had overlooked one little damning bit of evidence. Carelessly he had left an invisible fingerprint of his right index finger on one of the extortion letters. An alert fingerprint expert of the Hapeville Police Department had made it visible with the aid of a fine dusting powder.

Boyles' fingerprints were forwarded to J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Division of Investigation in Washington, for comparison with the print found on the threatening note. Within a few hours Director Hoover wired back that the print was Boyles' and that Federal records showed that Boyles was an ex-convict.

Confronted with these facts, Boyles made a complete confession. He said he alone had sent the threatening letters—14 in all. He had become acquainted with young Cannon while working at an airport in North Carolina, at which the youth kept his private plane. The kidnaping idea entered his mind at that time, he said.

Boyles and his wife were held for the Federal grand jury on a joint conspiracy charge. The grand jurors ignored the charge against Mrs. Boyles, but indicted her husband on three counts of mailing extortion letters.

Placed on trial June 12, 1933, Boyles was found guilty on all counts. Federal Judge Ackerman sentenced him to 15 years in prison.

TAKES DAUGHTER to COURT for 'CUT' o his own FORTUNE

Why the Pennsylvani Relief Dependent Is Seeking $10 Weekl From $80,000 'Spendthrift' Trust.

RELIEF BOARD

Thomas K. Litch, who had his daughter arrested for non-support.

By ELLWOOD DOUGLASS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

BROOKVILLE, Pa.

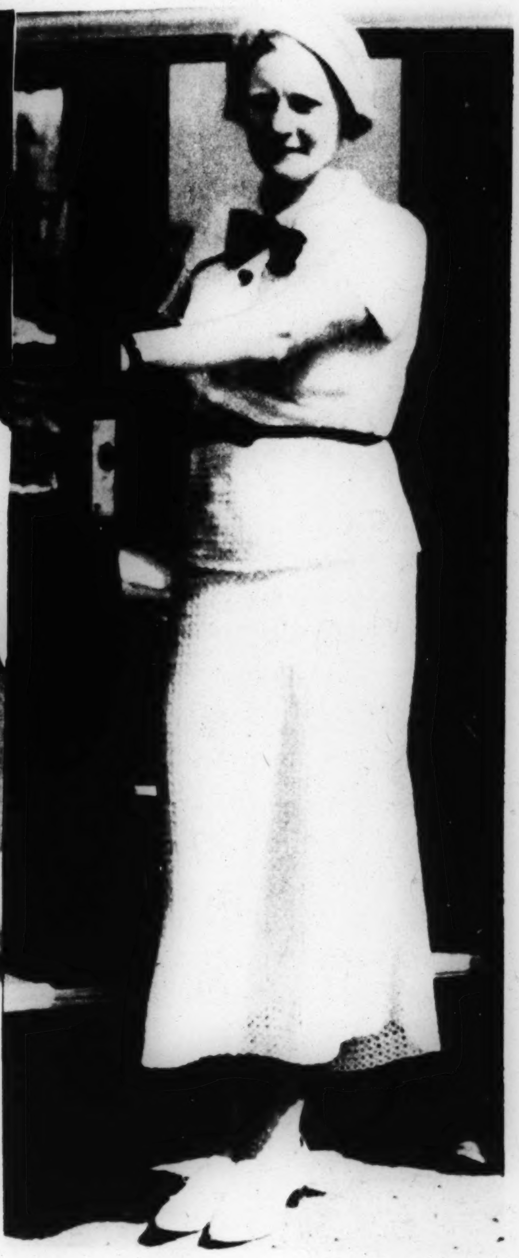
THOMAS K. LITCH, heir of one of the oldest and wealthiest families of this section, hopes soon to be able to cease his frequent visits to the large house that used to be his home, where now he obtains a $1.50 weekly food allowance from the County Relief Board.

He is possessor of a fortune of $70,000 to $80,000. It is so tied up in litigation that he obtains not a cent of it. But he made the first step toward regaining a part of the income a week or so ago when he had his daughter arrested for non-support under an old Pennsylvania law, and he has other plans afoot which, he says, may return the entire fortune to his hands, for the first time since 1919.

Meantime Litch, in old khaki shirt and trousers, haunts the poolroom and streets of Brookville, speaks reminiscently of old lawsuits and plans new ones for the future, and calls at least once a day at his former home, now the headquarters of the County Relief Board, where he still reserves a room for his collection of relics of various kinds, from old newspapers to a piece of a petrified tree.

It was an agent of the board who directed his attention to the old law under which he took action against his daughter, Josephine, who is 23 years old and just graduated from college. He hopes thereby to regain $10 of the $25 which she receives weekly from his estate. But that, he says, is only a temporary expedient.

"It's time I got something out of my own property," Litch told the writer, who found him watching a game of billiards, as usual, at the American Hotel. "I ought to have my cut. Don't you think so?"



Miss Josephine Litch, who may study law.

For some generations his family have been people of substance here and in other parts of the state. Banks, lumber mills, nearly every one of the older business concerns here has had a Litch at its head at one time or another. There are neighborhood stories of eccentricities in earlier members of the family—of a bachelor relative who kept sheep on the first floor of a big residence, of another who "lived like a hermit." But all of them have been powerful in the financial and community life.

Litch, who will be 50 years old this month, was orphaned in 1890. He lived with relatives. A small inheritance, divided with a sister, was put in trust for him. And then, 20 years ago, he fell heir to one-fourth of an estate of nearly half a million dollars.

On the advice of a local storekeeper, he put it in a "spendthrift trust." He insists he was not a spendthrift, and created the trust only because he knew nothing of business matters, and didn't want to be bothered with them.

In fact, he has testified under oath that, rather than a spendthrift, he was "a wise investor." He said, also under oath, that he did not drink, smoke, "chew" or swear.

On the other hand, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, in a formal opinion in the same case, declared that the testimony showed "he never followed any reputable occupation or made any honest effort to support his family or himself . . . a gambler, spendthrift, loafer and libertine."

Whether "wise investor" or spendthrift—et cetera—Litch directed that $25 a week be paid to his daughter. Four years later, or in 1919, he found that a trust in his own name did not afford the protection he desired. He "sold" the estate to an aunt, Mrs. Blanche Litch, in consideration of and she sold it back to the trust company for $10. The income went Litch as before, and the aunt continued the payments to Josephine, which Litch himself now desires share.

The first big bite came out of come when his estranged wife, Amelia Monoyer Litch, obtained court order for $125 a month. has been cut to $65 and lately $40.

It was in reversing the lower court which had given him a divorce decree on grounds of desertion, that the Supreme Court characterized him so outspokenly. True enough, there was testimony, in the depositions in the case, of many women and many dice games. Mrs. Litch testified she had not lived with him as his wife years.

"DICE never cost me anything to speak of," he says. lost as much as $300 in game, but I won as much, and the end I broke about even. never shot craps in a gambling house in my life—just in games with lows I knew, at my home or one theirs.

"How could I squander any of The principal has always been tied All I could ever spend was the interest. After all, it was my own money. Maybe I did like the ladies, but can't hate a man for that."

He tells of another $40 a month slice out of the income for the support of three children in Du Bois. That "cut," with a similar amount Mrs. Litch and $25 a week to Miss Litch, leaves him nothing. His current attorneys—he has engaged many at various stages of his litigious career—are preparing an attempt to dissolve the trust, on the ground the transfer to his aunt was not valid. Then, he says, he plans to invest Government bonds and possibly annuity insurance to yield an income of little more than $200 a month.

That's hardly enough for high living, but, he says, under the state law his wife then can take no more than a third of his income. The payments for the children in Du Bois will continue, and he says he will continue voluntarily to support Miss Litch. But at any rate, the income will go to him to distribute, with a little left over for himself.

"Tom's never quite happy out court," says an acquaintance. And his daughter has been considering the study of law.

Blue Penciling the $500,000,000 National Sucker List

Federal Commission Reports Progress Against Modern Shell Games—But There's Still 'One Every Minute.'

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

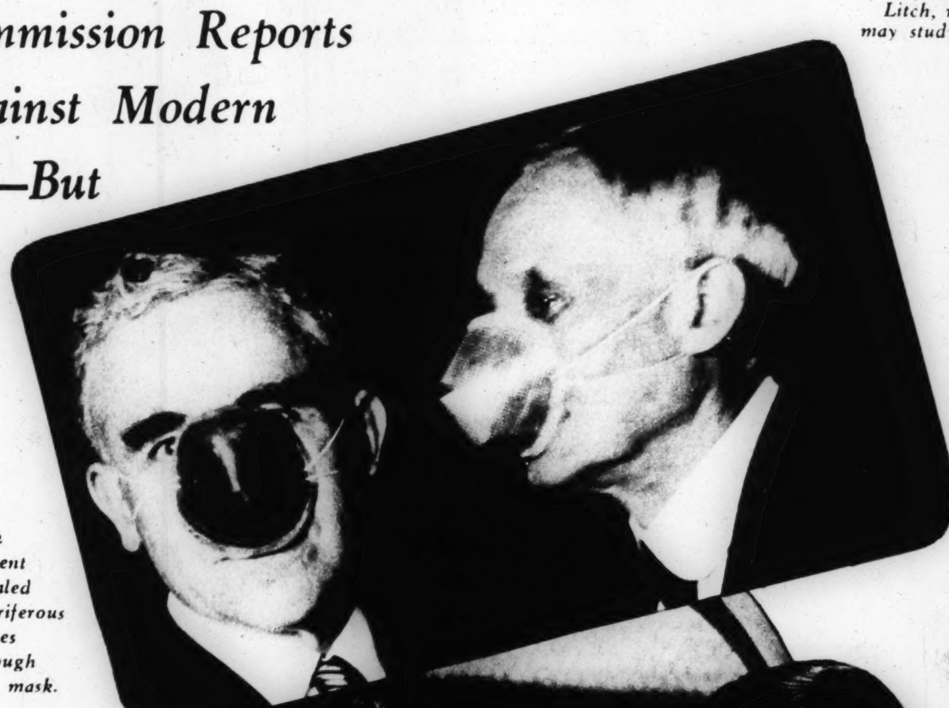
WASHINGTON.

THE Federal Trade Commission has never had any reason to think Barnum was wrong. The instincts which make human beings seem to enjoy being fooled are as active and flourishing today as they were when that famous circus impresario cheerily estimated. "There's a sucker born every minute." Not only does the public still like to be fooled by every new dodge and by a good many that have gray whiskers, but it seems also to be willing to pay well for the privilege. In fact the citizens of this country are willing to subscribe about half as much to be on the sucker list as they pay for the education of their children. Perhaps that will be a slight encouragement for those who think the list is too long and are trying to do something about pruning it.

The sum expended annually on the joys of being mulcted by business tricksters is staggering. The Federal Trade Commission estimates it at $500,000,000—and that figure doesn't take in losses on the stock market or the grain exchange. Gullibility, it appears, is one of America's largest natural resources, and those who stand ready to exploit it are doubtless as numerous and as avid as those who have moiled for gold and tried to corner the wheat market.

Knowing this to be the case and willing to face the facts implied in the Barnum theory, the Government is nevertheless setting out to crack down harder than ever on the gentle grafter. According to E. J. Adams, who heads the Federal Trade Commission's special board to investigate the activities of fiction merchants and fly-by-nights on the domestic market, the Government is already able to show progress in this campaign. Its immediate objectives are the curbing of misleading and false advertisements, the end of the unethical mail order racket, the reduction of the number of useless and harmful products on the market and the debunking of all kinds of phony panaceas.

Adams has become extremely familiar with the many ways whereby consumers are fleeced, for his board of investigation is allied with the Food and Drug Administration, the Post Office Department, the Public Health Service, the American Medical Association and the Bureau of Standards. All these have long attempted to protect the public against business and manufacturing cheats. Now they are organized to do the most zealous rat extermination that has yet been undertaken. Yet they know that their opponent is a hydra-headed monster—that every crook that goes down can be replaced.



The patient inhaled odoriferous fumes through the mask.

The merchants and manufacturers who earn a large part of the consumer's wealth by selling him mis-labeled poisons and useless pink pills are a very canny lot. They know how to point their advertising where it will find personal foibles and vanities.

WHEN the slender figure became fashionable, for instance, they flooded the market with reducing creams. Now that curves are back in favor they are selling the same creams for opposite uses. According to Adams, it is usually asserted that such creams "will round out and firm up flabby parts, fill in shrunken places, make skinny folks plump. . . . Medical science tells us that nothing applied externally will feed flesh or build up tissue.

"So far as fat reducers are concerned," Adams goes on, "preparations for internal consumption intended to reduce weight and fat are too often either dangerous or impotent. If these products contain enough of the required drug effectively to burn up fat, they may ultimately result in the cremation of the user. And if they don't contain enough, they will be useless. Aside from powerful and dangerous drugs, the only competent reducing method that is known is limited and proper diet combined with plenty of excercise."

Of course there are some vendors of sucker bait (as befuddled as their customers) who are genuinely impressed by their own claims. Adams recalls one such promoter, who was recently called before the Federal Trade Commission for questioning. His device was a mechanized version of the Coue system. It was a gramophone so designed that it would repeat phrases ("I am going to get rich," "I am going to be healthy") at intervals through the night. This man seemed deeply offended when the board questioned the value of his brain child.

A "freckle remover" which might or might not affect freckles but, the Federal Trade Commission held, was likely to affect health.

But other fake vendors are not so ingenuous. Some patent medicine makers, for example, advertise cures for epilepsy, diabetes, deafness, dandruff, baldness, cancer, and a hundred other ailments—some of them incurable. One of the most absurd frauds was a mask, to be saturated with odoriferous compounds, which was supposed to cure tuberculosis and rheumatism.

But if some of the patent medicine rackets are destructive and unethical, they are no more so than some in the "beautician's" field. Beauty racketeers specialize in appeals to the timid, the diffident and the self-conscious. Preparations intended to smooth out wrinkles, grow, dye or straighten hair, bleach skin, brighten eyes, sweeten breaths and eliminate perspiration odors are frequently as dangerous as they are useless. Concerning certain hair dyes and other cosmetics, Adams declares their users frequently lose health, sanity and even life by the poisons they get into their systems.

Adams cites one faker who earned a living by selling his sucker list after he had saturated the gullible with his own products. Fortunately legitimate business is gradually awakening to the dangers of such competition and assisting in the eradication of the fraudulent. But even the most zealous workers in the war on misrepresentation will freely admit that complete elimination of the quack is as impossible as complete elimination of the sucker who consumes his products. The birth rate of fools is as high as it was when Barnum turned statistician.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

RUTH BAILEY PROSSER
NELLY MENDHAM
DORIS DUKE

She Has Won So Many Tennis Titles She Can't Remember Them All

RUTH BAILEY PROSSER played in three tournaments this summer, won them all and proved again that she plays a better brand of tennis than any other woman on American municipal courts. But it wasn't a big summer for her. During her most active seasons Mrs. Prosser has entered as many as nine major tournaments and come away with one or two cups from nearly all of them. She doesn't know how many titles she has held, has no idea how many trophies she has deposited at one time or another in her mother's little house at [illegible] Maple avenue. If anyone should take the trouble to figure that out for her she'd be mildly interested to know—but she would probably forget again, for she sees her victories very small and is more concerned with her future.

Mrs. Prosser (her husband is a young salesman) is probably St. Louis' most distinguished tennis player, maybe the finest this city, which also produced the Davis Cup, has yet turned out. Seven years ago, when only 17 years old, she ranked ninth among girl players in the country on the United States Lawn Tennis Association's list. During the years she competed she has consistently headed the Municipal Tennis Association's rankings. Yet, while she hasn't disappointed those who foresaw a brilliant career for her as a girl, she has really never had a chance to show her mettle in national play.

In 1927 Ted Drewes (veteran champion of men's muny tennis) sized her up thus: "Ruth has that instinctive sense of direction which is so noticeable in all great players. . . . She has natural qualifications which should make her the greatest woman player St. Louis has ever had." That was long before her game had reached anything like its present maturity.

But even then Ruth Bailey had played championship tennis for two years; she won the women's singles title (as well as the girls') in Webster Groves at 15. And at that time her game was only a year and a half old and she was a swarthy little girl with bangs hiding her forehead and brown hair framing her cheeks; she took tennis seriously from the start.

Now, at 24, Mrs. Prosser is a slender, well-dressed sportswoman. She walks with clipped, tennis-player steps. Her tanned face is a bit on the gaunt side and photographs badly (she is really quite pretty); she has a reluctant smile and speaks terse phrases. On the tennis court she is a Spartan, giving no clew to her intentions or her reactions to the way the game is going. Secretly, her mother will tell you, she enjoys her championship publicity, but she loathes interviews—or even discussing tennis; says the game belongs on the court and should be kept out of the living room.

Mrs. Prosser has always kept informed about what is happening in the spotlight at Wimbledon and Forest Hills. Her childhood clippings show a good deal about how she molded her form; certain critical remarks about Lenglen, Lacoste, Cochet and Helen Wills Moody (apparently her favorites) are heavily underscored. She quotes from them unconsciously if coerced into discussing her game, but she is very reticent. "Concentrated practice is all I have to recommend," she will say; "that and new balls. Without those two things you can't get accuracy." Her game features extreme accuracy of placements, great steadiness. It is conservative and seldom brilliant. She doesn't plan tactics till the game has begun.

MRS. PROSSER is now working in the sportswear section of a department store. She gets off before 4 o'clock and has about an hour a day for practice; she thinks that enough for a mature player. But she feels that rules keeping tennis largely an amateur game are unfair to players without independent means—and have been unfair to her career. She herself had a private court to learn on and she knows that tournament skill can't develop without coaches, new balls and several hours a day on the court. Tournament play is impossible without freedom to travel a lot. She loves tournaments, and regrets that there isn't any way to get enough of them. She isn't well enough known to turn professional.

Nevertheless, she has seen considerable tournament play. Her real career (sketched briefly here) began with a lost match in the Missouri Valley championships at Kansas City. Dissatisfied with her form, she retired from play at 16 to do nothing but rigorous practicing—no games, much less tournaments, for a year.

UP TO the middle of the 1930 season she had collected such titles as the St. Louis Municipal and the St. Louis District (several times), the New York State junior, the Missouri, Texas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Michigan state championships; the Southern, Western and Middle-Western district championships, and so on. The Middle-Western tournament at Omaha was the hardest she ever played. In the finals she and Mae Courvost of Wichita, Kansas, fought it out for three hours in 109-degree weather; it was dusk when they finished, the ball having been returned 50 times in many of the rallies.

At the climax of that summer she went East to play in some big national meets. She was then a student at the University of Texas, intending to go into newspaper work. After some success in invitation matches at Seabright, New Jersey, and Easthampton, Long Island, she went to Forest Hills for the national women's tournament. It was the anti-climax of her tennis career. For she found she had been financed inadequately and also the matter of entering her in the tournament had been neglected. She was momentarily stranded. A sister living in New York rescued her and sent her to Europe for two years' study in the Sorbonne, at the University of Paris.

She came back in 1932 after learning much French and little tennis. (Although she had been a member of the Paris Tennis Club, she had played comparatively little.) Since then she has won some fairly important matches, including two national public parks championships. She was secretly married to Robert Prosser last summer. They didn't announce it until the tennis season was over because she was entered in tournaments as Ruth Bailey. Her husband isn't a tennis star, but he plays a respectable game; they sometimes team up in mixed doubles.

Mrs. Prosser has considered a try at teaching tennis, but it would end her amateur standing and she wavers. Meanwhile, her ambition is to become a good figure skater this winter. She probably will.

Nelly Mendham.

Staging Spectacular Dramas Is the Specialty of This Quiet School Teacher

NELLY MENDHAM is an energetic person. But one wouldn't suspect her of kinship with the drama. She has the soft-spoken manners of a certain type of educator—nothing of the supposedly hard-boiled, temperamental furor of the theatrical director.

Yet the stage has been her whole life and those whom she has directed say that the nervous intensity she displays during rehearsals is something awe-inspiring. She likes to act, too, and once portrayed a hunchback crone so vividly that some of the audience were almost ill; they have never forgotten it. Her keen absorption in the theater kept her busy even while she was vacationing at her aunt's home in Kirkwood, for there she spent every available minute, it seems, going through musical scores, reading manuscripts, sketching stage sets in blunt pencil and envisioning tableaux. In her portfolio when she left St. Louis were plans for two new productions she hopes to see on the boards this winter.

Miss Mendham is head of the Drama Department at the University of Idaho's southern branch, in Pocatello. It is there she hopes to stage Erich Wolfgang Korngold's "The Snowman" and Manuel de Falla's "Master Peter's Puppet Show." She has revised them into the form of ballet pantomimes.

Last year she did a Christmas production—a spectacle—with a cast of 200, elaborate lighting effects, a sumptuous array of costumes. And it played to a packed house during all three performances of its schedule. The entire show was Miss Mendham's conception. It involved tableaux designed after famous Renaissance paintings, a stage set representing the interior of a cathedral, accurate costuming and some fantastic peasant dress. To put it on Miss Mendham harnessed all the talent available in Pocatello and whipped up such enthusiasm that almost the entire student body of 1500 clamored for places in the cast. Hundreds came to see it, some from miles away.

NELLY MENDHAM is a small woman. Her dramatic enthusiasm runs in the family. The uncle who cared for her at the death of her parents, though not a theatrical person, had a surplus of such emotions. He was a railroad engineer and everyone who knew him called him Uncle Joe. They still tell how, during the movie production of "Ben Hur," he stood on his seat and cheered the horses.

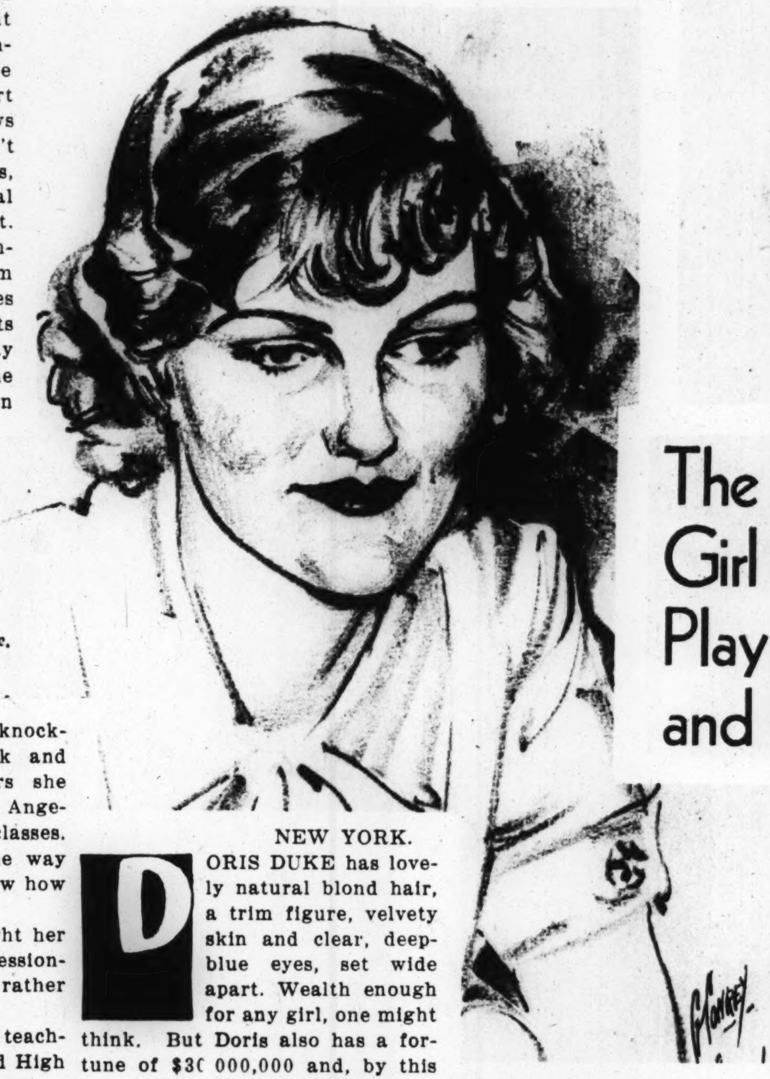
Miss Mendham got her first impulse to study the drama while a student at Central College, in Lexington, Missouri. Later she transferred to Washington University, then to the University of Wisconsin, to Chicago University and finally to the Inter-Theater Arts School in New York. She never took a degree, but feels now she might have had easier sledding in the teaching profession if she had something to tack onto her name. Actually, she says, she learned more about the theater by "knocking around" in New York and Europe and from teachers she knew in Chicago and Los Angeles than she has in formal classes. But there is nothing in the way of a conventional tag to show how much she has studied.

Her career has not brought her much contact with the professional stage, for which she has rather mixed feelings.

She spent about 10 years teaching English at the Kirkwood High School. She managed the dramatic efforts of the students there and nurtured the germinating Community Players in the suburb.

Mostly Miss Mendham is interested in pantomime and dramatic readings of poetry, though she has put on many other sorts of plays. She is always trying out new methods and effects. Her productions in pantomime of such dramas as Maeterlinck's "Sister Beatrice," Martinez Sierra's "Holy Night," Hauptmann's "Sunken Bell," have involved much ballet and spectacle technique. She used some of Max Reinhardt's methods in "The Miracle," for her own spectacle, "The Angels' Song." She imitated the sensationally successful methods of Balieff's "Chauve Souris" in producing Debussy's fairy tale ballet, "The Toy Box." And there was a distinct effort to copy the Imperial Russian Ballet in her production of Jaubert's "Little Red Riding Hood."

But Miss Mendham is not above directing a Girl Scout style show or a nursery school pageant. They say she does them very well.



Doris Duke.

The World's Richest Girl Doesn't Smoke, Plays the Accordion and Dotes on Ravioli

NEW YORK.

DORIS DUKE has lovely natural blond hair, a trim figure, velvety skin and clear, deep-blue eyes, set wide apart. Wealth enough for any girl, one might think. But Doris also has a fortune of $30 000,000 and, by this token, is the world's richest girl. Her late father, James B. Duke, the tobacco king, willed her a large chunk of his immense estate and her mother, Mrs. Nanaline Duke, acting as guardian, ran it up to its present rating. When Doris turned 21 last year she got one-third of her inheritance. She will get another third when she becomes 25 and the remainder when she is 30. Ever and anon an interest item of $100,000 or more splashes into the coffer like a pixie's tear into the ocean.

All this bothers Doris little, except for the crank letters and kidnap threats it brings. She manages to keep out of the public eye fairly well, considering her position. She likes movies and goes a lot, wearing smoked glasses until seated obscurely inside. On brisk days she dons the dark spectacles and strides alone in the fifties and sixties, or up Park or Fifth avenue. Usually, her Duesenberg town car trails at a respectable distance, with a detective sitting beside the chauffeur and perhaps a chaperon in the back seat.

People discover her identity when she travels, so she jumps from one part of the world to another. The stares annoy her. If her mother can't go along, Walker Inman, her half-brother, acts as escort. Doris likes gay spots. But a night club will do, if Monte Carlo isn't handy.

SHE is noted for her temperance in the younger set. She never smokes and always stops after the second cocktail. Unlike the girls she goes around with, she doesn't bring a dog on a leash into a restaurant and park it in the checkroom. Although inclined to thinness, she refuses to take calories and vitamins seriously. Her favorite lunch is creamed chicken. Ravioli is a passion with her and large baked potatoes a staple item of diet. Blue is her favorite color. Matches her eyes. She has her own Bellanca plane, with a Wasp motor, and uses it steadily, but is not a pilot. She likes to shop in Paris, where people don't gape at her, and she drives a hard bargain. Her bridge is terrible and she loses small sums regularly. She is five feet eight inches tall and she plays the accordion.

As a baby, Doris had a $250 gocart, and when she was 14 her father bought her a private railroad car named Doris. She has always worn real pearls. All this made her a trifle timid and shrinking for a long time, but she is getting over that now. She owns the Duke home at 1 East Seventy-eighth street. It looks like a public library and is full of art treasures. She also owns the Duke Farms, Somerville, New Jersey; Rough Point, a towering, Tudor-like castle at Newport; a big estate in Charlotte, North Carolina, and a small place at Antibes. If she wants, she can jump into a mortar-board and gown and march with the trustees at Duke University. She is on the board. Once when she was entering Mexico the customs officials scrutinized her credentials sharply and demanded all sorts of information. They explained that they didn't want anybody entering Mexico who might become a public charge.

Several years ago there was a rumor that she was engaged to marry State Senator Elmer F. Quinn, a Tammanyite. "My daughter never met Mr. Quinn," Mrs. Duke said icily at the gray-stone mansion in East Seventy-eighth street. "I never heard of Miss Duke," was Quinn's comment at his modest Grove street home. The Quinns weren't speaking to the Dukes, either.

STIFF, SORE MUSCLES

Burst those chains with "Ben-Gay"... it penetrates deep, fast!

"Ben-Gay," the original Baume Analgesique, is a sure, quick, deadly enemy of pain. At the first twinge, rub it on the aching parts. It goes through skin, flesh, muscle to the very spot of the pain. It stays there until the pain disappears. "Ben-Gay" has a hyposensitizing (pain-relieving) action never equaled by any of its many imitators. So, if you want sure relief, insist on the box with the red "Ben-Gay."

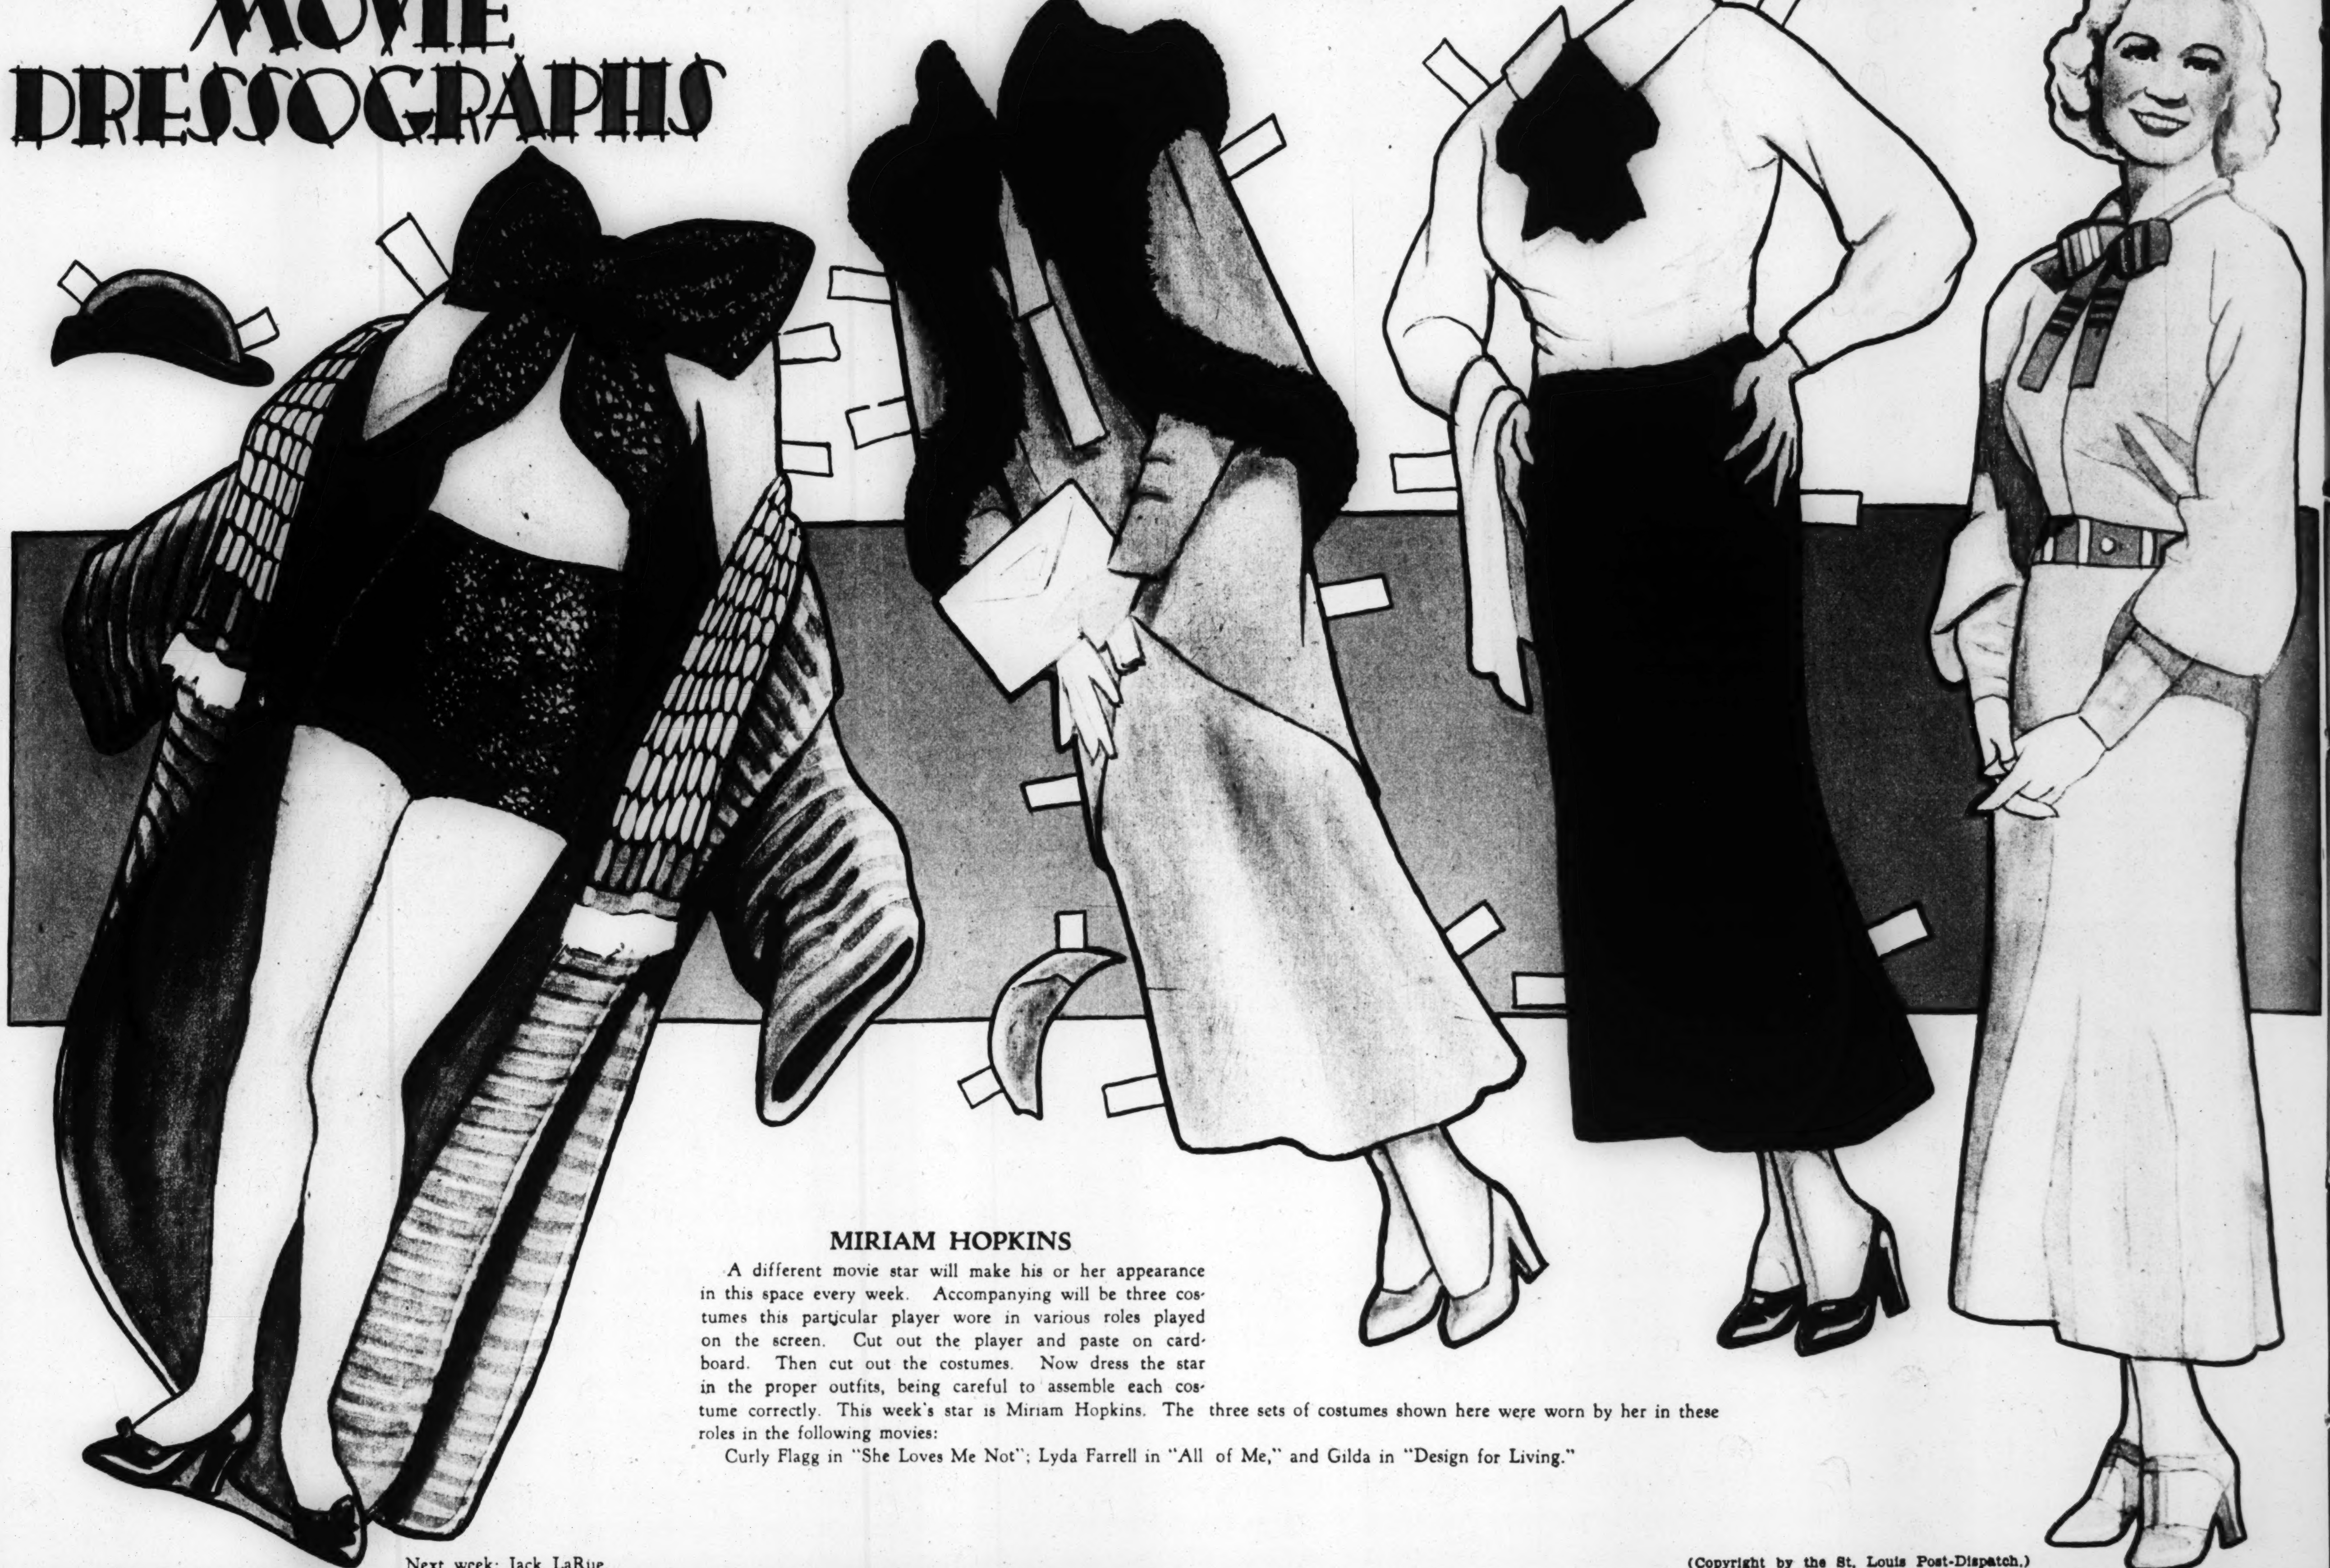
MOVIE DRESSOGRAPHS



MIRIAM HOPKINS

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly. This week's star is Miriam Hopkins. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by her in these roles in the following movies:

Curly Flagg in "She Loves Me Not"; Lyda Farrell in "All of Me," and Gilda in "Design for Living."

Next week: Jack LaRue.

HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN

SAFE IN JAIL

THE CHARACTERS

O. HUM—A badly frightened opossum.
BOB BARKER—A hunting hound.
RED WILY—A wicked old fox.

O. Hum has often heard the hunting cry of Bob Barker, but tonight is the first time he has had the terrifying experience of hearing it directly behind him. Now most opossums would climb a tree if a hound chased them, but O. Hum is too badly frightened to think of this, so we see him running for dear life as

THE PLAY BEGINS

O. HUM—G-g-gosh, this is terrible. Just listen to that hound howl. Puff, puff, what will I do? Puff, puff, I can't run like this all night. (A few minutes later we find him leaning up against a tree, completely exhausted.)

O. HUM—Puff, puff, puff. I can't run any farther. Puff, puff. I'll just have to let him catch me. (And so a very dejected opossum awaits the oncoming hound. Suddenly his face brightens and his eyes open wide.)

O. HUM—Puff, puff. I've got an idea. I'll fool that old hound yet. (With that he turns and runs away, and we next see him standing in front of the jail talking to Red Wily, who is inside.)

O. HUM—Puff, puff. I ran all the way to let you out because I heard the folks say they were coming down to tar and feather you, and I couldn't bear the thought of it. So the moment I open the door you run like everything. (O. Hum opens the door and the moment Red is out O. Hum dashes in and holds the door shut. It doesn't take Red long to see that he has been tricked, because he is hardly out when Bob Barker comes baying over the hill. Red can't get back in jail, so he has to run.)

O. HUM—(Looking out of jail.) Ha! ha! Jails are funny things. We put some people in jail so folks outside will be safe, but this time someone was put outside of jail so someone else could go in jail and be safe. Ha! ha!

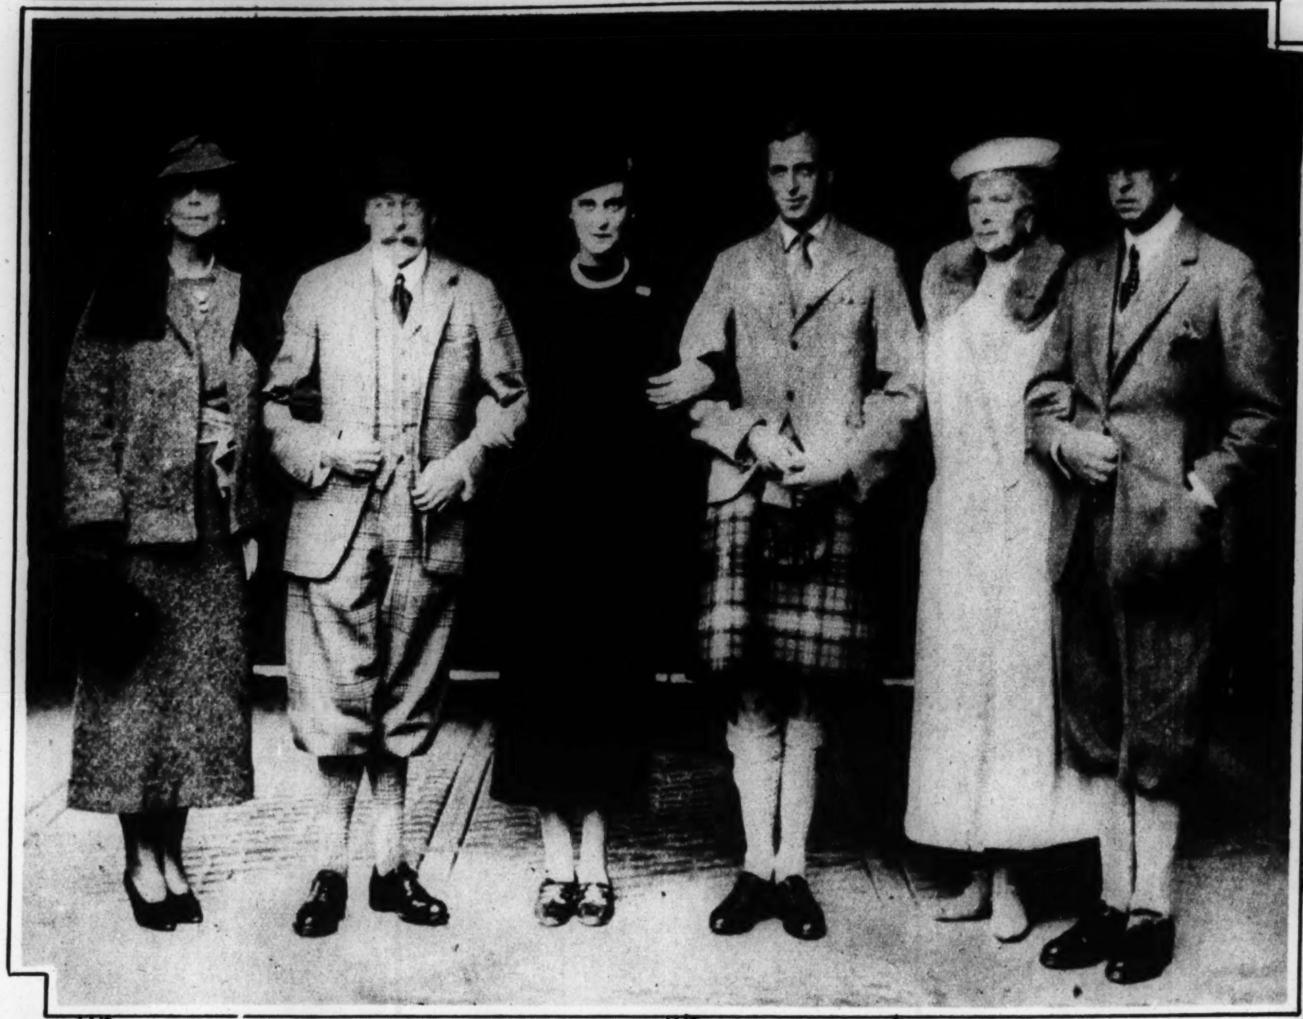
THANKSGIVING IN BUCHAREST—A glimpse of the pageant which celebrated a bumper fruit crop; many of the participants were dressed in traditional Rumanian peasant costumes as they bore huge panniers through the capital's streets.



ROYALTY ON VACATION
The royal families of England and Greece, soon to be united by the marriage of Prince George and Princess Marina, shown during an informal holiday at Balmoral Castle, Scotland. Prince Nicholas and Princess Helen of Greece, parents of the bride, are at extreme right and left; the prospective bride and groom, in the center.

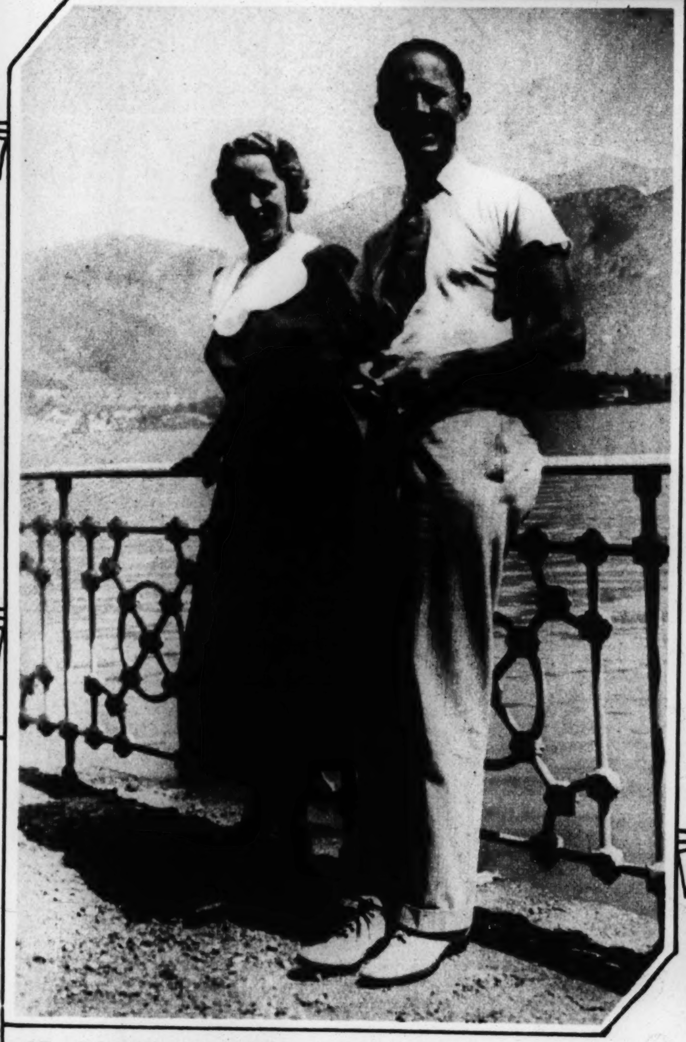
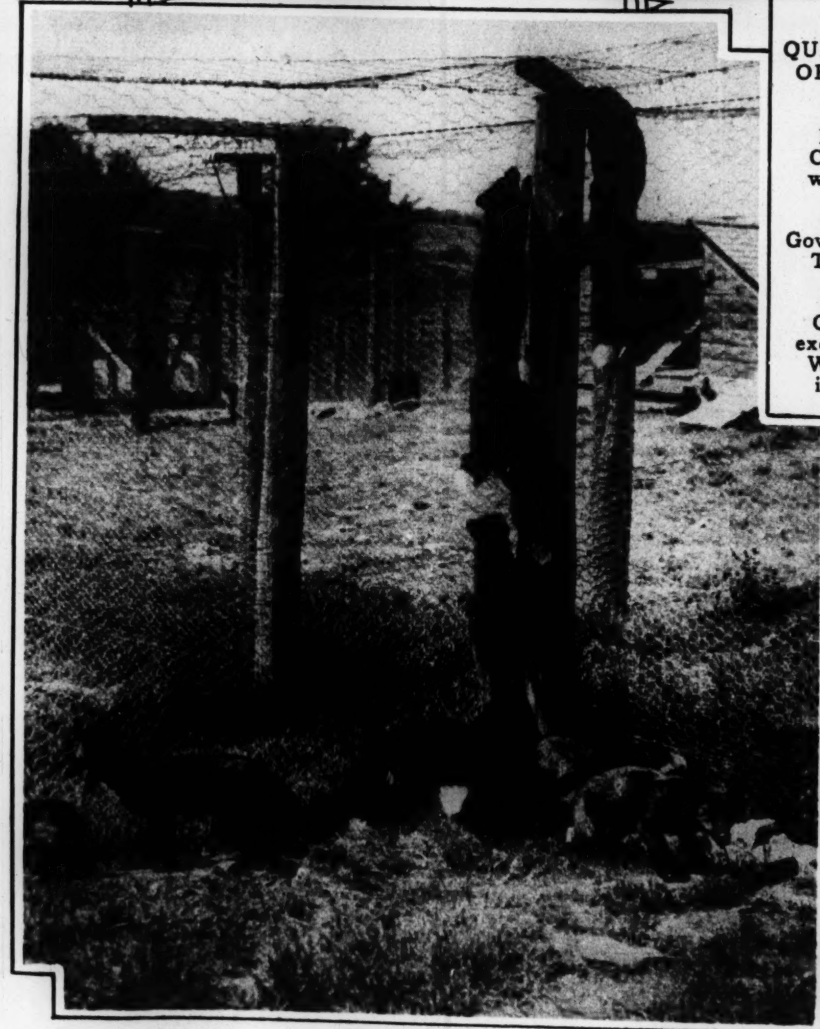
THE QUEEN PEACH OF GEORGIA
Miss Josephine Bowling of College Park won the title and was crowned by Governor Eugene Talmadge of her state during the Georgia day exercises at the World's Fair in Chicago.



ST. LOUIS PIANISTS ABROAD—Corinne Frederick and Willard MacGregor, both prominent in musical circles here, and elsewhere, shown at Tremezzo, Italy, where they attended master classes this summer under Artur Schnabel, the famous German teacher and performer.

KNOWS A NEW TRICK OR TWO—Crow, a black chow, said by his owner Mrs. W. J. Mack of Burlingame, Cal., to be the oldest registered dog in America, recently became deaf and had to learn to obey hand signals. He is still a contestant in dog shows, though he'll be 21 in May.



TIME TO BE JITTERY—It is harvest time on the silver fox farms of Wisconsin and this year's crop will be 12,000 pelts. This little group at Thiensville have been very upset about the disappearance of their neighbors—which is not to be wondered at.

WHAT THE BEARS HAVE TO OFFER—The football squad of Washington University, posed at its practice field on Big Bend road. Coach Jimm

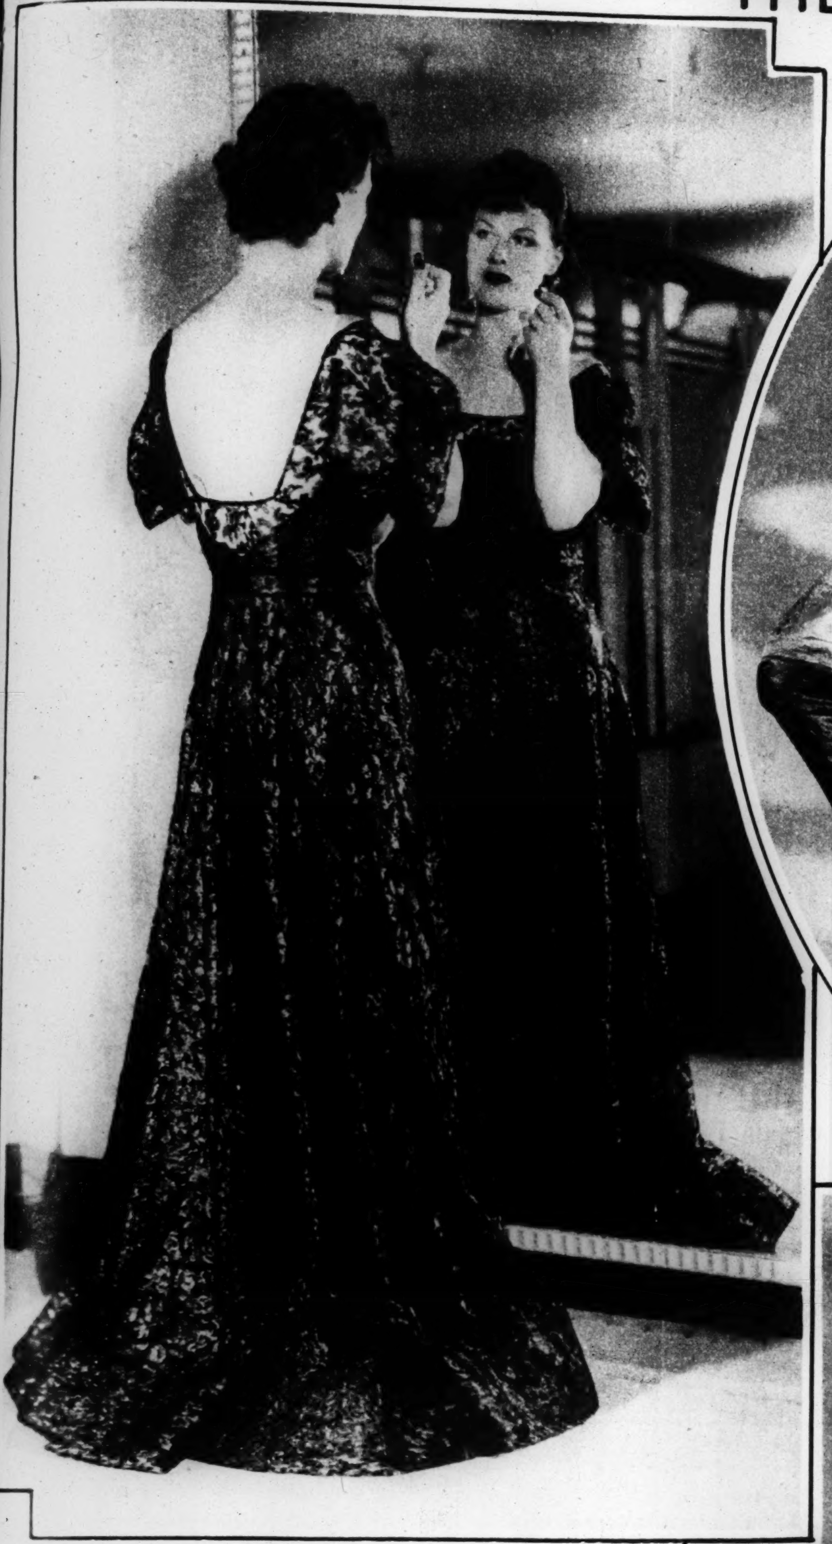
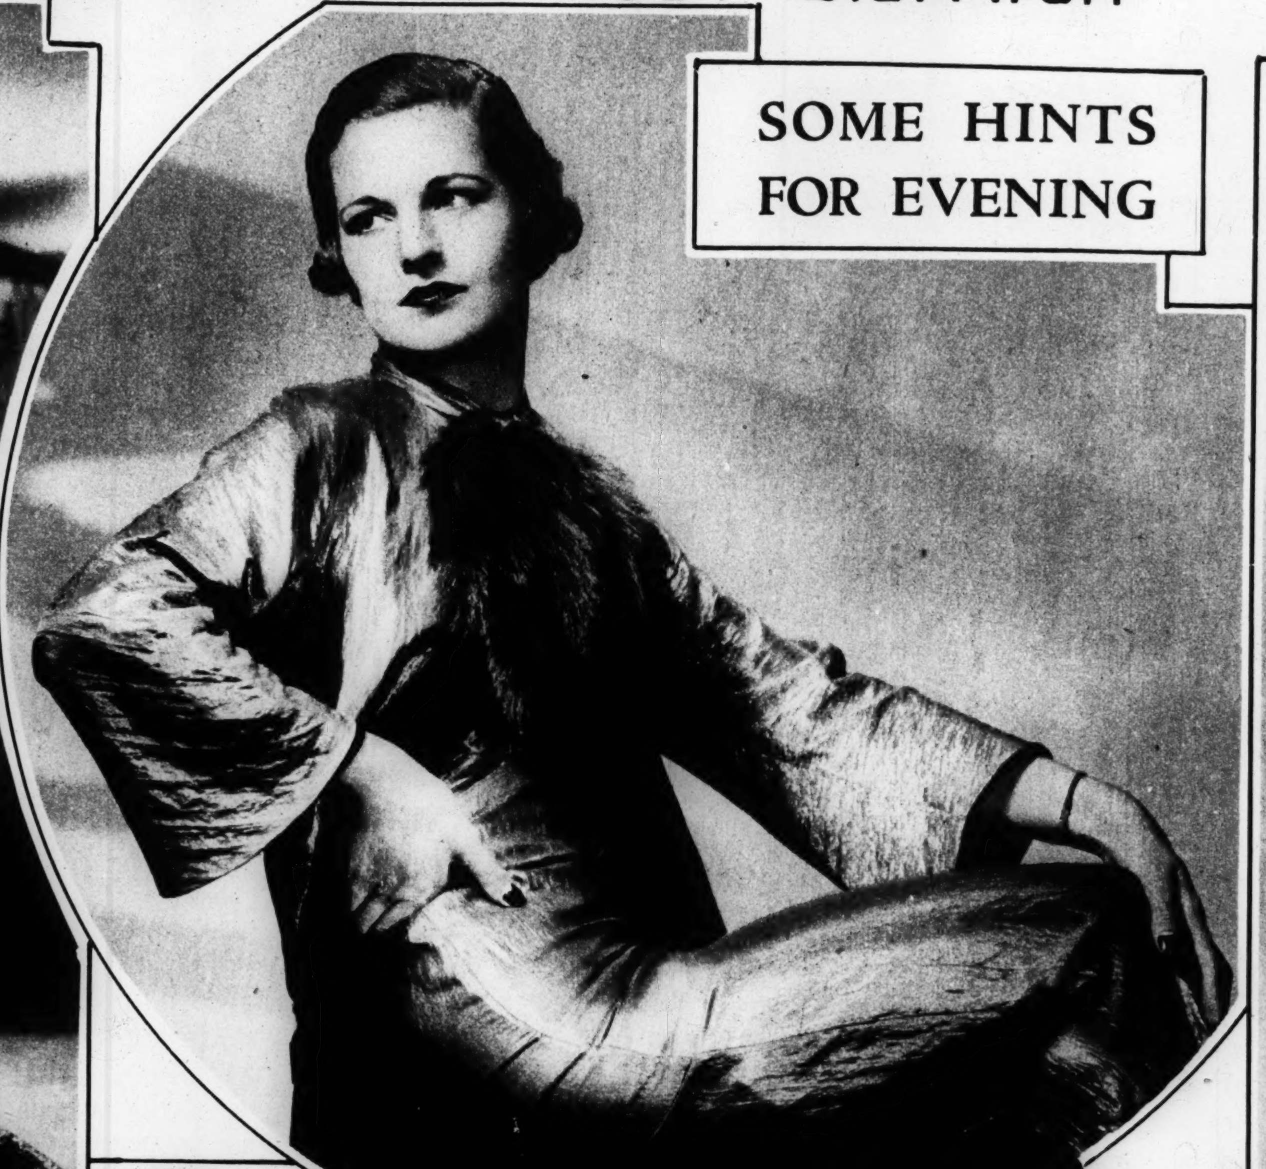
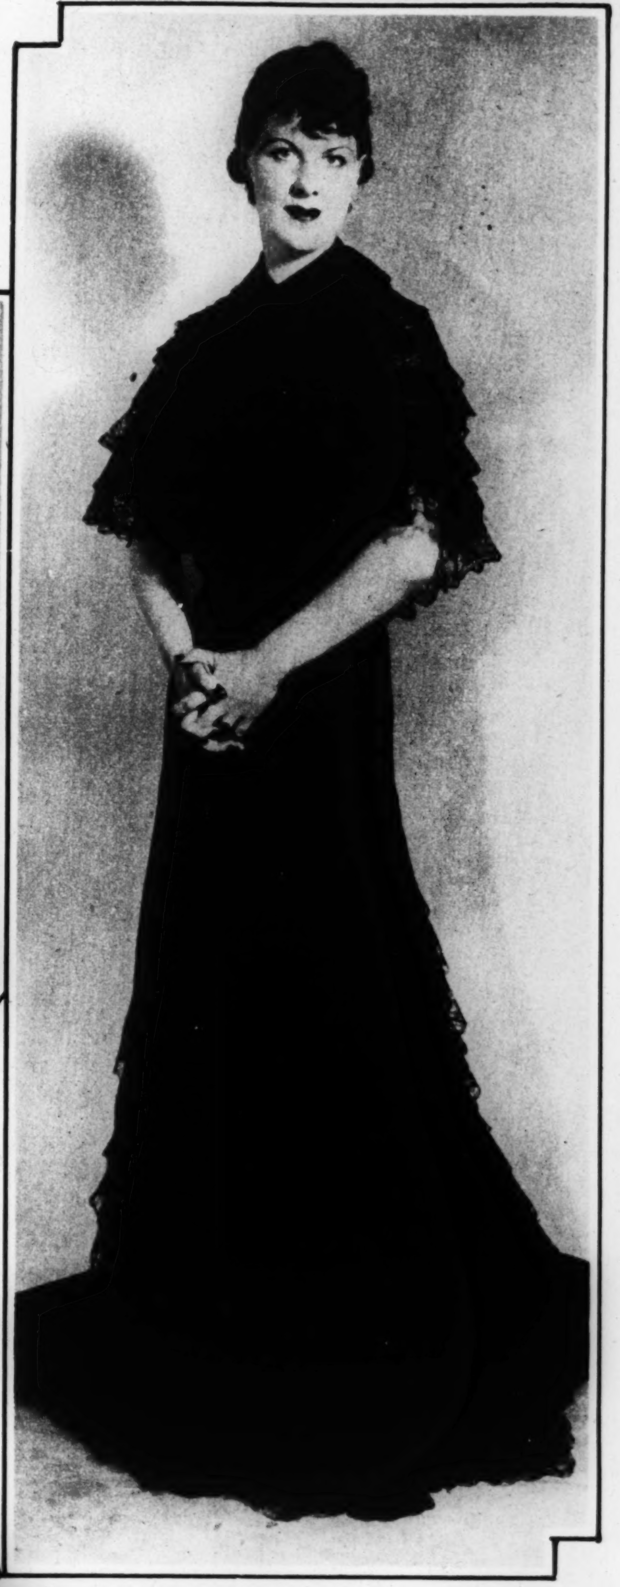
SOME HINTS FOR EVENING



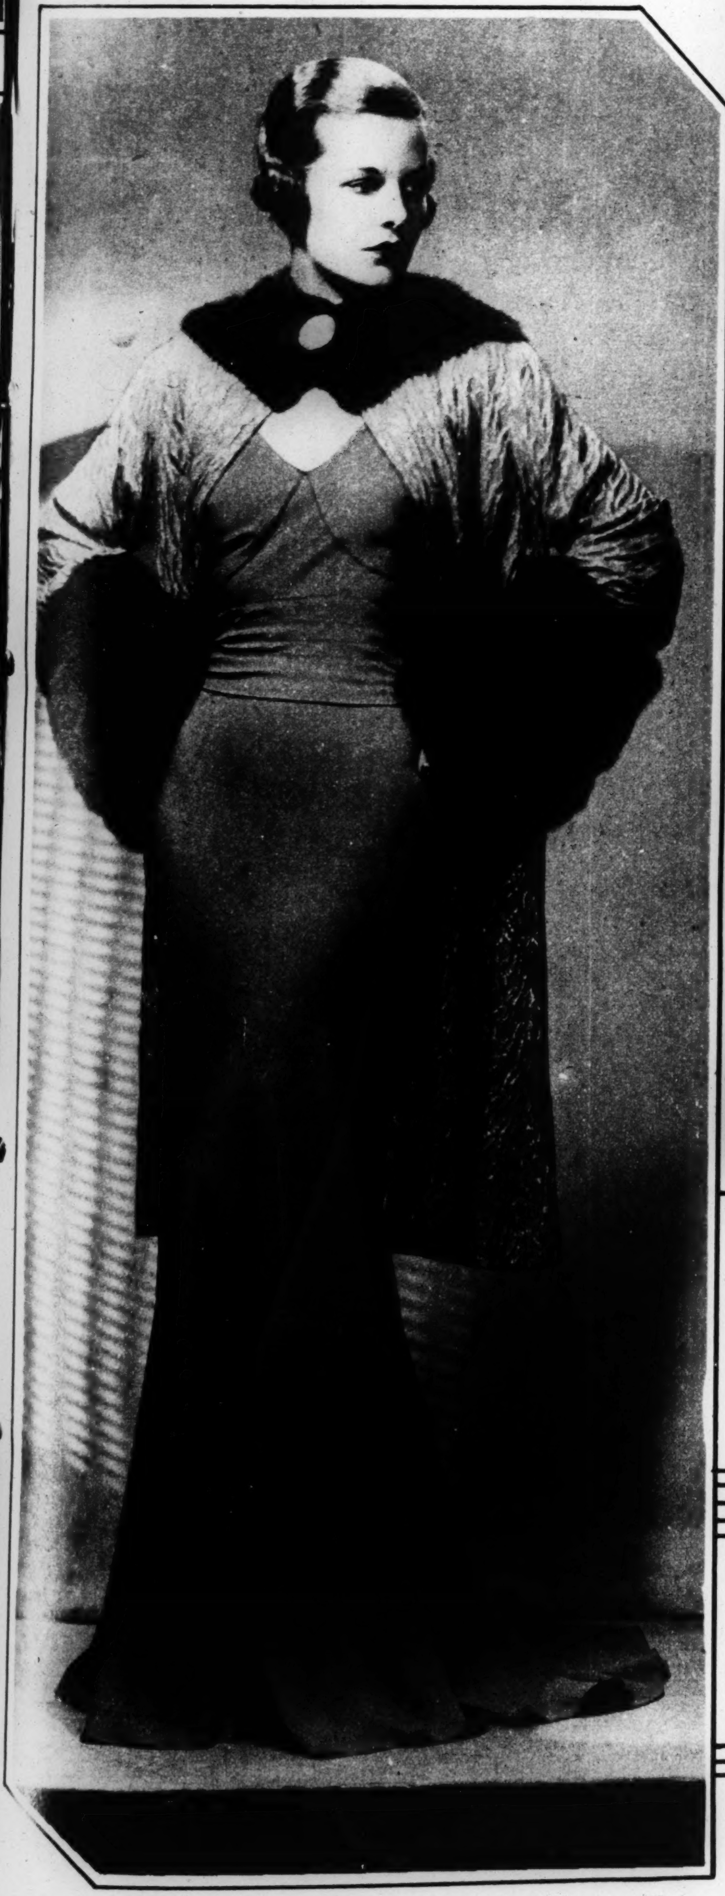
A Newcomer Among Fabrics: Cellophane lace is the making of this graceful evening gown. Note also these details: the stiffened hem, slightly dropped shoulders, short sleeves and a corset-like black silk slip.



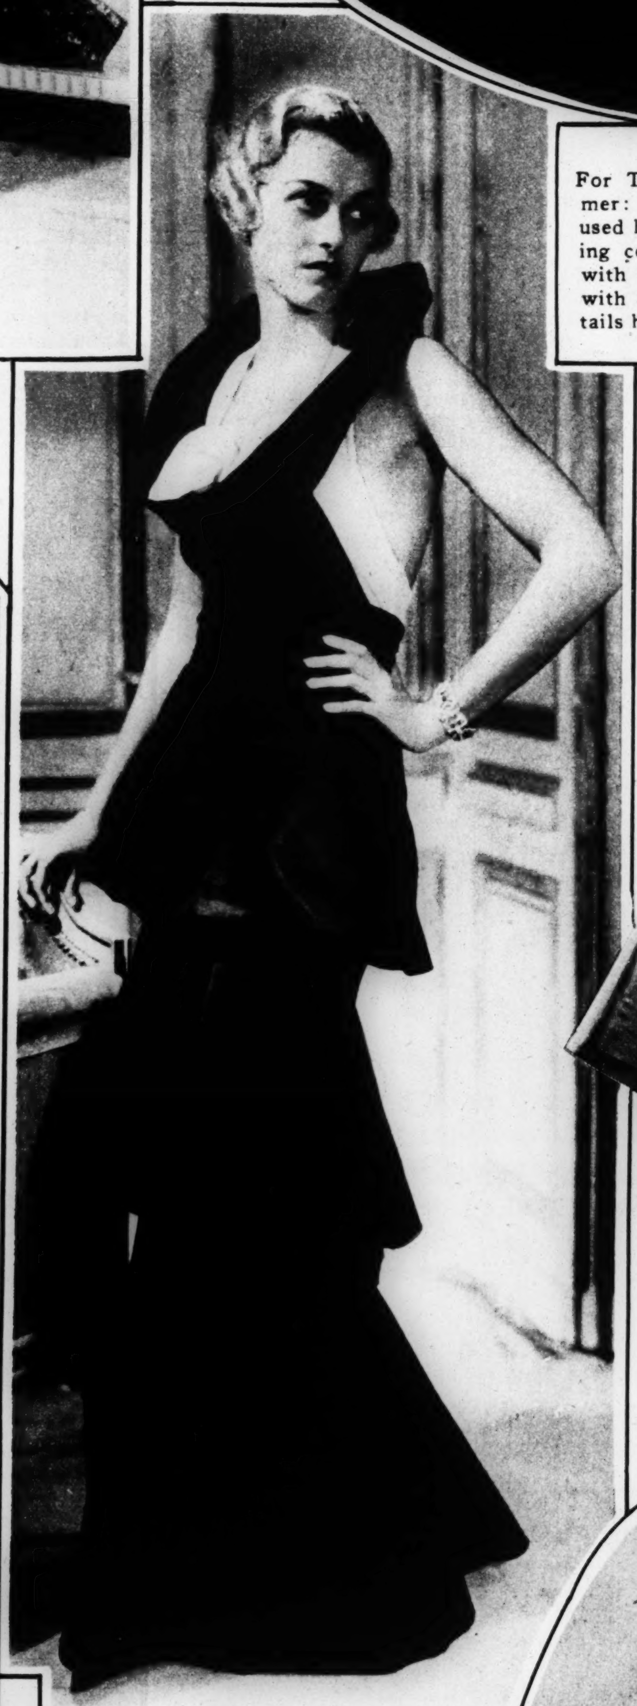
For Those Who Would Shimmer: Crinkled gold lame is used here for gown and matching coat. The latter is lined with brown velvet and set off with a novel jabot of kolinsky tails hung from a high neckline.



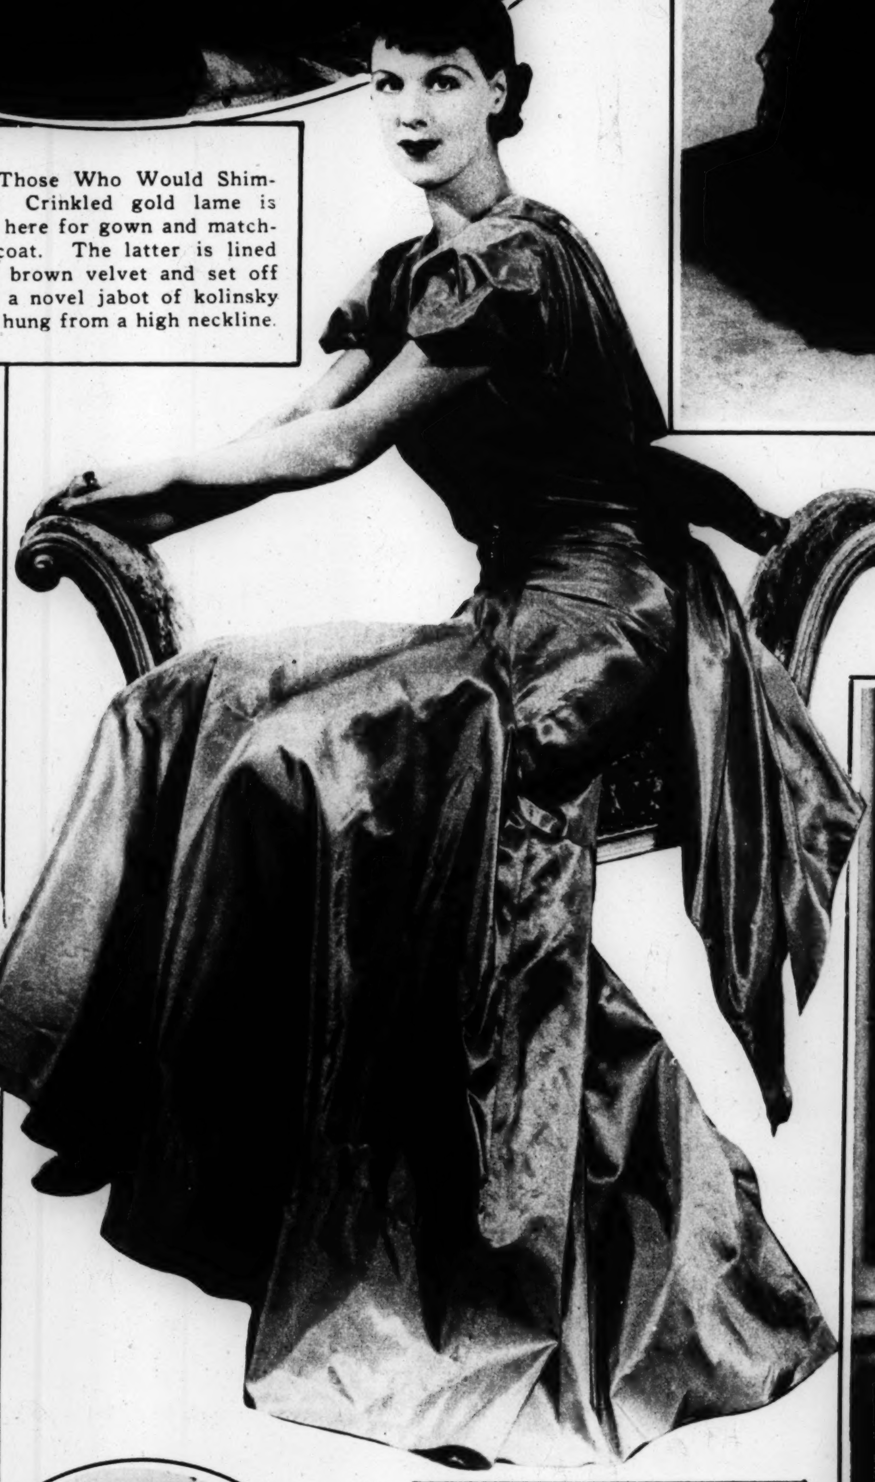
Shades of Louisa May Alcott? Not at all. This quaintly Victorian black lace evening dress with its demure cape and flaring skirt is the latest innovation in Paris, not a resurrection from Grandmother's trousseau.



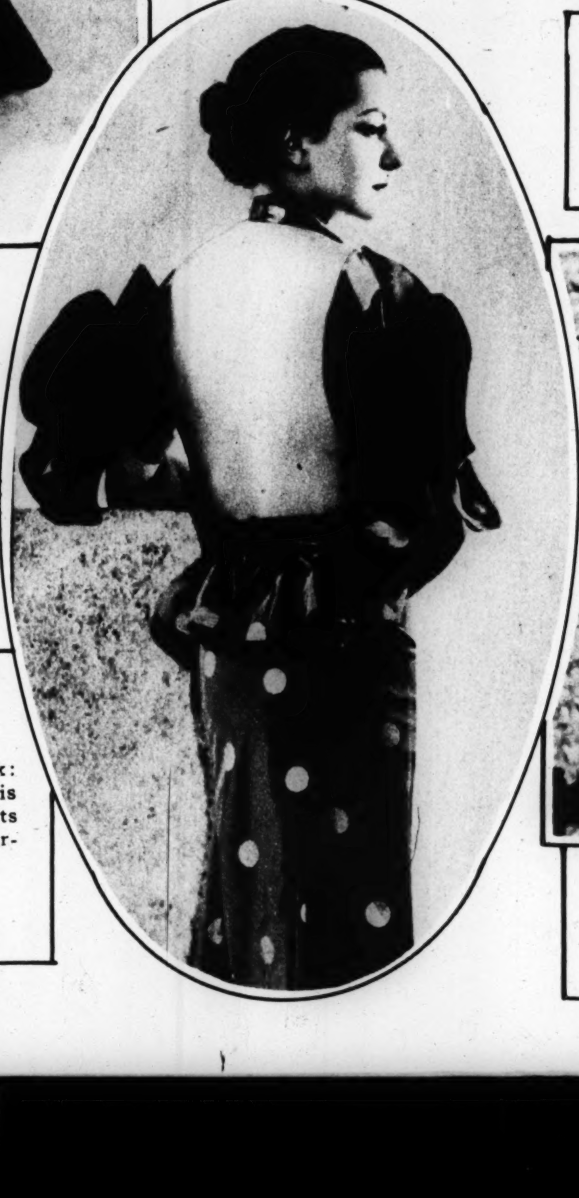
Designed For a Stately Entrance: The dress is rose silk crepe; the wrap is old rose and silver lame, with square kolinsky collar buttoned at the throat and wide cuffs to match.



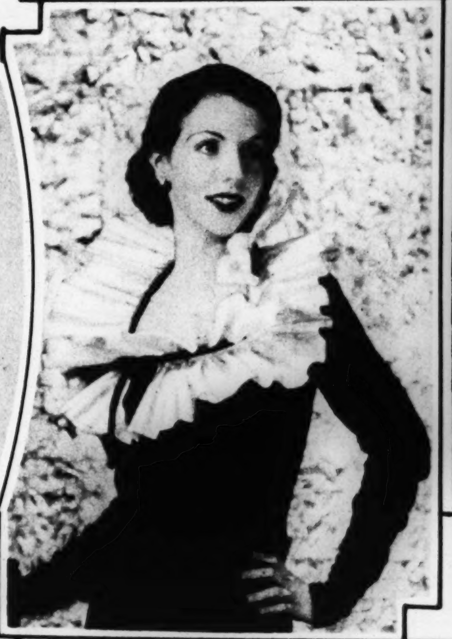
Modernism in Black Taffeta: A distinctive three-tiered skirt and loose, high-standing collar over pale pink velvet go to make this one of the surprise numbers of the new season.



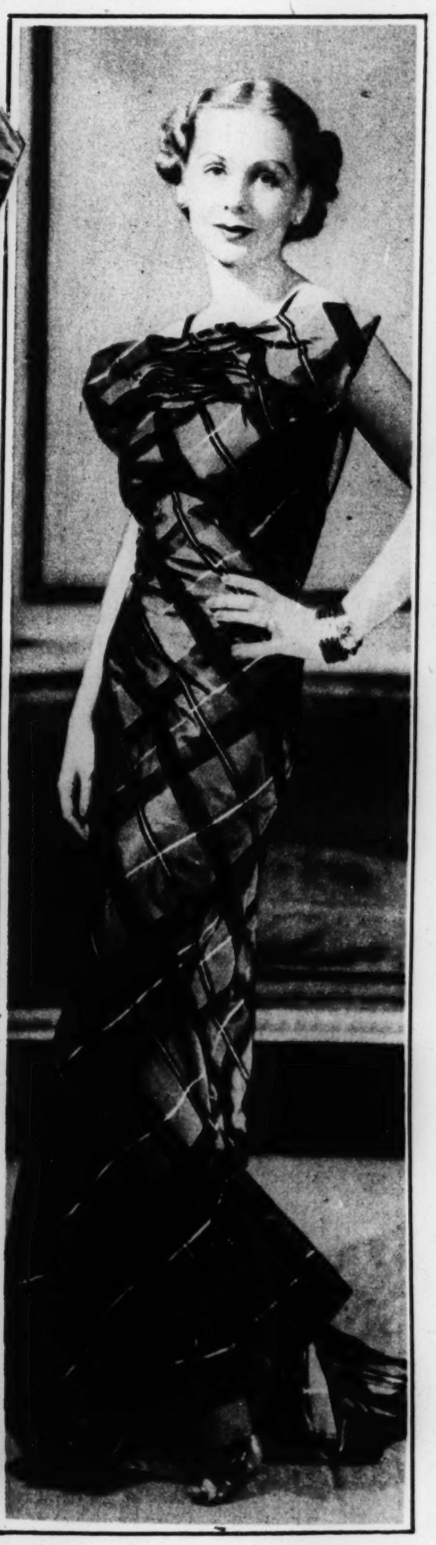
A Surplice Effect: It is achieved by combining the fitted bodice with small puffed sleeves. A large bow in back fits just below the deep V-shaped decolletage.



Featuring the Square Back: This spotted evening gown is a collection of unusual pleats and ruffles despite the apparent simplicity of its design.



For Dining Out: A black silk velvet gown, buttoning down the back Its simplicity is unrelieved except by the flattering double ruche of white silk grosgrain ribbon.



For a Youthful Effect: An amusing plaid pattern in green, fuchsia and gold taffeta. The high neckline has a suggestion of a bow; the back is waist-deep.

HEADWORK—Maum Albert, 90-year-old Negro woman, makes a precarious living on the streets of Savannah, Georgia, by standing on her head for the amusement of tourists. She offers to do it for an hour on a $100 bet.

CCC TACKLES A MAN-SIZE JOB
Cutting through a wall of granite sometimes as high as 3000 feet, while carving a highway through the mountains near Colorado Springs, involved the use of 200 tons of dynamite; that was not enough and the CCC crew has had to put in an order for 200 more.

REALLY JOSEPHINE, I'D LOVE TO GO TO THE SHOW WITH YOU, BUT I DON'T LIKE TO LEAVE OTTO HERE. HE GETS LONESOME AND....
OH EDITH, GEORGE HAS NOTHING TO DO. HE CAN WATCH OTTO WHILE WE'RE GONE.
TELL ME.... NOTHING TO DO BUT WATCH DOGS NAMED OTTO. WELL....
GRRR!
HEY! HEY! CUT THAT OUT! GET AWAY FROM THAT DRAPE!
AND DON'T DO THAT AGAIN OR I'LL...
OH OH! SOMEONE AT THE DOOR.... I GUESS THEY DECIDED NOT TO GO TO THE MOVIE AFTER ALL.
WHAT'S WRONG WITH THIS LOCK?
HEAR THEM KNOCKING!
JUST A MOMENT JO, I'M GETTING THE DOOR UNLOCKED AS FAST AS POSSIBLE!
HEY!
HEY! HEY! COME BACK!
OUTSIDE! ALL OF YOU! QUICK! OUT!
WAIT! WAIT! GO BACK.... INSIDE! STAY THERE! ALL OF YOU! BACK, BACK!
WHOO! WHAT A CLOSE SHAVE. I FORGOT ALL ABOUT THE FACT THAT EDITH'S DOG MIGHT RUN OUT WITH THOSE OTHER MUTS.
NOW TO PICK OUT OTTO. HE HAD A SPOT ON HIS FACE, I THINK.... OR DID HE? WELL....
THERE'S KNOCKING ON THE DOOR AGAIN. DON'T TELL ME IT'S MORE DOGS.
OH IT'S YOU, JO! WHERE'S EDITH?
HER DOG FOLLOWED HER TO THE SHOW. AND SHE WENT HOME WITH HIM. WHY DID YOU PUT HIM OUT? OH AND WHERE DID YOU GET ALL THESE OTHER DOGS?
THE IDEA! DOGS ALL OVER THIS HOUSE. WHY DID YOU..?
LISTEN JO, I'LL EXPLAIN EVERYTHING LATER.... AFTER I GET THESE DOGS OUT.
OUT! OUTSIDE! WHOOSH!
GEORGE HAVE YOU GOT THOSE DOGS OUT YET?
ONE OF THEM. THE OTHERS KEEP RUNNING AROUND....LET ME THINK? I'LL HAVE TO COAX THEM OUT.....AH, VERY EASY!
MROW! MEOW! MEOW! MEOW!
HEAR THAT? HE'S COOKED! I'LL TALK TO HIM WHILE YOU WORK AROUND IN BACK OF HIM AND GRAB HIS ARMS.
YOU SAY THIS PARTY THINKS HE'S A CAT?
YES, AND HE LEAPED ON US NEIGHBORS JUST LIKE A CAT WHEN WE TRIED TO PACIFY HIM. LOOK AT MY EYE! HE'S STILL TEARING AWAY AT THE OTHER BOYS. IT'S IN THE NEXT BLOCK.

ELLA CINDERS
by BILL CONSELMAN and CHARLIE PLUMB
LET'S DO SOMETHING FOR EXCITEMENT, ELLA! I'M GETTING BORED!
BE PATIENT, BLACKIE--- WE'RE GOING TO HAVE A BEAUTY CONTEST ON BOARD FOR THE SAILORS!
AND, DADDY, WE'LL AWARD THE WINNER THAT OLD LOVING CUP YOU HAVE IN YOUR CABIN!
FINE, ELLA- WE'LL HAVE A LOT OF LAUGHS OUT OF THIS!
NOW IN THIS CONTEST, UNUSUAL PHYSICAL BEAUTY WILL BE MOST IMPORTANT --- SO LINE UP AND PASS THE JUDGES' STAND!
I THINK THE SCHNOZZLE ON MR. GORP DESERVES SPECIAL CONSIDERATION, DON'T YOU, DADDY? - AND THE WHISKERS ON "SLATS"!
I CERTAINLY DO!
BEG PARDON, SIR, BUT THE SHIP SEEMS TO BE MOVING -- THE SAILS ARE FURLED AND THE WATER IS CALM AND YET WE'RE DRAGGIN' ANCHOR!
WHO'S THAT UP NEAR THE MASTHEAD?
IT'S "LOPPY" GROGAN!
NO WONDER WE'RE MOVING! TELL HIM TO GET DOWN FROM THERE!
HOW MANY TIMES MUST I TELL YOU TO KEEP DOWN FROM THAT MASTHEAD UNLESS YOU TAPE THOSE EARS BACK?
I DIDN'T MEAN NO HARM, SKIPPER!
GENTLEMEN, BECAUSE OF "LOPPY'S" INHERENT MODESTY HE PURPOSELY AVOIDED THIS BEAUTY CONTEST! BUT THE JUDGES HAVE UNANIMOUSLY ELECTED HIM THE WINNER!
AND SO, IT GIVES ME GREAT PLEASURE TO AWARD THIS CUP TO THE WINNER! GENTLEMEN --- MR "LOPPY" GROGAN!
REMARKABLE, AIN'T IT, BOYS!
IT SURE IS--- I NEVER SEEN ANYTHING TO BEAT IT!
AW, WHAT'S REMARKABLE?
THE LIKENESS, "LOPPY" -- THE LIKENESS! IT COULDN'T HAVE LOOKED MORE LIKE YOU IF YOU HAD POSED FOR IT!

I THINK I'LL TAKE A WALK DOWN TO THE BEACH.
HELLO, SKIP! WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND?
WELL, I'D LIKE TO GO IN FOR A SWIM, BUT I HAVEN'T GOT MY BATHIN'-SUIT HERE.
LET'S RENT A COUPLE
THAT'S A GOOD IDEA. GOT ANY MONEY?
NOT ENOUGH FOR TWO SUITS.
MAYBE THE MAN WILL LET US HAVE TWO FOR THE PRICE OF ONE
NOT THAT GUY! ANYTHING YA GET FROM HIM, YA PAY FOR IT.
BUT ON SECOND THOUGHT, LET'S GO OVER AN' SEE HIM. HE MIGHT BE ABLE TO FIX US UP.
THE MAN WAS KINDA NICE ABOUT IT, WASN'T HE?
WELL, HE DIDN'T WANT TO LOSE A SALE

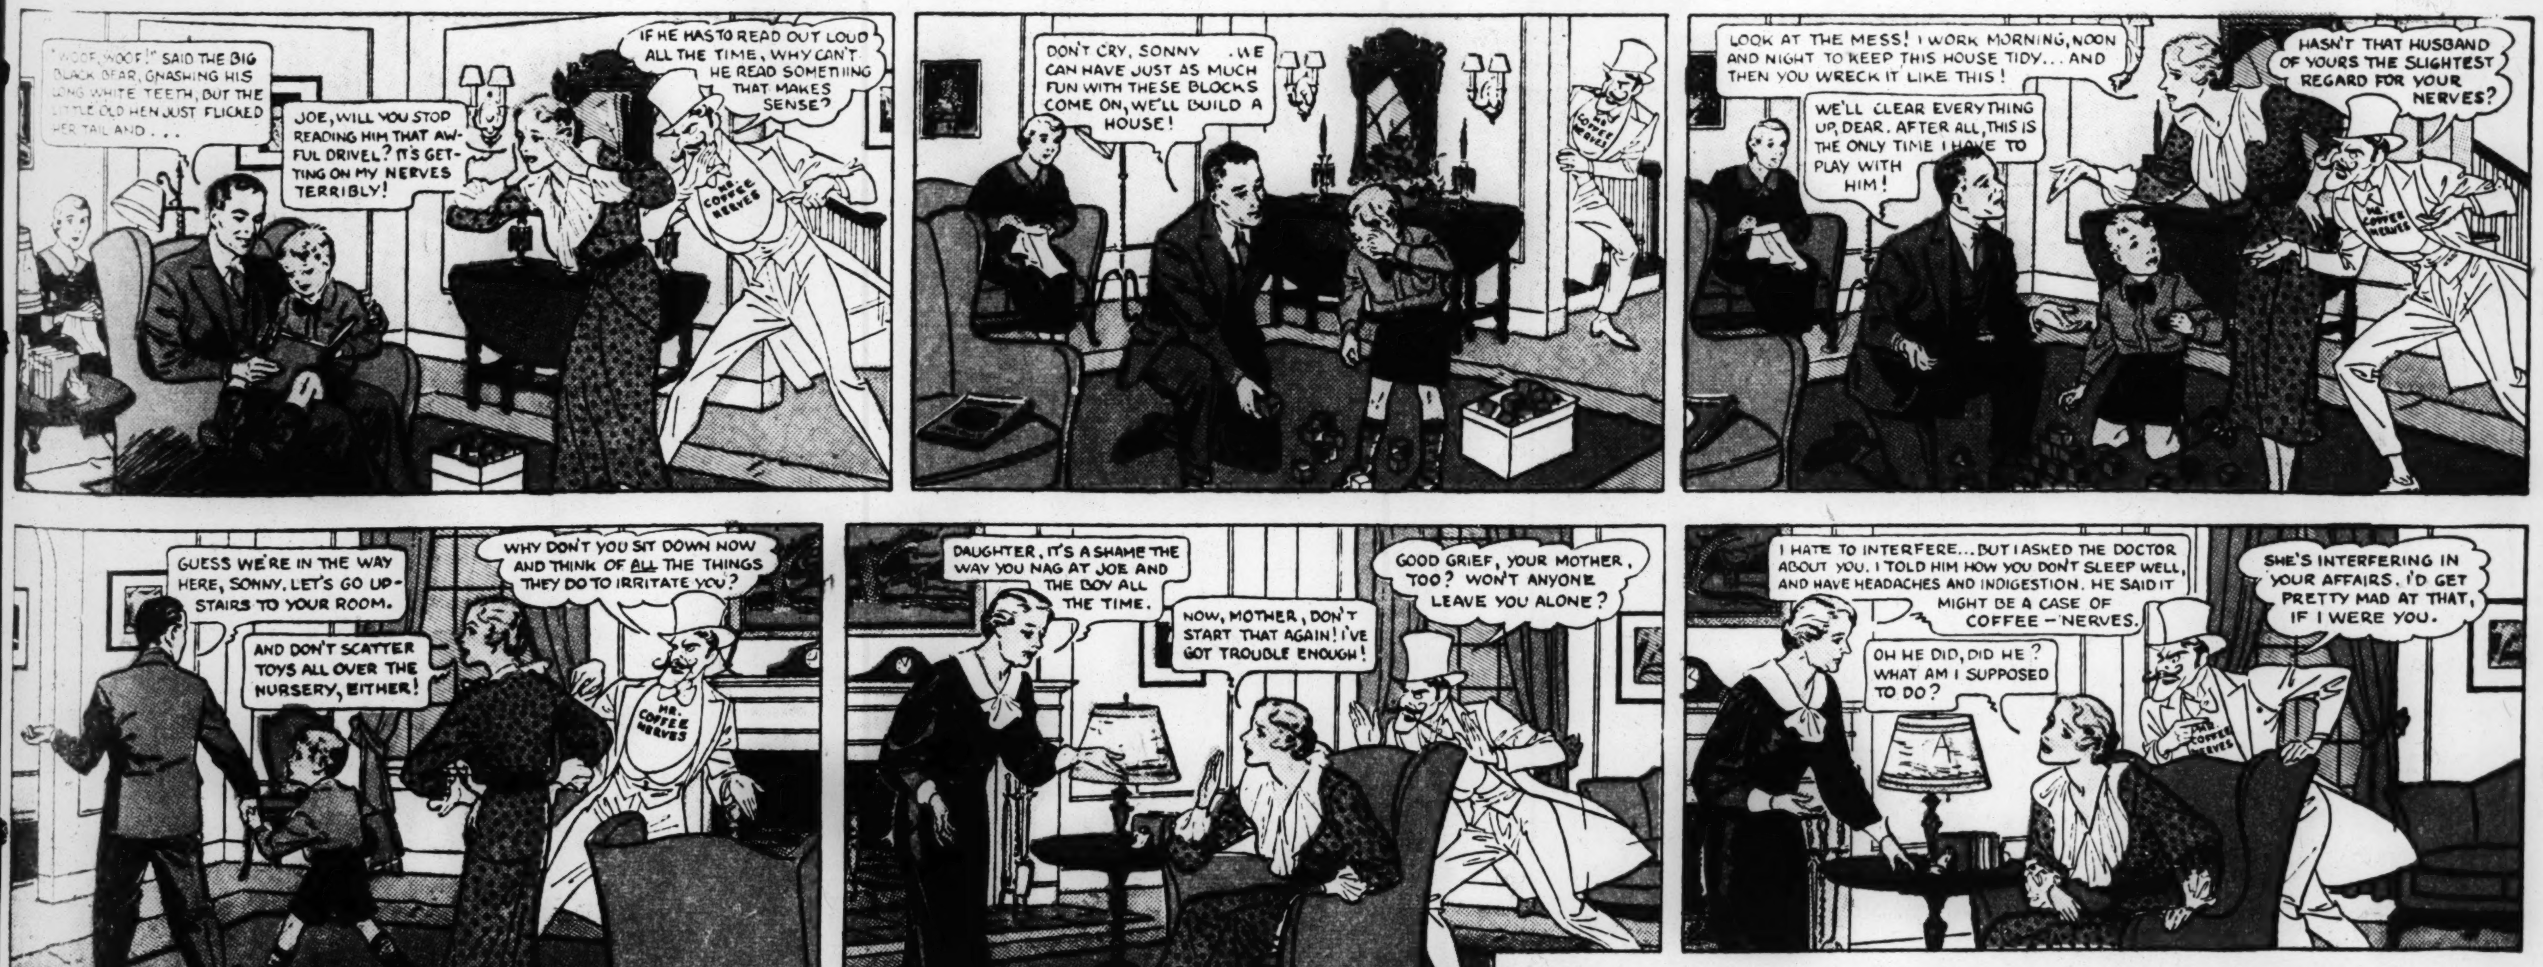
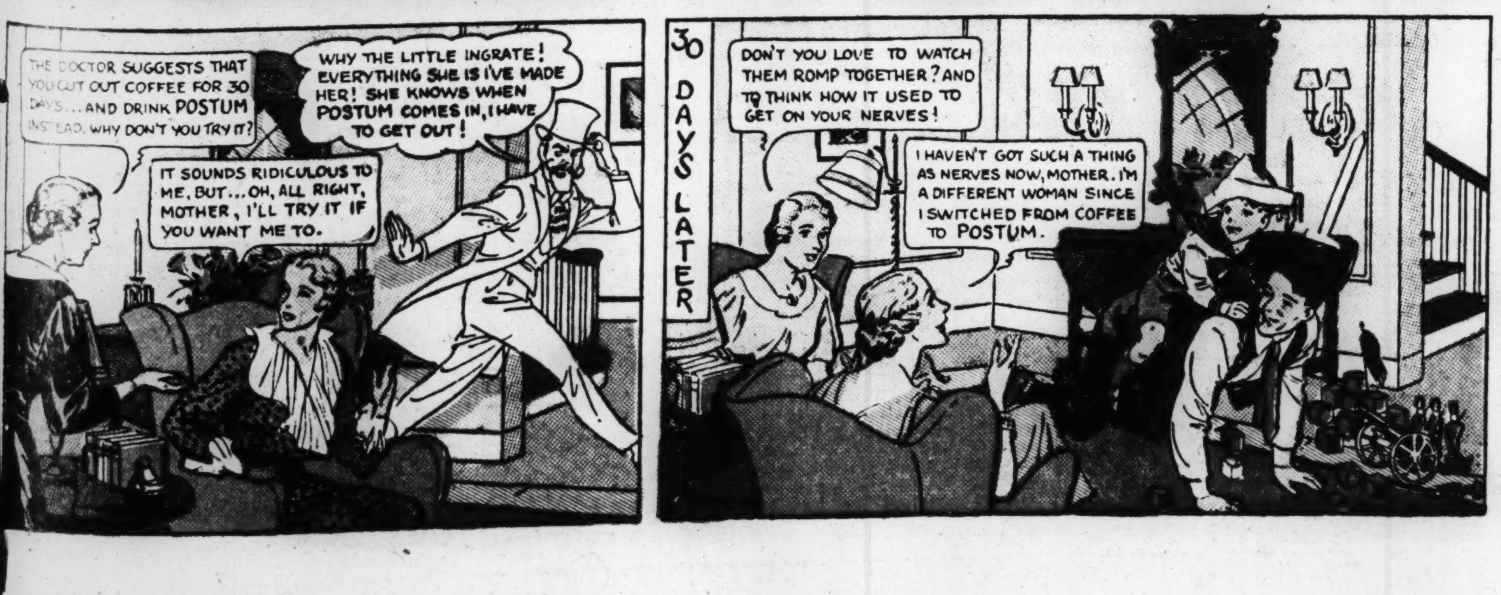
Mr. COFFEE-NERVES.. mother's too smart for him

AN ADVERTISEMENT of GENERAL FOODS



"WOOF, WOOF!" SAID THE BIG BLACK BEAR, GNASHING HIS LONG WHITE TEETH, BUT THE LITTLE OLD HEN JUST FLICKED HER TAIL AND . . .
JOE, WILL YOU STOP READING HIM THAT AWFUL DRIVEL? IT'S GETTING ON MY NERVES TERRIBLY!
IF HE HAS TO READ OUT LOUD ALL THE TIME, WHY CAN'T HE READ SOMETHING THAT MAKES SENSE?
MR. COFFEE NERVES
DON'T CRY, SONNY . . WE CAN HAVE JUST AS MUCH FUN WITH THESE BLOCKS COME ON, WE'LL BUILD A HOUSE!
LOOK AT THE MESS! I WORK MORNING, NOON AND NIGHT TO KEEP THIS HOUSE TIDY . . . AND THEN YOU WRECK IT LIKE THIS!
WE'LL CLEAR EVERYTHING UP, DEAR. AFTER ALL, THIS IS THE ONLY TIME I HAVE TO PLAY WITH HIM!
HASN'T THAT HUSBAND OF YOURS THE SLIGHTEST REGARD FOR YOUR NERVES?
GUESS WE'RE IN THE WAY HERE, SONNY. LET'S GO UPSTAIRS TO YOUR ROOM.
AND DON'T SCATTER TOYS ALL OVER THE NURSERY, EITHER!
WHY DON'T YOU SIT DOWN NOW AND THINK OF ALL THE THINGS THEY DO TO IRRITATE YOU?
DAUGHTER, IT'S A SHAME THE WAY YOU NAG AT JOE AND THE BOY ALL THE TIME.
NOW, MOTHER, DON'T START THAT AGAIN! I'VE GOT TROUBLE ENOUGH!
GOOD GRIEF, YOUR MOTHER, TOO? WON'T ANYONE LEAVE YOU ALONE?
I HATE TO INTERFERE . . . BUT I ASKED THE DOCTOR ABOUT YOU. I TOLD HIM HOW YOU DON'T SLEEP WELL, AND HAVE HEADACHES AND INDIGESTION. HE SAID IT MIGHT BE A CASE OF COFFEE-NERVES.
OH HE DID, DID HE? WHAT AM I SUPPOSED TO DO?
SHE'S INTERFERING IN YOUR AFFAIRS. I'D GET PRETTY MAD AT THAT, IF I WERE YOU.



THE DOCTOR SUGGESTS THAT YOU CUT OUT COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS . . . AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD. WHY DON'T YOU TRY IT?
WHY THE LITTLE INGRATE! EVERYTHING SHE IS I'VE MADE HER! SHE KNOWS WHEN POSTUM COMES IN, I HAVE TO GET OUT!
IT SOUNDS RIDICULOUS TO ME, BUT . . . OH, ALL RIGHT, MOTHER, I'LL TRY IT IF YOU WANT ME TO.
30 DAYS LATER
DON'T YOU LOVE TO WATCH THEM ROMP TOGETHER? AND TO THINK HOW IT USED TO GET ON YOUR NERVES!
I HAVEN'T GOT SUCH A THING AS NERVES NOW, MOTHER. I'M A DIFFERENT WOMAN SINCE I SWITCHED FROM COFFEE TO POSTUM.

"Mother, why did coffee make Edith so cross?"

"The caffein in coffee was robbing her of sleep, causing headaches and indigestion."

"Why did switching to POSTUM help her?"

"Postum contains no caffein . . . so it gave her system a chance to throw off the ill effects of the drug. Then her headaches and indigestion went away and she could sleep soundly."

Many people can safely drink coffee. But many others—and all children—should never drink it.

The caffein in coffee may be working to undermine your nervous system, interfere with your digestion, or rob you of sleep.

If coffee disagrees—try POSTUM for 30 days. It's delicious, economical, easy to prepare, and may be a real help. A product of General Foods.

FREE—To start you off in your fight against coffee-nerves, let us send you a week's supply of POSTUM—FREE! Simply fill in and mail the coupon.

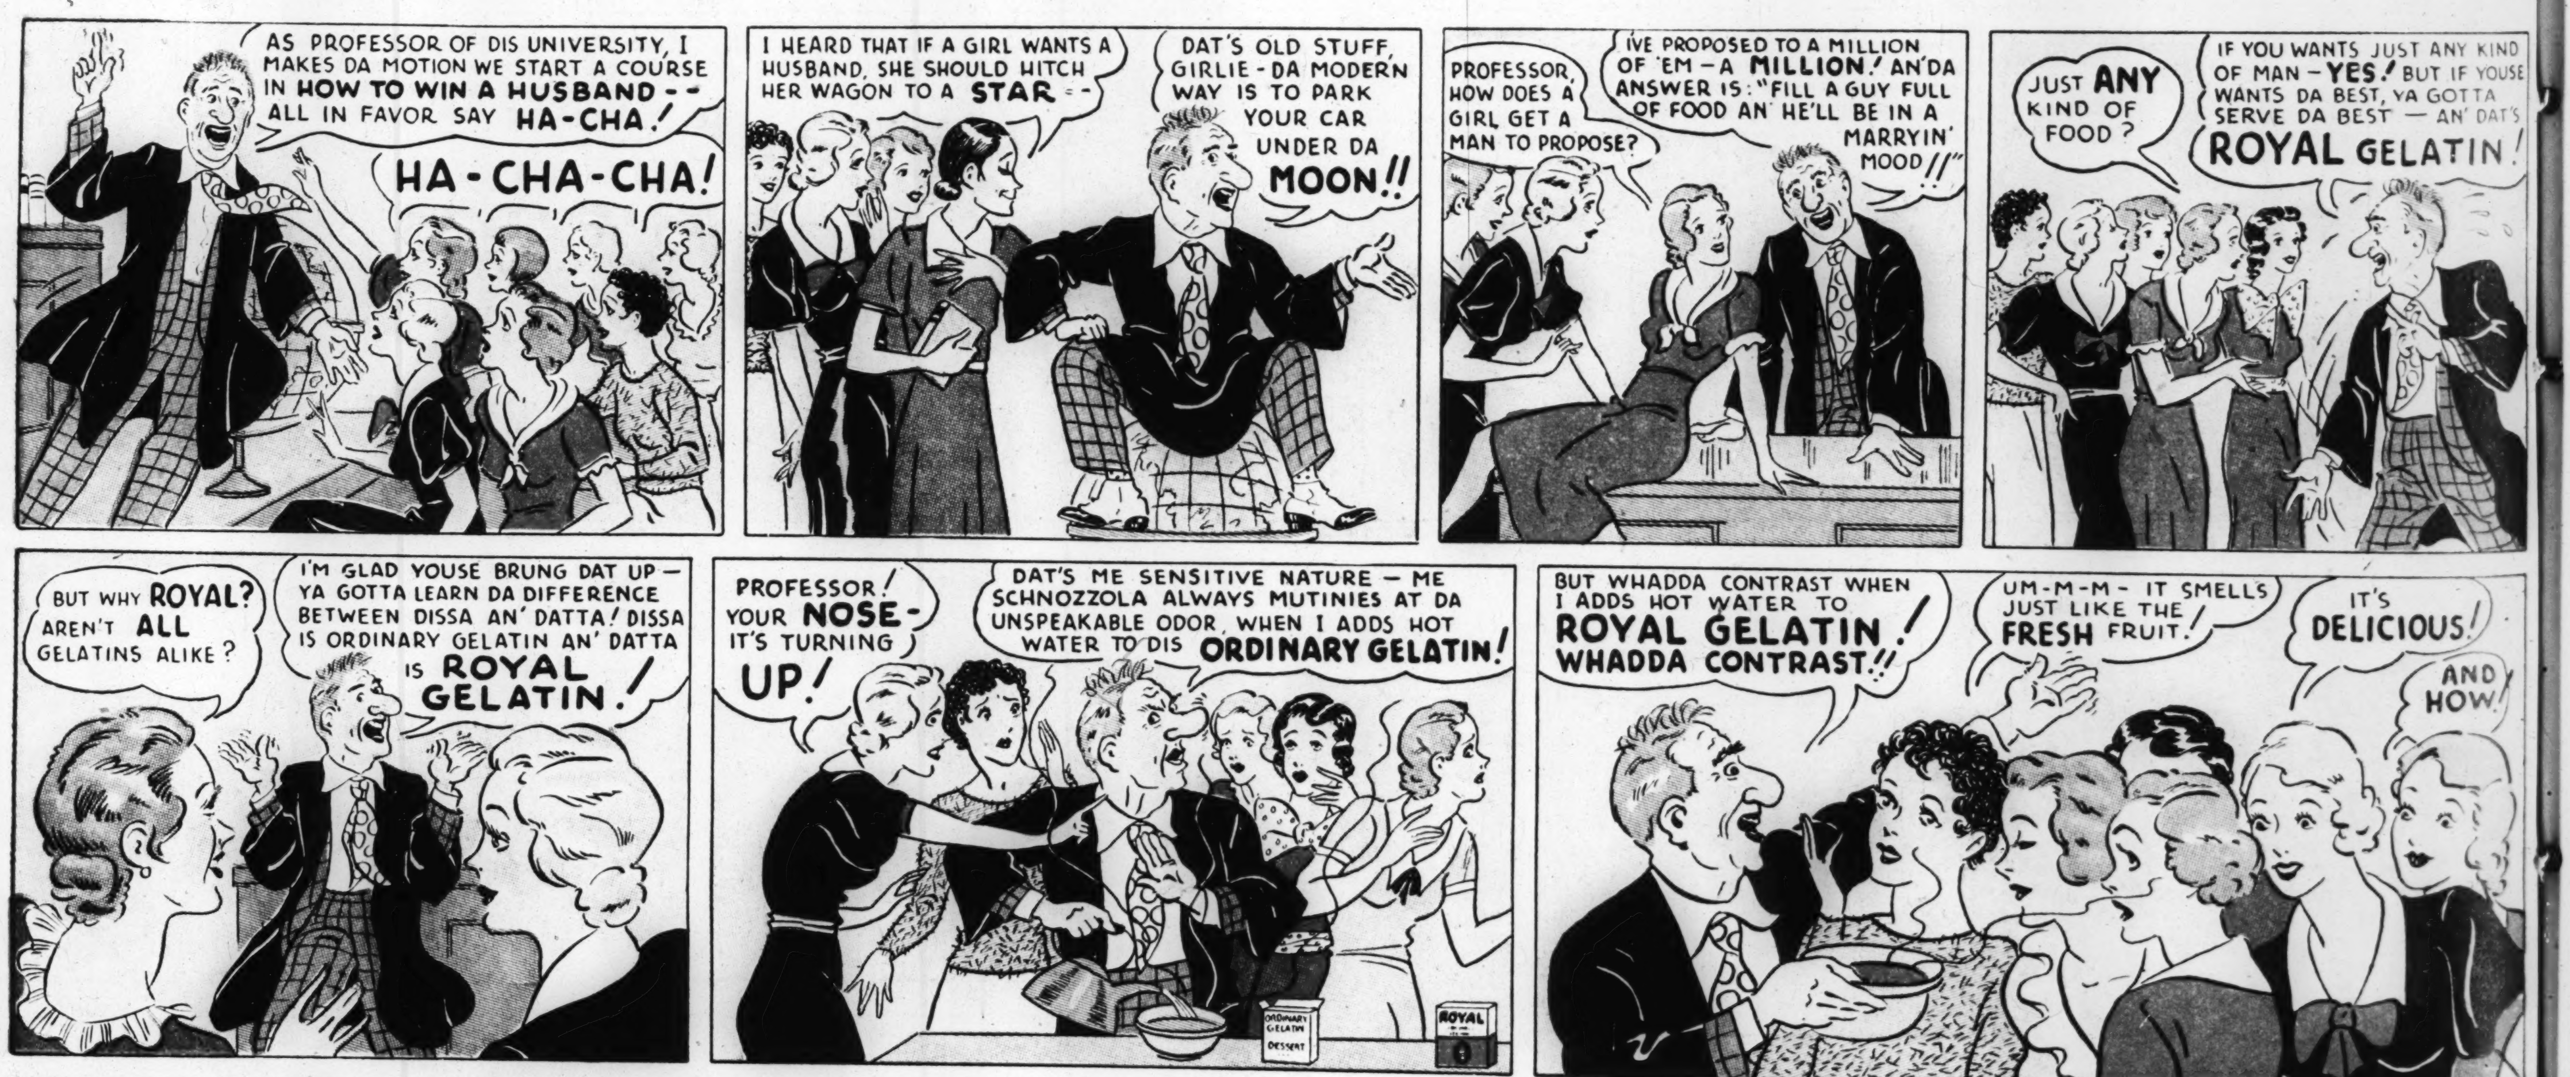
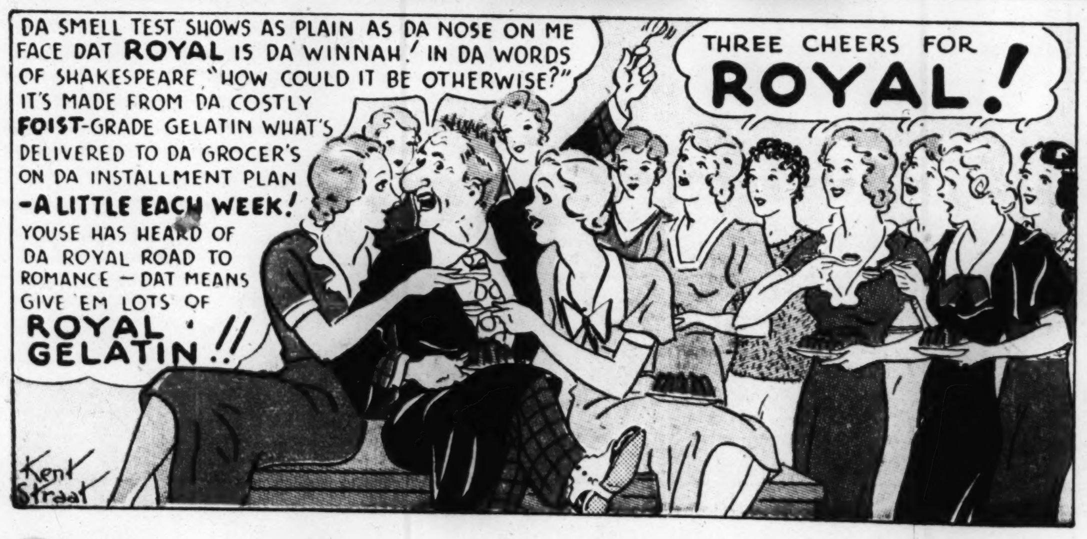
Nosing Around With Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante



AS PROFESSOR OF DIS UNIVERSITY, I MAKES DA MOTION WE START A COURSE IN HOW TO WIN A HUSBAND -- ALL IN FAVOR SAY HA-CHA!
HA-CHA-CHA!
I HEARD THAT IF A GIRL WANTS A HUSBAND, SHE SHOULD HITCH HER WAGON TO A STAR --
DAT'S OLD STUFF, GIRLIE - DA MODERN WAY IS TO PARK YOUR CAR UNDER DA MOON!!
PROFESSOR, HOW DOES A GIRL GET A MAN TO PROPOSE?
I'VE PROPOSED TO A MILLION OF 'EM - A MILLION! AN' DA ANSWER IS: "FILL A GUY FULL OF FOOD AN' HE'LL BE IN A MARRYIN' MOOD!!"
JUST ANY KIND OF FOOD?
IF YOU WANTS JUST ANY KIND OF MAN - YES! BUT IF YOUSE WANTS DA BEST, YA GOTTA SERVE DA BEST - AN' DAT'S ROYAL GELATIN!
BUT WHY ROYAL? AREN'T ALL GELATINS ALIKE?
I'M GLAD YOUSE BRUNG DAT UP - YA GOTTA LEARN DA DIFFERENCE BETWEEN DISSA AN' DATTA! DISSA IS ORDINARY GELATIN AN' DATTA IS ROYAL GELATIN!
PROFESSOR! YOUR NOSE - IT'S TURNING UP!
DAT'S ME SENSITIVE NATURE - ME SCHNOZZOLA ALWAYS MUTINIES AT DA UNSPEAKABLE ODOR, WHEN I ADDS HOT WATER TO DIS ORDINARY GELATIN!
ORDINARY GELATIN DESSERT
ROYAL
BUT WHADDA CONTRAST WHEN I ADDS HOT WATER TO ROYAL GELATIN! WHADDA CONTRAST!!
UM-M-M - IT SMELLS JUST LIKE THE FRESH FRUIT!
IT'S DELICIOUS!
AND HOW!



DA SMELL TEST SHOWS AS PLAIN AS DA NOSE ON ME FACE DAT ROYAL IS DA WINNAH! IN DA WORDS OF SHAKESPEARE "HOW COULD IT BE OTHERWISE?" IT'S MADE FROM DA COSTLY FOIST-GRADE GELATIN WHAT'S DELIVERED TO DA GROCER'S ON DA INSTALLMENT PLAN -A LITTLE EACH WEEK! YOUSE HAS HEARD OF DA ROYAL ROAD TO ROMANCE - DAT MEANS GIVE EM LOTS OF ROYAL GELATIN!!
THREE CHEERS FOR ROYAL!
Kent Straat

SMELL IT when it's hot . . .

THE next time you make a gelatin dessert, smell the vapor that rises when you add the hot water.

With ORDINARY gelatin desserts, the odor is unpleasant.

With ROYAL, you get just a delightful fruity aroma.

And Royal Gelatin tastes just as delicious as it smells. Royal flavors are full-bodied . . . never faded out . . . because Royal is rushed to grocers by rapid, fresh-food delivery.

Seven pure fruit flavors. Strawberry, Raspberry, Cherry, Lime, Lemon, Orange and Pineapple. Also the new Royal Aspic (unsweetened), for making delicious jellied soups, and moulded meats and salads.

Also Royal Chocolate and Vanilla Puddings, made with healthful arrowroot

Fresh! Fading . . . Almost gone!

Fruit flavors fade out quickly. That's why Royal is rushed to grocers by the same delivery system that carries Chase & Sanborn's Coffee. With Royal Quick Setting Gelatin, you can count on an abundance of fresh fruit flavor!

FLASH GORDON, AN EARTH-MAN, CAST AWAY WITH DALE ARDEN ON THE PLANET MONGO, AND PRINCE THUN, THE LION-MAN, HAVE JUST ESCAPED FROM THE PIT OF SULPHA, SACRED DRAGON OF THE HAWKMEN------- AS THEY EMERGE, THEY ARE ATTACKED BY THREE OF KING VULTAN'S HAWKMEN------- LIKE RELEASED SPRINGS FLASH'S POWERFUL LEGS DRIVE HIM BEYOND REACH OF THE MENACING LANCES--- HIS LIGHT-BOLT CRASHES IN THEIR MIDST!
MUSTERING ALL HIS STRENGTH, FLASH HURLS THE HEAVY LIGHT-GUN INTO ONE OF THEIR FACES---
BUT THE EFFORT THROWS HIM OFF BALANCE-----THE THIRD SOLDIER RAISES HIS SPEAR, BUT THUN, RECOVERED FROM THE EFFECTS OF THE POISON VAPOR OF THE DRAGON PIT-----
--HURLS HIMSELF IN FRONT OF FLASH AND TAKES THE LANCE IN HIS SHOULDER!
BEFORE THE SOLDIER CAN DRAW HIS SWORD FLASH'S FIST SENDS HIM SPINNING SENSELESS TOWARD THE GROUND, FIVE THOUSAND FEET BELOW!
BRING MY LITTLE BIRD TO ME AND TELL THE HIGH PRIEST TO HAUL HIS RATTLING BONES TO MY ROOMS---HAW, HAW--
MEANWHILE KING VULTAN, WITH TWO OF HIS GENERALS, CELEBRATES WILDLY HIS APPROACHING MARRIAGE TO DALE ARDEN AND DALE, RESIGNED TO HER FATE, PRAYS FOR FLASH--
--PLEASE WATCH OVER AND PROTECT HIM--IF WE CAN'T HAVE EACH OTHER, THEN LET HIM FORGET ME--EVEN THO' I CAN NEVER STOP LOVING HIM---
AND SO, AT KING VULTAN'S COMMAND, A GIANT OFFICER OF HIS GUARD ESCORTS DALE TO THE BRIDAL CHAMBERS, WHERE THE HIGH PRIEST AWAITS TO PERFORM THE CEREMONY!

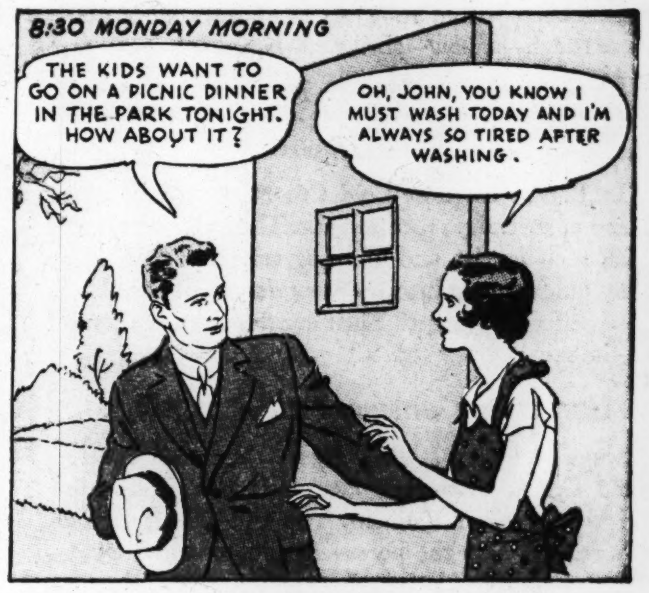
IT ALWAYS CAUSES
A QUARREL
NONSENSE! I TRIED ONE ONCE!
I'LL PROVE IT! THIS ONE IS NEW!

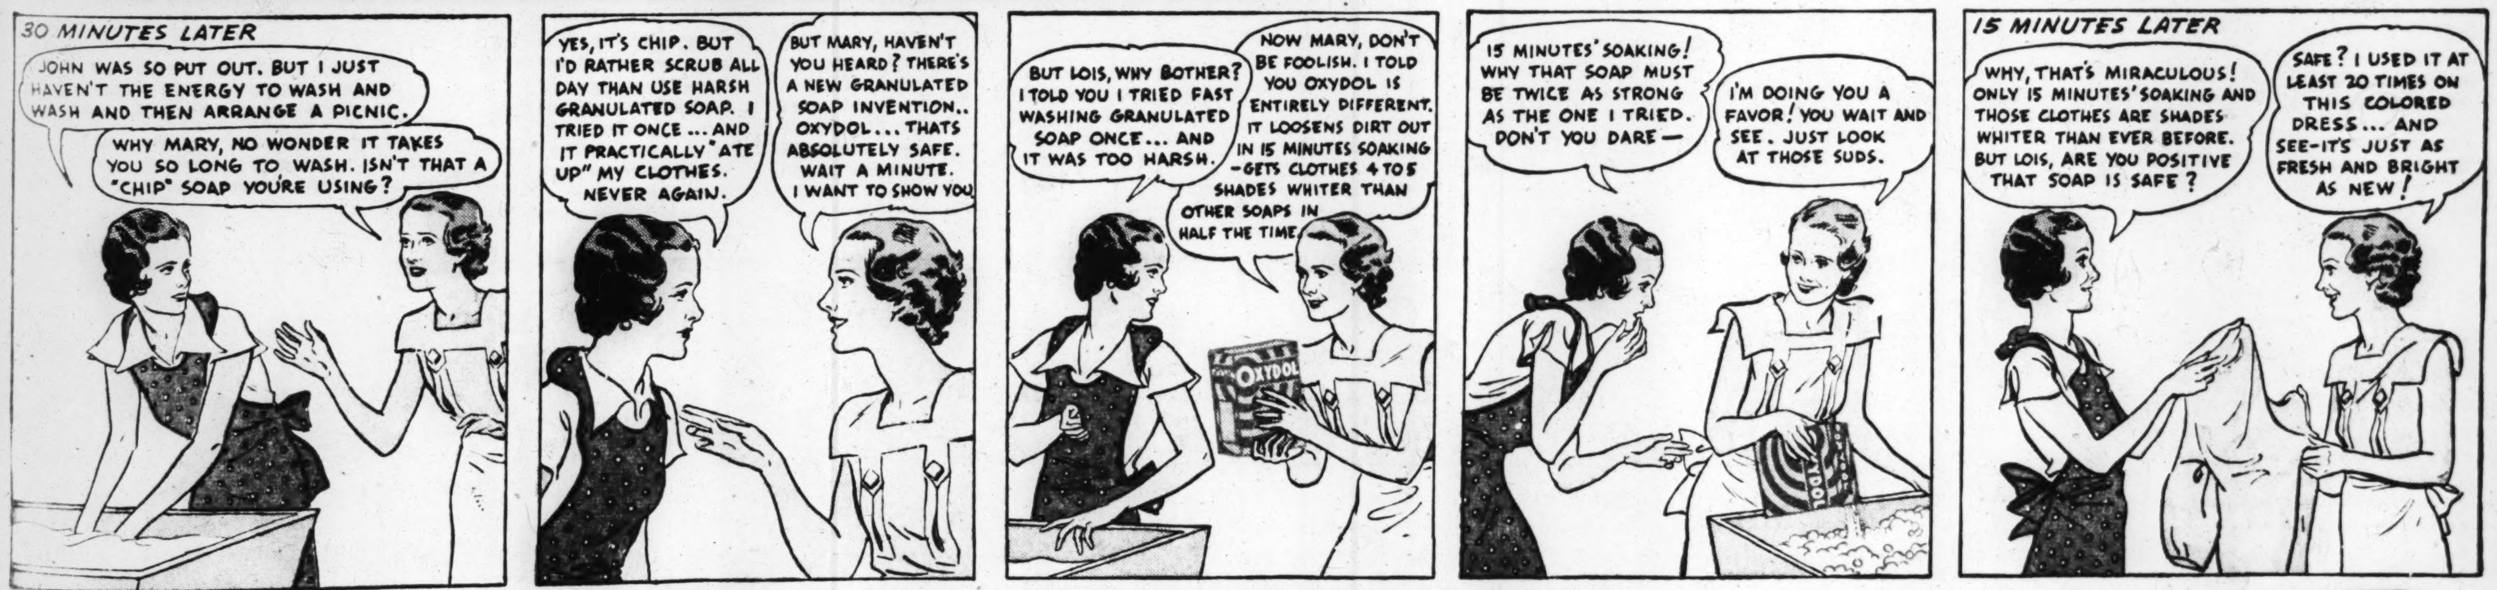
CONTROVERSY ALWAYS FOLLOWS THE INTRODUCTION OF ANY NEW SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

BUT NO DISCOVERY IN YEARS, PROBABLY, HAS CAUSED SO MUCH HEATED DISCUSSION AND HAD SO FAR REACHING EFFECTS AS THIS ONE . . .

SEE WHAT HAPPENED TO THESE TWO HOUSEWIVES.

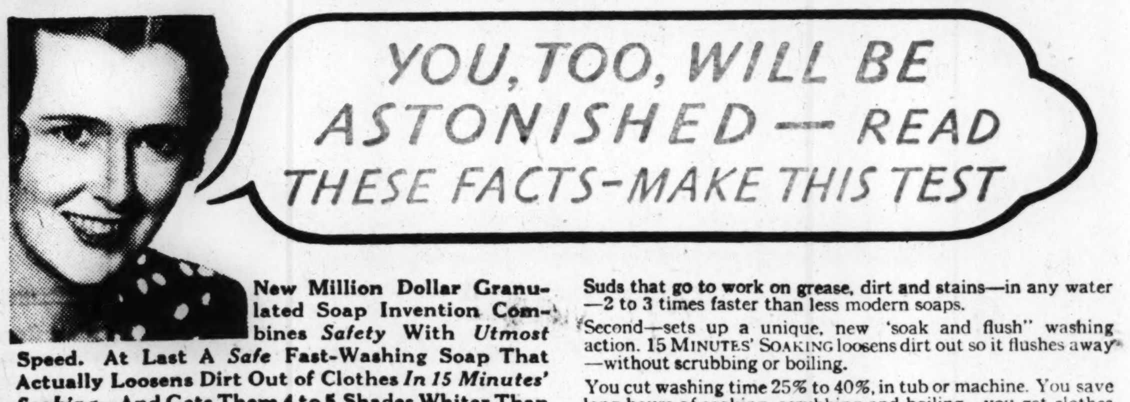


8:30 MONDAY MORNING
THE KIDS WANT TO GO ON A PICNIC DINNER IN THE PARK TONIGHT. HOW ABOUT IT?
OH, JOHN, YOU KNOW I MUST WASH TODAY AND I'M ALWAYS SO TIRED AFTER WASHING.



30 MINUTES LATER
JOHN WAS SO PUT OUT. BUT I JUST HAVEN'T THE ENERGY TO WASH AND WASH AND THEN ARRANGE A PICNIC.
WHY MARY, NO WONDER IT TAKES YOU SO LONG TO WASH. ISN'T THAT A "CHIP" SOAP YOU'RE USING?
YES, IT'S CHIP. BUT I'D RATHER SCRUB ALL DAY THAN USE HARSH GRANULATED SOAP. I TRIED IT ONCE ... AND IT PRACTICALLY "ATE UP" MY CLOTHES. NEVER AGAIN.
BUT MARY, HAVEN'T YOU HEARD? THERE'S A NEW GRANULATED SOAP INVENTION.. OXYDOL ... THATS ABSOLUTELY SAFE. WAIT A MINUTE. I WANT TO SHOW YOU
BUT LOIS, WHY BOTHER? I TOLD YOU I TRIED FAST WASHING GRANULATED SOAP ONCE ... AND IT WAS TOO HARSH.
NOW MARY, DON'T BE FOOLISH. I TOLD YOU OXYDOL IS ENTIRELY DIFFERENT. IT LOOSENS DIRT OUT IN 15 MINUTES SOAKING -GETS CLOTHES 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER THAN OTHER SOAPS IN HALF THE TIME.
OXYDOL
15 MINUTES' SOAKING! WHY THAT SOAP MUST BE TWICE AS STRONG AS THE ONE I TRIED. DON'T YOU DARE —
I'M DOING YOU A FAVOR! YOU WAIT AND SEE. JUST LOOK AT THOSE SUDS.
15 MINUTES LATER
WHY, THAT'S MIRACULOUS! ONLY 15 MINUTES' SOAKING AND THOSE CLOTHES ARE SHADES WHITER THAN EVER BEFORE. BUT LOIS, ARE YOU POSITIVE THAT SOAP IS SAFE?
SAFE? I USED IT AT LEAST 20 TIMES ON THIS COLORED DRESS ... AND SEE-IT'S JUST AS FRESH AND BRIGHT AS NEW!

TO THINK THAT YOU FEEL SO "PEPPY" ON WASHDAY— I CAN'T BELIEVE IT.
OH JOHN, LOIS SHOWED ME A NEW SOAP THAT ACTUALLY CUTS WASHING TIME IN HALF— NO SCRUBBING OR BOILING TO DO— AND YOU SHOULD SEE HOW WHITE JUST A LITTLE SOAP WASHES THE CLOTHES



YOU, TOO, WILL BE ASTONISHED — READ THESE FACTS—MAKE THIS TEST

New Million Dollar Granulated Soap Invention Combines Safety With Utmost Speed. At Last A Safe Fast-Washing Soap That Actually Loosens Dirt Out of Clothes In 15 Minutes' Soaking—And Gets Them 4 to 5 Shades Whiter Than Other Soaps Without One Bit of Scrubbing or Boiling.

● New and Improved OXYDOL is different from any bar, flake, chip or ordinary granulated soap you ever used. Different in the way it's made and in the results it gets.

Due to its patented process of making, OXYDOL dissolves instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does these things:

First—gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt and stains—in any water —2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.

Second—sets up a unique, new 'soak and flush" washing action. 15 MINUTES' SOAKING loosens dirt out so it flushes away —without scrubbing or boiling.

You cut washing time 25% to 40%, in tub or machine. You save long hours of soaking, scrubbing and boiling—you get clothes clean and white without washboard wear and tear

And yet, due to its special formula—its special protective combination of mild soap ingredients—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, and fabrics!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. A 48 Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL today from your own grocer.

YOUR MONEY BACK

If This Test Fails in Your Home

● Into 2 pans, filled with equal amounts of water, put equal amounts of (1) your favorite soap and (2) the New and Improved OXYDOL. Then soak a dirty towel in each for 15 minutes by the clock. Then rinse.

● IF IN YOUR OPINION the towel that soaked in OXYDOL doesn't wash out whiter, smell sweeter, take the unused portion of the package of OXYDOL back to your grocer with this ad and get your money back.

He rated their Skin 10 years Younger than their Age

Dermatologist's Examination proves Society Beauties' skin actually 10 years Younger than their Age of Russia. "Princess Xenia has a perfect brunette complexion. Texture fine. No blemishes. A youthful freshness usually encountered in the early twenties instead of thirties."—Dermatologist's Report. The Princess Xenia says: "Every night, every morning, always before freshening my make-up, I use Pond's Cold Cream."

Mrs. Francis Grover Cleveland

"Mrs. Cleveland has a delicate skin. Texture fine and soft. No defects are patent. Her skin looks at least ten years younger than her age."—Dermatologist's Report. Mrs. Cleveland has used Pond's Cold Cream for years. She says: "It is a quick, sure and thorough way to cleanse—to soften and to prepare for powder. I wouldn't be without it for a day."

SKIN YOUTH, dermatologists say, depends upon the activity of the skin's circulation . . . its tone or elasticity . . . the virility of its oil glands. They now rate the youth of skin on these 4 points—softness, texture, clarity, firmness.

From 16 to 20, dermatologists report, the skin is at the height of its loveliness. Then it is thin—smooth — transparent —line-free — radiantly fresh. Blemishes are unknown. But its youth is quickly fleeting.

Even before you are aware, your skin begins to fade—to grow old. It becomes starved for the precious youth-giving oils once created by the active glands deep within it. Then it appears more and more rough—sallow—shriveled—wrinkled.

If you prize the youth of your skin, you must arouse its languid circulation—replenish the lazy glands—give the skin youth-sustaining oils.

In Pond's fragrant Cold Cream there is a rare blend of specially processed oils. They are combined with such precise and knowing scientific skill that they quickly seep into the very depths of the skin. Their effect is instant! Their continuous use a tonic to the skin!

One cream answers all skin needs

Always at night . . . every night . . . smooth Pond's Cold Cream over your face and neck. Pat it in briskly for just a moment. You will feel its gentle oils seeping into the pores—floating out and away the day's accumulation of make-up, dust, grime—dissolving incipient blackheads. This brief, easy-to-do nightly cleansing takes so little time—it means so much to your skin. Try it and see what it will do for you.

The rich oils in this cream do more . . . much more . . . than cleanse. When laughter lines, worry lines . . . crêpiness . . . settle about your eyes, mouth and throat . . . when coarse pores and harsh texture threaten—these rare oils help to keep the skin young. You notice at once how smooth—soft—your skin becomes.

You'll be amazed to see how evenly powder and make-up go on. Delighted to find it still fresh after hours and hours. But its marvelous effect is not merely temporary. The longer this cream is used, the lovelier it makes the skin.

This remarkable ability to cleanse deeply . . . to literally erase age signs . . . to flatter the skin to new smoothness—radiance . . . has been Pond's passport around the world—the reason for its entry into the most exclusive social circles of all continents. Women who can "have everything" choose Pond's Cold Cream. The wisest budgeters, canny about every penny, use Pond's Cold Cream. It is the cream of millionairesses and of the millions.

Above are recent portraits of the charming Princess Xenia and Mrs. Cleveland. Both use Pond's Cold Cream. Convincing proof of its amazing power to preserve the skin's youthful charm!

A cream that melts—cleanses—silkens

Pond's also makes a delightful new cream that liquefies instantly on the skin—Pond's Liquefying Cream. It contains the same specially processed oils as Pond's Cold Cream.

Look in your Mirror. Test your skin on all these points . . . they denote Skin Age. Correct them with this rich, Specially Processed Cold Cream . . . .

CORRECTS THESE SKIN FAULTS in 20's

FIGHTS OFF THESE AGE SIGNS after 30

Pond's Cold Cream* cleanses. Corrects skin faults—prepares for powder. Used by 1 out of every 5 women who use cream. Pond's Liquefying Cream serves same purpose. It is a quicker melting cream.
